

LITTLE SPEAKS AT BUSY FACTORY

Liberal Candidate Given Rousing Reception at Sherlock-Manning Plant.

Immigration, the railways and tariff problems were discussed at noon today by E. S. Little, Liberal candidate for London, in speaking to employees of the Sherlock-Manning piano and organ Co., at their Elm street factory.

Mr. Little was accorded a good hearing and there was applause for his clear-cut explanation of policy. He discussed the principal issues of the campaign and his statements went unchallenged. Afterwards he visited the various departments of the plant and showed much interest in operations under way. There was evidence of considerable demand for Sherlock-Manning products, and which Mr. Little discussed in speaking to the men.

Planes were a luxury and competition was keen, the candidate stated. Notwithstanding that condition, the business of the piano industry had been favorable. The dominant tariff commission would take up the piano business problems, as well as others, directly after the election.

"The secret of prosperity is to get more people into the country," said Mr. Little. "Four million more people in the country would mean the deficit of the railways into surpluses, real surpluses. This country's importance and success depends upon its export trade and in five years time it will be supplying most of the world for the United States. We must look for world markets if business is to increase."

CHARGE OF CRUELTY AGAINST OXFORD MAN

Inspector Tustin Goes to Rescue of Live Cocks at Ingersoll.

Receiving information that animals were neglected and in bad shape at Ingersoll, Humane Inspector Tustin, accompanied by High Constable Wharton, journeyed to the town to investigate the report. In company with Chief of Police Holmes of Ingersoll, they visited a shack rented by Chester Burch. On their arrival at the shack the officers found conditions deplorable. All the live stock, including poultry, dogs and ferrets, were seized. The shack, the officers were told, had been condemned by the Oxford officials. A warrant for arrest of Burch was issued by Police Magistrate Patterson of Ingersoll. Burch is charged under the cruelty to animals act. At the present time the live stock is being taken care of by the London Humane society.

DROPS ARE INCREASED BY UNDERDRAINAGE

Assistant Agricultural Representative Employed in Making Surveys.

Farmers of Middlesex are turning more than ever to underdrainage as a means of increasing farm crops. A. P. Parrish, assistant district representative of the Ontario department of agriculture in Middlesex, will spend some days making farm surveys for drainage work on district farms.

Several requests for this type of work have been received by the department of agriculture and they are being attended to as quickly as possible by R. A. Finn and Mr. Parrish. Work was held up during the past six weeks by school fairs, which were held from one end of the county to the other.

TINY JENKINS LOOKS FORWARD TO A CAREER WITH BIG CIRCUS

London Feline Marvel Expresses Ambition to Launch Out Into World.

MAY EVEN GO ABROAD

"I am looking forward to a dramatic career with one of the larger circuses," Tiny Jenkins, 95 Glenwood avenue, told The Advertiser today. "Of course, my family, as far as I am aware, have never been stage folk, but I have unusual claims to distinction, ones which I feel ought to earn me a place in a higher class side-show. I was born, as you see, with two extra toes on each of my front feet, and on one of my hind feet I have a double toe with two nails."

"You may be sure that some of the more common felines, whose only bid for fame rests on the usual nine lives of a cat, resent my ambitions and exhibit their lack of breeding by insisting that my limbs are deformed. On the contrary, my extra toes are very useful in negotiating high board fences in the early hours of the morning, and have assisted me materially many times in escaping missiles hurled, not at me of course, but at members of my species with more raucous voices than my own. To be sure, one cannot blame people. Some of the cats in this neighborhood are very noisy and unrefined, so of course I have nothing to do with them beyond greeting them when I unavoidably meet them in my rambles."

Not a Wanderer. "As Mr. Jenkins has probably told you, I am but a little over three months old, and so cannot lay claim to having travelled extensively, but even in my short wanderings I have learned to be a fair judge of feline nature and to select my friends very carefully. One has to be very discreet in regard to whom one entertains these days," continued Tiny.

