Lord Mount-Stephen, a distinction, if we mistake not, entitling him to a seat in the mistake not, entitling him to a seat in the function of the services of Lords. Lord Mount-Stephen purchased a fine estate in England and has taken up his residence there, thus becoming the founder of a family of the English nobility. At the time Mr. Van Horne became a British subject American newspapers accused him of having a similar ambition; and there may be some grounds for the accusation. At any rate it is rather a laudable ambition for even a sovereign citizen of the greatest republic on earth. WHITMAN-HALL. The marriage of Mr. Edwin Whitman, of Clarence, to Miss Mary Hall, which was performed on May 23rd, by the Rev. F. M. Young, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, Beaconsfield, was followed by a reception in the evening, given them on their arrival in Clarence at his home, to which a large number of relatives and friends were invited. The bride was dressed becomingly in a suit of light brown cashmer with a spray of "forget me not's" entwined in her hair and in the lace at her throat. Both bride and groom looked the picture of happiness and, as usual on such occasions, a spray. Compable evening was spent. earth.
