

Women of Thirties Most Beautiful, Say Critics

Full Bloom of Loveliness May Be Preserved Far Beyond Middle Life By Care of Health—Tanlac Has Helped Thousands Regain Lost Vitality.

Many famous men have said that no woman is really beautiful until after she is thirty. Her beauty has been flushed and refined by the fires of experience into a fulsome beauty with which even the freshness of youth cannot compare.

But thirty is a dangerous and deceptive age. A woman may grow even more beautiful and attractive than ever, or she may enter into a rapid decline that robs her of the glowing skin, the clear eyes, the charming smile and the graceful curving figure that are so essential to the full bloom of loveliness.

Nature has provided the danger signals and they should be heeded with scrupulous care if one is to preserve indefinitely the full bloom of loveliness.

DANGER SIGNS.

Digestive troubles are the chief danger, and Tanlac, the celebrated system purifier and body builder, is the relief remedy. If you feel tired out all the time, or your skin is yellow and your lips pale, if your cheeks are thin and colorless, and you suffer from headaches and backache, do not sleep well and wake up with a bad taste in your mouth; if you are nervous and out of sorts, have dizzy spells and black spots before your eyes, if you suffer from acid stomach, indigestion and are afraid to eat certain things, it is a sure sign that your digestive organs are not performing their full duty and the system is becoming clogged with impurities.

Tanlac was designed to overcome just such a condition and thousands of women throughout the United States and Canada have taken this wonderful medicine with such remarkable results that they have expressed gratitude in the public press.

Mrs. Robert O. Reynolds, 127 N. Denver St., Kansas City, Mo., says:

"For ten long years I suffered from very bad form of rheumatism, stomach trouble and nervousness. Three bottles of Tanlac built me up twenty-five pounds and I haven't a trace of my old troubles left. I believe Tanlac will help anybody."

COWARDICE.

All the world despises a coward. Even the coward himself despises other cowards.

I suppose as you read these sentences you think of the kind of coward I thought of when I wrote it, the kind of coward we almost always mean when we write that word—a physical coward, a person who is always afraid of something or someone is going to hurt him in some physical way.

But the dictionary definition of the word is broader than that. Webster says a coward is "a person who lacks courage."

The Life Coward.

There is the physical coward, the person who lacks physical courage, and there is also the life coward, the person who lacks courage for life.

And why should one form of cowardice be any more dreaded and disliked than the other?

Indeed I think a great deal more unhappiness comes into the world through life cowardice than through physical cowardice. And in the last analysis, how better would you rate a fault or a virtue than by the amount of happiness or unhappiness it adds to the world's store?

Use Both Weapons.

Of course I do not forget that life cowardice, like all forms of cowardice, is partly a matter of sick nerves and poor physical equipment. But I do think that the will enters into the matter too. He who has a will to courage may help himself somewhat in spite of sick nerves, and in so doing will help the sick nerves, for these things are a vicious circle, and while sick nerves cause cowardice it is equally true that cowardice makes sick nerves and bodies worse.

If you are conscious of a tendency to life cowardice, fight it both by the physical weapon of trying to improve your health and by the mental and spiritual weapon of summoning your will to courage.

EXCESSIVE DUTIES.

In the Trade Review's editorial of Oct. 28th, a very lengthy description regarding Revenue and Expenditure for the years 1917, 1918 and 1922, is given in figures, showing deficits here and there in certain Departments and yet the editor of that paper asks how can the Civil Service expenditure be reduced and adds that if taxation has to be lowered the people must forfeit some needed public facilities.

It seems that of late the Trade Review under its new management has varied somewhat in its policy regarding reduction and retrenchment and at times there appears an appeal for an elaborate hotel to be erected in the city. Probably the aim is to have other avenues whereby more liquor can be dispensed with.

However Mr. Trade Review cannot you see many things that the majority of our inhabitants can see of the many thousands; tens of thousands. Hundreds of thousands of dollars that are paid from the public treasury in waste! The increasing liabilities that are not essential to the well-being of anyone but gratifiers? Do you see in print anything about our tax, super sales tax, stamp tax, entry forms tax, without these frills? Did you ever know that the salaries of the Cabinet ministers and their long train of helpers have doubled and trebled? Look On an article that one might import into the colony for private use, that costs, say, only one dollar to buy in Toronto and the value for duty in dollars is certainly one dollar. All right, add 40% duty; that makes 40 cents. Next, add 10% sur-tax, of 4 cents; total 44 cents. Then add 25% super tax or 11 cents and that makes 55 cents. The sales tax of 5% comes out of the value, i.e. $1.00, duty 55 cents, and freight or expressage, say 20 cents, which, added together, makes $1.75. Now 5% on $1.75 is 9 cents. Now we have on the value of the goods so far 55 plus 9 or 64 cents. Stamp tax, which is placed on entry forms, is 20 cents. Yes, 84 cents now you say, and when I pay 3 cents more for entry forms it at last ends the clipping on the dollar's worth of goods and I pay down 87 cents, nearly as much as the original cost of the goods in Toronto.