"As for myself," continued Tiny, yawning, stretching and relaxing again, "I was born into a family of literary inclinations and so have been more or less of a studious person myself. Mr. Jenkins, my master, is a newspaperman and I had thought at first of taking up journalistic work, but I have since been convinced by friends that my peculiar talents fit me better for show work and then I think that the opportunity to travel, and to receive the broadening influence of meeting different types of people, is one which should not be passed over lightly."

Asked if he found notoriety at all tiresome, Tiny assured The Advertiser that he did not mind visitors in the least. "I have had several callers in the past few days and with few exceptions they have shown the same of courtesy. I have been photographed twice as well, and it is very gratifying to find that my fellow townsmen are interested in me to this extent."

To an inquiry as to the possibilities of taking up his career in this city instead of going abroad, Tiny replied: "I should like very much to do so, and probably will remain in the city for some little time. I am greatly attached to my young master, Fredrick Jenkins, and to my mistress, and feel that I should like to enjoy their companionship for some time yet. However, London does not offer the same opportunities as do some of the larger centers. I am interested in Toronto and Montreal, particularly the latter, and it is the dream, of course, of every dramatically inclined person to see his name in electric lights on Broadway and possibly I shall too some day—who knows? Thank you very much for calling. Good afternoon!"

MILLINERY SALES INCREASE AS REACTION TO GOOD TIMES

Conditions Never Looked Brighter, Says Manager of One London Firm.

FALL TRADE BOOMING

"During the past five weeks the sale of fall millinery has been the largest of any similar period in the history of our store. Business for the year will show an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent over that of last year."

This is prosperity in London as reflected by Louis Griesman, manager of the Royal Millinery and Fur Company, Dundas street. Mr. Griesman told The Advertiser this morning that general conditions never looked brighter since the war than they do today.

"The sale of millinery reacts to good times quicker than any other line of apparel," he asserted. "When money is scarce, the strictest of economy in hats is very apparent."

Sign of Good Times. "Our customers who in the past have purchased three or four hats a year are now buying five and six. That is a sure sign of better times. The spending power of the Canadian people has increased considerably in the last two years."

"Of course, this increase is also due in a large measure to style changes. In millinery show stronger tendencies to vary than they used to. This invariably heightens the demand. But unless times are good, sales increase on account of this condition are not often substantial. The extraordinary business we have enjoyed this year convinces me that London, and the country too, is prosperous."

Fall Trade Good.

While business of the past spring and summer was highly satisfactory, Mr. Griesman declares that fall trade to date has exceeded all expectations. He looks forward to general winter business keeping pace with the mark set in the last five weeks.

Discussing styles, Mr. Griesman believes that the new satin hat, recently shown in American style centers, will be the most popular style in Canada. Black seems to be the predominant shade, he says, but other colors are expected to sell well also.

OVERCOAT STOLEN.

Paul Cosulich, 133 John street, reported to police today that his overcoat, valued at $40, had been stolen from a local poolroom last night.

PRESBYTERIANS ASK 3 PROPERTIES

Will Present Requests to the Church Property Commission Here on October 30.

Continuing Presbyterians will ask for three disputed churches and for their equity in two manse in the district composing the old London presbytery, when the church property commission meets in this city on Friday, Oct. 30. No churches in London proper are in dispute.

One at least of the three United churches, formerly Presbyterian, at Ivan, English Settlement and Ilderton are sought by the Presbyterians. The continuing church is asking possession of the churches at Kintore and Melbourne also. Besides these buildings, wanted for purposes of worship, Presbyterian congregations are demanding their equities in the manse in South Nissouri, temporarily in their possession, and in the North street manse in Westminster. North Street is an United church, but the Presbyterians of Delaware are laying claim to a share of the value.

