

THE EVICTION OF PARNELL

HE AND GLADSTONE WERE LOVERS
ONCE BUT STRANGERS NOW.

The Anti-Parnellites Organize by Themselves—Mr. Parnell's Ejection—A Bitter Struggle—The Nationalists Split—Mr. Gladstone's Speech—His Letter to the Nationalists.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—At 10 o'clock today the Irish members of the House of Commons who are considering the advisability of rejecting Mr. Parnell from the leadership of the Nationalist party reassembled in the committee room of the House of Commons, which has been set apart for the purpose.

The first business transacted was the reading of Gladstone's letter. Gladstone remains firm in his determination to do no more than to support the Nationalists, and his position is emphasized by his letter, in which he offers to conduct negotiations with a new Irish leader, but he has no intention of supporting Parnell. A stormy debate followed.

Messrs. Barry, Sexton and Healy made a determined attempt to secure about a final decision of the question. They insisted that there be an immediate division of the members on the main question before the meeting, namely, the retention of Mr. Parnell as leader of the party. Finally Sexton gave Mr. Parnell his ultimatum, that if a decision of the question was delayed by the chairman (Mr. Parnell) after the meeting, he would hold a meeting of their own and decide for themselves whether or not to support Parnell.

At 5 o'clock the members reassembled. A strongly worded letter from Archbishop Walsh was read, demanding Mr. Parnell's removal. The reading of the letter produced a marked effect.

Mr. O'Connor moved the adoption of a resolution declaring that Mr. Gladstone's letter was not satisfactory, and that the Nationalists required assurances regarding the constabulary and land questions. The motion was seconded by Mr. Barry.

Mr. Abraham then made a motion that Mr. Parnell be removed from the leadership of the party. Mr. Parnell refused to allow the motion to be put, whereupon Mr. O'Connor, followed by 44 other members, left the room.

Parnell strikes McCarthy. An exciting scene arose when Parnell refused to put Abraham's motion. Mr. Parnell struck McCarthy, Mr. Parnell leaped across the table, struck Mr. McCarthy's hand, seized the resolution and threw it into the air.

The opponents of Parnell who withdrew held a meeting in a conference room and decided to support Mr. Parnell's removal. Mr. O'Connor assumed the chair of the meeting and the following resolutions were adopted.
