After rounding the first buoy, the Constance set a spinnaker well forward, using it as a balloon jib, while the Glencairn held on under reaching jib for quite a time, when she followed her rival's example. Here something seemed to be the matter with the Glencairn's forestill and Durter with the Giencairn's foresail, and Dugter with the Giencairn's foresail, and Dug-gan took in his large jib. Both boats car-ried full mainsails, and the Giencairn ap-peared to gain slightly, and when the second buoy was rounded by the Constance it was shown that the Giencairn was now thirty-five seconds behind, having reduced her rival's lead by eighteen seconds. On the first leg of the second round, which was another beat to windward, the Giencairn held well on to the American ward. The Constance now followed new tactics by trying to force the Glencairn into the shore, so as to prevent the Canadian boat blanketing her, but the Glencairn went right ahead and finally succeeded in blanketing the Constance. The Glencairn began to pull a dittle ahead and as she neared the eight-mile buoy she slowly increased the distance between her and the Constance, rounding the buoy just twenty-two seconds ahead of the Constance, having gained one minute and three seconds in this two-mile run before the wind.