The church property commission is composed of F. Falconbridge, K.C., chairman; R. W. Cassels, representing the Presbyterian church, and J. Wardrop, representative of the United Church of Canada. D. R. McCarthy, K.C., and Norman Macdonell, both of Toronto; W. B. Gillanders, London, and Colin Leach, St. Thomas, will present the Presbyterian case, while that of the United church will be upheld by R. D. McDonald, M. P. Gladman, and the Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, members of the London legal committee of the United Church of Canada.

More communications were received from farmers who discussed the realities of farm help, the crops and the elections. One hired man wrote in to state that his wife couldn't get along with his employer's wife and would Mr. Farrell please get him another job.

Mr. Farrell was quite optimistic, however, and assured sympathizing press representatives that he would get things straightened out to the satisfaction of everyone within a few days.

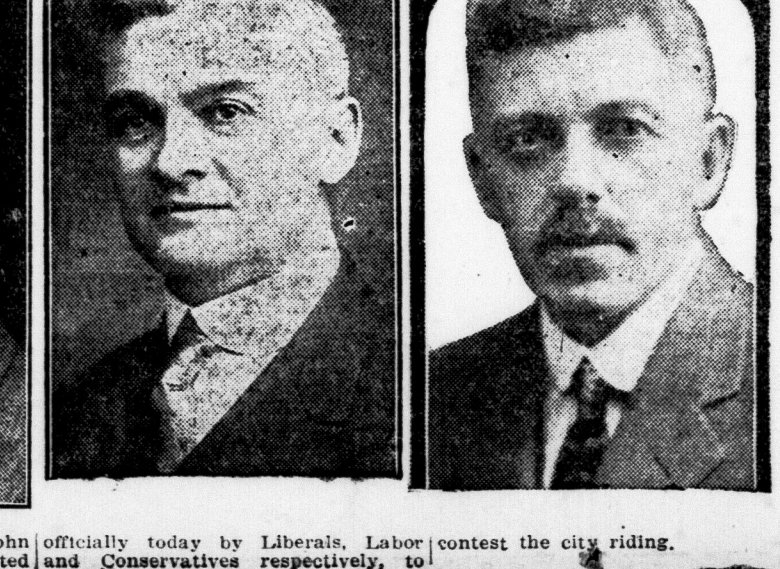

WEEK'S BANK CLEARINGS SHOW MARKED INCREASE

COUNTY TO HAVE SMALL SURPLUS

Officials Are Given Credit For Year's Commercial Administration.

Middlesex farmers will certainly not complain of the way in which Warden Allan McPherson of Glenora and his county councillors have ruled over county finances this year. With the greater part of the year already in the past, Middlesex finds with some pleasure, that there will be a slight surplus this year, despite the fact that taxes were cut two mills or a total of $78,000, and the county hasn't borrowed within $10,000 what it did last year, when the surplus was $67,000.

This, of course, could not have been accomplished without efficient service on the part of county officials, especially County Clerk John Stuart and County Engineer Charles Talbot, who with Treasurer Capt. Tom Robb and Assistant Treasurer Jack McLarty, have kept watchful eyes on the county treasure chest, and have not expended a dollar that was not absolutely necessary.

All county bills have been paid up to date, the county record of not keeping anyone waiting for their money having been upheld every single month.

County Engineer Talbot reports that all county roads are in excellent condition, and that the county has only rough spots being on portions of the Sarnia gravel road that has received hard usage as a result of the heavy traffic between London and Sarnia.

BATTERYLESS RADIO SETS A BOON TO FANS

Interesting news for radio fans has been brought to London by A. E. Mandy, representative of the S. S. Music Company, Toronto, distributors for the Rogers batteryless radio receiving sets. You can hardly imagine it, but, never before, have you been able to listen to the radio without aerials—radio with out disconnection. Mr. Mandy announced that the Rogers batteryless radio without A or B batteries, and without aerials, is actually do with your Rogers radio set. Just plug into your electric light socket and immediately tune in to the world's best radio. Clear, full sound and dependable.

