Amherstburg Echo: "About three years ago Thos. Heard, of London, gave his brother-in-law, C. M. S. Thomas, of Amherstburg, four carp (goldfish), which he had obtained from Mr. Saunders, of London. Mr. Thomas put the fish in a jar, but in a very short time two of them died. Thinking they might thrive better in a pond or running stream, he gave the other two to his father, C. W. Thomas, who put them into the pond near his mill, on the 3rd concession of Anderdon, where they flourished and multiplied, until to-day there are thousands of the little creatures in the pond. After the recent heavy rains the small streams flowing into the pond were swollen considerably, and, as is customary with such fish, they started to swim towards the source. When the water went down, large number were found lying on the ground, some having gone as far as the 6th concession. On a sunshiny day the whole pond glitters like gold from the glistening scales of the fish.

Samuel Nay, of Lakelet, has met with a serious accident which will lay him up for some time to come. He was assisting to place the binding pole on a load of hay, when it broke, precipitating him to the floor. The fall was a heavy one, and he sustained serious bruises besides having his arms broken at the wrists.

While William, son of Mr. David Richard, of Exeter, was engaged putting the harness on a horse belonging to John Hunter, of Usborne, the animal bit a portion of one of his ears and dropped it on the floor. The horse was never considered cross, and the reason assigned for this occurrence is unknown. The injured part has been properly cared for by medical skill.

The Farmer. The king may rule o'er land and sea,
The lord may live right royally,
The solder ride in pomp and pride,
The sailor roam o'er cean wide;
But this or that, whate'er befall,
The toiling farmer feeds them all,

The writer thinks, the poet sings,
The oraftsmen fashion wondrous things,
The doctor heals, the lawyer pleads,
The miner follows the precious leads;
But this or that, whate'er befall.
The tolling farmer feeds them all.

The merchant may both buy and sell,
The teacher do his duty well;
But men may toil through busy days,
Or men may stril through bleasant ways,
From king to begager, whate're befall,
The toiling farmer feeds them all,

The farmer's trade is one of worth:
He's partner with the 1sty and earth,
He's partner with the sun and rain,
And no man loses for his gain,
And no man loses for his gain,
And men may rise, and men may fall,
But the toiling farmer feeds them all.

God bless the man who sows the wheat,
Who finds us milk and fruit and meat.
May his purse be heavy, his heart be light,
His cattle and corn and all go right;
God bless the seeds his hands let fall,
For the farmer must provide for all.

-At the time of closing this report last week (four days before the date of publication) the extent of the southwestern floods was not known. Since then also rains have continued to fall in many wheat-growing sections to such an extent that the effect of the "rise and fall" of water is now said to be the loss of at least 10 per cent. of the expected season's crop in the United States.
In Dakota many counties will have only half the usual acreage owing to the inability of farmers to get the seed in the ground The flooded bottoms in Iowa, Nebraska and in some parts of Wisconsin, cover a very large acreage.

—The Canadian farmer has been hindered considerably in the field operations by the continued rains, and many will be ompelled to alter some of the plans made in the early spring for cropping. Corn planting will be delayed in many sections and probably entirely prevented by an over-abundance of rain and an insufficiency of heat. In spite of wet weather spring grains are growing rapidly in places where seeding was done on dry soil. Some farmers, however, made the mistake of seeding in wet soil, whose heaviness not retards the crop's growth. On the whole, the prospects are favorable.

-The State of Illinois is credited with peing the first in the Union to establish an

Good machinery and sharp tools all in good repair, are most necessary to accomplish farm work in the most enective manner and with the least outlay of labor.

One objection to depending upon our own experience is that, in many cases, it comes too late in order for us to be able to derive the full benefit of the knowledge.

—Farmers are advised by the large wool dealers not to use binder twine for tying up fleeces of wool, as it is not only difficult to untie and remove from fleeces without breaking them up, but it also causes serious inconveniences and loss, should any of it remain in the wool and find its way into the meahingery while in process of manu-ous inconveniences and ross, should any of it remain in the wool and find its way into the machinery while in process of manufacture. Another point strongly insisted on is a more thorough cleansing of the wool. The man who has wool well washed gets the best price for it.

—The next United States lands to be opened to settlement will be in southeastern Utah. These lands belonged to the southern Utes. After the agreement with these has been finally ratified, the land will be sold to settlers at the price of $1.50 per acre. Then there will be one more boomers' rush, almost the last one in the history of the country. After the public lands in the west have all been taken up by the boomers it will be time to develop and occupy some of the neglected land in the older States. There is enough of it to sustain many millions more people than insustain many millions more people than in-

Measurement of weight by the "stone arose from the old custom farmers had of weighing wool with a stone. Every farmer kept a large stone at his farm for this purpose. When a dealer came along he balanced a plank on the top of a wall and put the stone on one end of it and bags of wool on the other end until the weights were equal.

The majority of well-read physicians now believe that Consumption is a germ disease. In other words, instead of being in the constitution itself it is caused by innu-merable small creatures living in the lungs having no business there and eating them away as caterpillars do the leaves of trees.
The phlegm that is coughed up is those parts of the lungs which have been gnawed off and destroyed. These little bacilli, as the germs are called, are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but they are very much alive just the same, and enter the body in our food, in the air we breathe and through the pores of breathe, and through the pores of the skin. Thence they get into the blood and finally arrive at the lungs where they fasten and increase with frightful rapidity. Then German Syrup comes in, loosens them, kills them, expells them, heals the places they leave, and so nourish and soothe that, in a short time consumptives become germ-proof and well. @