This looks as if someone wants to humbug the public from importing in small lots. Yet it goes on to help to maintain unreasonable and unbearable expenditure which must leave the country a wilderness eventually unless the Departmental heads get their heads together and re-arrange the tariff so as to be beneficial to the well-being of the people of industry and for the well being of importation.

COUNTRY FAVORS THE OBJECTIVE.

Mr. Morine is the legal adviser for the fishermen in respect to their movement for Retrenchment and Reduction of the tariff and was appointed by the delegates, who were sent from Bonaville and other Southern Bays, while they were in St. John's. The delegates first met the Bankers, then the Exporters, then the Board of Trade, and lastly the Executive and after these meetings they approached acting-Premier Shea, and he advised them to consult a legal adviser. They then called on Mr. Morine who accepted the offer and it appears that they sought after Mr. Morine because he was so successful in settling the sealers strike of years ago in St. John's. Some fear of a political move on the part of Mr. Morine to override Mr. Coaker in Bonaville, but we feel that he would not be so foolish at this juncture because no doubt the Government see the movement as a move to force results they will comply in some way with the demands. A political move would be to demand the resignation of the present Government and then an election would eventually follow, giving a chance for those who would, to take the field.

The Overthrow of Mr. Lloyd George.

The outstanding feature of the General Election in Great Britain, as is pointed out in a recent paper, is the political downfall of Mr. Lloyd George. In a new House of Commons of 615 members he has managed to return only 45 followers. That he will some day "come back" as a political leader will deny, but meanwhile he has to suffer for the sins of his Government.

The financial policy of Mr. Lloyd George's Government since 1918 has been deplorable, and the waste and extravagance of the Departments under his rule have brought us to the verge of ruin. We have never known a more wasteful Administration, and it will take the country many years to recover from the consequences of its prodigal expenditure," writes Lord Rothermere in the Daily Mail.

Here are a few other extracts from the British press—all prominent newspapers—expressing satisfaction at the overthrow of the late Government.

"The Coalition, so long moribund, is dead and gone, unwept and unsung. And with its departure Mr. Lloyd George is deprived of all further Unionist allegiance whatsoever."

—Morning Post.

"Never in living memory has the fall of a British Government caused so little commotion or evoked so small a measure of public regret as that of Mr. Lloyd George's last Coalition. The Coalition fell like an over-ripe pear. It was so rotten that the passer-by did not even stop to examine it."

—The Times.

"Let there be no fear. This crisis is wholesome. When the pool was troubled the sick were healed. A vital wind of moral independence has swept through the country, clearing away black and stalling atmosphere. It is the return to honest and efficient politics."

—The Observer.

"The announcement that the Coalition Government here have resigned will be received throughout the country with intense relief. Britain has had no more unpopular Administration since the days of the Stuarts."

—Daily Mail.

"The Coalition is at an end, and with it the period of sham and make-believe, which has for the last four years reduced politics at home to a

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation, poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

The Advocate says it is a political move but Mr. Coaker himself was asked, by the fishermen now in St. John's to come and help them in this movement of Reduction of taxation, to suggest, perhaps, a way to settle the fish question, but he absolutely refused to have anything to do with the matter and refused to attend the meetings. Then, we ask in all sincerity, who is fostering politics? Who is making it a divided house? If Mr. Coaker is not responsible for the extra duties piled on, one would think he would stand by the fishermen who are not bothering about politics to-day, but are asking reasonable favors, whereby they can continue the fishery in future in a manner becoming to themselves and their families.

The movement if successful will not only aid the people generally, but the Government as well, and politics should not be considered by our readers but a country wide demand in which it is a great deal to get along without future disturbances. Some one no doubt was needed to lead such a body of men, and we feel that many of the fishermen themselves, found it necessary to appoint a statesman or lawyer to help frame memorials they intended forwarding to the government and thus Mr. Morine was considered the man of the hour.

LOWER TARIFF! LOWER PRICES! Action, Not Arguments Needed!

KEARNEY'S Looking Ahead Takes the First Step!

The people want it! Lower Tariff is coming!—Prosperity is ahead for all! bringing lower prices and lower living costs. Then, will merchants, rising from the oppression of high duties, sell at the oft-wished "reasonable" prices. A great idea! while the people pay the price now. Why wait? Who has the courage to blaze the trail?

Without waiting for the change I am giving the public the benefit of the Lower Tariff beforehand; clear my stocks, pocket my loss and be ready to start anew. Mark this event! Dependability is its backbone; free from the clap-trap of the boaster and the bargain scab. The proof is below for the first selling period.