Mr. Mandy says: "Those who have watched the progress of radio with vague understanding and hearsay, will be able to appreciate that Rogers' batteryless sets now represent a superlatively, the most interesting and practical in comparison, further in advance of other radios than for example, the self-starting automobile radios, the hand-cranked motor car. The 'Just plug in—then tune in' slogan of the Rogers' sets introduces to radio an entirely new standard of simplicity and insures the fullest of radio enjoyment and convenience to all who possess these sets. With Rogers' sets you only need the power supplied by your house electric light current, either 25 or 60 cycles, eliminating the cost or up to date of batteries. The simplicity of achievement of the Rogers' radio engineers also eliminates the need for aerials. The simple act of plugging in a single cord attached to your set puts your radio into operation at once. Incidentally the cost of current is less than five cents a week."

A number of complaints have been received by the police and all are being investigated. Should any of the proprietors make a second appearance in court, the fine will be extremely heavy.

Another poolroom owner will appear before the magistrate tomorrow to explain why he has allowed snugs to loaf and play pool in his establishment.

KELLOGG'S MEN HEAR WHITE AT NOON MEETING

Frank White, M.P., Conservative candidate for London, continued his noon-day program of speaking at factories by addressing a meeting of 50 men and women at the Kellogg Toasted Cornflake plant today.

Mr. White covered the same ground as he did at the McCormick meeting yesterday. He talked of the tariff, declaring more protection was what was wanted by industry. He also referred to railway matters, and stated that the Conservatives were the friends of labor. Mr. White concluded his speech by asking for votes in the election on the 29th of the month.

LONDONER'S CLOSE CALL

R. tracks in that town. It is reported that the gates at the street crossing were open and Pegler failed to cross them. The car was heavily damaged, being crushed in from both sides when it caught between a switch and the cars.

600-FOOTER BRINGS GRAIN CARGO TO PORT.

The Advertiser photographer here shows the huge grain vessel Glen-cavie docked at the Port Stanley elevator wharf, where she will unload her cargo. For the first time vessels of this size fully loaded have found it possible to make Port Stanley, and this is due to dredging and widening operations carried out this summer by appropriations and under authority of the King government. The Liberal government has ordered further development at the port and as a result Port Stanley trade is booming as never before.

OUTLOOK FOR HARDWARE TRADE BEST IN YEARS

Manager of Cowan's Says Business Has Been Satisfactory This Fall.

INCREASE IS EXPECTED

While the hardware trade in London has been stable in the past three years, with no large business increases at any period, an unusually good winter commerce is foreseen by retailers. According to Howard M. Crummer, manager of the Cowan Hardware Company, the outlook for the season is brighter than it was at the same time last year. His firm, he said, expects a record Christmas trade.

"The hardware business does not experience the wide range of trade fluctuations more or less common in other businesses," Mr. Crummer explained. "Neither is it affected to any great extent by the seasons, though the fall and winter months are invariably the best of the year."

Business Satisfactory. "Business has been very satisfactory this fall and we are confident that the holiday trade will exceed that of last year."

Stressing how vital good crops are to the prosperity of a country, Mr. Crummer pointed out that this year's yield in Western Ontario had boosted the retail trade considerably. District farmers seem to be in very satisfactory circumstances, he stated.

The Cowan manager asserts that radio should be one of the strongest factors of successful general hardware business from the present on. In the past few years the industry has not been very lucrative from the retail standpoint on account of the vigor of the experimental stages, but now indications are that radio has reached a stability point which will make it possible for retailers to concentrate profitably on this line.

Sets Now Standard. "Sets being built today are of such a quality as to win the confidence of the prospective purchaser more readily than was the case one or two years ago," he affirmed. "Radical changes are becoming rare and the man who buys a radio now feels a better degree of assurance that his set will not be out of date in a few weeks. In our own business we have noted this stronger confidence in the greater number of sales made."

