Domestic Ruffles

Wife is a treat sublime She is simply captivating.
Like the weather, sometimes If, with all her things go well, She is sunshine, bright and warm, But if not, she'll rage a squall, 'Cause there comes an awful storm.

Willie is dressed well to-day, Suits of blue, 'twas new this season.
Scampers off with chums to play, Clothes get torn, for no great reason.
Willie says he's had a fall, Home he runs to Mamma, fearing 'Guess there's going to be a squall, Mamma looks grow dark and lowering.

'Daddy's call I never shrink, Work until I'm sometimes daffy, Once, returning home from work, Friends smiled in to a café, Stayed for longer than I meant, Then made home in quite a hurry, Wife had ideas where I went,
Not her; Gee Whizz! what a hurry.

If these ruffles frequent be,
They are not of long duration, Soon, we shall be calm sea Of good, sound exhortation.
As the sky, on dullest day, Into brightest blue, breaks sometime, Wife's moods soon fade away, Clouds give way to brighter sunshine.

When a Storm Blows up at Sea

A never-failing ritual on the part of the ship's company is arranged for the coming of a storm on the great oceans.

At the first indication of the approach it is the duty of the staff-captain and the "mail" officer (if it be a big liner) to make a thorough round of the main deck.

All the storm doors are closed and the strictest instructions are issued to crew and passengers alike, that all port-holes in the danger area must be closed and screwed down.

If the weather is exceptionally heavy the "dead-lights" are fixed to the port-holes so that the waves shall not batter down the glass and flood the outside cabins.

After the two officers visiting the rounds have made sure that all is "fast" below and that the watertight compartment doors are working freely and easily, they proceed to make a tour of inspection of the decks in the top-sides.

Their first care now is for the personal and individual safety of the passengers. If the wind is blowing a gale and waves are breaking continuously over the ship, no passenger is allowed to walk on an open deck for the seemingly innocent pleasure of looking at the fascinating progress of the storm.

In the public rooms of the ship the stewards, reinforced by an army of men from the dining saloons and pantries, get to work at once. They lash with heavy ropes all the huge flower and plant stands and pieces of furniture which might break away with the motion of the ship. It is usual to form barricades of chairs and tables and to bind them fast to pillars and ornamental supports, such as abound in the great lounges of modern liners.

The price a steamship company pays for breakages alone as the result of a really bad gale sometimes runs into tens of thousands of dollars. Chairs and tables are broken by the score and glasses and plates by the hundred.

When a big ship rolls badly, the wise man either hangs on to a fixed rail or stands stock-still with the best foothold he can find. An attempt to move with the roll means an immediate loss of equilibrium, and the unfortunate passenger is bowled over at breakneck speed to the lee side of the ship. In the space of a few feet he gathers a tremendous impetus, and only a miracle can save him from serious injury when he strikes the bulkhead at the end of his short, swift journey.

The wise man clings to his rail and escapes.

Motor Disease

New York Sun: Deaths from many diseases have been materially reduced through scientific attack, notably those from infantile paralysis, diabetes and yellow fever. The Rockefeller Institute, by concerted application of medical research, has gone far toward annihilating some heretofore widespread maladies. Since the motor car has become, in a sense, a highly mortal disease, it is time that the precise causes of its morbid effects were thoroughly studied preparatory to remedying them.

Fresh, pure sweet and wholesome, that is Crisco—the ideal cooking fat.
Every home should use Crisco. It is odorless and smokeless and gives marvelous results in cakes and pastry.

15,000 Miles in Yawl Captain and Wife Reach Australia in Twenty-Ton Boat—Crew of one.

Captain Symons, accompanied by his wife and one sailor, has arrived here from the Fiji Islands in the twenty-ton yawl Seaweed.

They encountered very heavy weather on the voyage.—Reuter.

The Seaweed left Southampton nearly six months ago, and has now covered nearly 15,000 miles, having sailed through the Panama Canal. The yawl has no auxiliary power and depends wholly on the wind.

Mrs. Symons shares all the work on board, even taking a watch daily.

Japan's Shore Line Increased by Quake

Tokio, Dec. 14 (A. P.)—Japan's area has been considerably extended as a result of the earthquake. There has been a marked change in the shore line of the Mura and Izu peninsulas which form Sagami Bay, the center of the disturbance.

According to experts the bay is many fathoms deeper and along the shores rocks heretofore immersed are showing, forming small islands, while residences built on the seashore have considerable stretches of land between them and the sea which, when reclaimed, will be of great value.

The admiralty boats have been out for some weeks now preparing new charts of Sagami Bay and surrounding waters. New charts of Tokai Bay also have been completed.

The meteorological officials find that the land rose to the extent of nine feet on Mura and parts of Boso peninsulas and at Choshi, at the mouth of the Tone River, north of Tokio, and about eight feet at Oiso on Izu peninsula. On the other hand the earth has settled at Inatori, a village at the extreme southern end of Boso peninsula, and at Oshima or Vries Island, just opposite Inatori.

League Wars on White Slavers

GENEVA, (A.P.)—Miss Grace Abbott, of the United States Department of Labor, has notified the League of Nations that the Social Hygiene Bureau at Washington will contribute to the cost of the investigation into the traffic in women and children any necessary amount up to a maximum of $75,000.

The social section of the league proposes to undertake an inquiry by experts into the white slave practice, with a view to effecting its total abolition. The police systems of all world cities will be requested to cooperate in this investigation.