Cecil Smith Case Now Before the Privy Council. Associated Press Despatch. London, Oct. 22.—The Cecil Smith case, in which the supreme court of Canada recently decided that income received from illicit transactions, such as bootlegging, is not subject to the federal income tax, is now before the judicial committee of the privy council.

The committee today granted the dominion finance department leave to appeal from the supreme court's judgment in favor of Smith, and the question of whether profits arising within the province of Ontario in illicit liquor traffic are properly assessable for income tax purposes will be argued before their lordships in due time.

PRISONER TO FACE CHARGE OF OBSTRUCTING OFFICER

Constable Nelson was the victor and laid a charge against Kecheo before the crown attorney.

NOTHING DONE FOR LABOR MAN

Colbert Scores White's Inactivity in the House of Commons.

Frank White's claim of being a friend of labor is repudiated by the fact that he did not support one labor measure introduced on the floor of the house of commons in the past four years, John Colbert, city Labor candidate in the federal elections of Oct. 29, charged in an address to the employees of the McClary Adelaide street plant at noon today.

"Do not believe the Conservative candidate when he tells you that you are among the interests he has at heart," Mr. Colbert declared. "What did he do when the eight-hour day, the 44-hour week, the minimum wage and other measures were placed before the house for approval? Nothing."

Mr. Colbert also questioned why the premier did not take steps to form the tariff commission he advocated at the present time in the past three years. He saw plenty of opportunity, he claimed.

"Little is stealing a plank from the Labor platform when he advocates old age pensions," the candidate stated in part. "The workers' movement has been urging that law, unemployment insurance and other fair legislation for some time."

Women in industry was another matter in which governments of Canada have been negligent, Mr. Colbert charged. He pointed out that he himself saw how industrial plants were maintaining creches and kindergartens for the children of their female employees.

Present immigration policies were also under fire. The interest of railway and steamship companies in immigrants is far from sincere and wholly unprofitable, the Labor candidate claimed.

"Many prime objects is to dump as many shipments as possible into Canada," he charged. "The result is that our boys and our girls are being driven into the U. S. to get work. Immigration is all right, but it should be curtailed until our own men are employed. That is why unemployment insurance is one of the prime necessities of the day in Canada."

GOVERNMENT BACKS EXPORT OF APPLES

Hopes to Improve Demand For Ontario Fruit in British and Western Markets.

"From the standpoint of quality, this year's apple crop is one of the best Ontario has ever gathered," said Hon. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture. In view of this fact, the government feels justified in particularly commending it to the people of Ontario and elsewhere. We have a special interest in the crop because in the early growing months we were able to render considerable assistance to the growers in spraying the trees and the application of the best methods of production. Partly due to this fact, an extraordinary percentage of the crop will grade No. 1. We feel that the consumers should take advantage of the opportunity to secure this high class product at moderate prices.

In order to facilitate the marketing of this splendid crop, the government is rendering assistance in two ways. In the first place, it is supervising the grading and handling, and guaranteeing the price in connection with exports of certain leading standard varieties, to the extent of 25,000 barrels. Most of this will go into undeveloped markets.

It is expected to establish the name of Ontario for apples of high quality. A large part of the crop, of course, goes to the British market, and the western market, but there will be plenty left for the people in Ontario. In order to bring this opportunity to the attention of all the people, the department is sponsoring an advertising campaign which will place the value of apples prominently before the consumer by means of the daily and weekly press. Consumers will not only get good value for their money but will also assist in establishing more firmly an important branch of our fruit industry. The apples will be handled through the regular channels of trade and all that is necessary for the consumer to do is to ask for Ontario apples."

Behind the advertising of Ontario apples will be an intensive marketing drive in which all fruit dealers, wholesale and retail, and all growers are invited to co-operate. Mr. Martin is one of the most extensive advertisers of poultry and poultry products in America. He has a wide experience in advertising and other business promotion methods.
