A Close, Hard Man.

A hard, close man was Solomon Ray, Nothing of value he gave away; He houseded and saved, He pinched and shaved, And the more he had the more he crayed The bard-cained dollar he tried to gain;

Brought him little but care and pain; For little he spent, And all he lent

He made it bring him twenty per cent. Such was the life of Solomon Ray,

The years wont by and his hair grew gray, His cheeks grow thin, And his soul within Grew hard as the dollar he worked to win But he died one day, as all men must, For life is fleeting and men but dust;

The heirs were gav That laid him away, And that was the end of Solomon Ray.

They quarreled now who had little cared

For Solomon Ray while his life was spared. His lands wore sold, And his hard-carned gold All went to the lawyers, I am told.

Yot men will cheet and pinch and save, Nor carry their treasures beyond the grave. All their gold some day Will melt away,

Like the selfish savings of Solomon Ray. -Ohristian at Work

Expressions Which Should not be Used by Gentlemen.

They come to us in letters, in communications from men who ought to be educated, from lawyers, from bankers, from secretaries of societies, from delegates to General Conventions, from clergymen, from all sorts of men, and they annoy us, they make us have a low opinion of human nature, cause us to hang our heads and blush for the weakness and wickedness of Adam's children, and finally they seriously injure our appetite.
Please, dear friends, be considerate.

Do not write "while these events were transpiring," when you mean "while these events were occurring," Do not say or write demise when you mean death. Do not write eventuate or inaugurate if you can help it, and you can by earnest effort. Do not call a man reliable when it is just as easy to call him trust-worthy. Do not, as a friend did the other day, say "it is too rough, in my opinion, for this section," and thereby make people suspect you have been trained as a govern-ment surveyor, but not trained in the use of the English language. Why not say in English, and not in Yankee, "this part of the country," "this neighbourhood," this comcountry," this neighbourhood," this community, anything in fact, but the vulgarism "this section." Also, please do not write us about something that occurred in "our midst." Keep all that for your "medical man," as our English cousins call him.

Moreover, when you approve something, or somebody, he merciful and do not endorse it or him. Do not get on people's backs in that fashion.

Plain prople, quite uneducated people, usually speak nervous and idiomatic English. Men of the best culture do the same. The people who abuse our noble tongue after such fashions as we have mentioned are semi-educated, affected, and offensive.
The plainest and simplest speech is the

And it becomes all cultivated people to guard the purity of their speech. There is a moral question here.

In the long ran we do not believe that people who say eventuate, inaugurate, demise, "in our midst," etc., can remain henest, upright people. There is a moral lack somewhere. To outrage the language of one's native land is a crime, and leads to other crimes.—Church Journal.

One of the features in Bombay is in the One of the features in Bombay is in the Towers of Silence. The existence of these Towers of Silence is due to the curious system the Parsees have of dealing with their dead. They do not bury in the ground, for that would defile the earth, it being one of the four elements which they venerate. Neither would they throw a hady into the same as well as at times a part of the same as well as the same as well body into the sea, as we do at times; nor into the river, which the Hindoos are in the habit of doing, for that would defile the water, another of the elements. Nor could they possibly burn their dead, for could they possibly burn their dead, for that would desie the fire, which to them is a peculiarly sacred element. To avoid these defilements they build a tower, and the dead are placed on the top of it, so that they are out of sight, and yet there they may go through the process of decay, which would no doubt be rapid in a hot climate like India; but this rapidity is assisted by a colony of vultures, who keep possession of the palm-trees, and are ready to swoop down when a "silent" addition is added to these towers. There is a house attached, called the suggree, in which prayer, and some sacred ceremonies which prayer, and some sacred ceremonies are gone through for the dead. When the body is carried from this the face is uncovered, so that all may have a last look; and no one except the bearers of the body is allowed to enter the doors which leads to the upper part of these Towers of Silence. But who are the Parsees? The visitor is But who are the Parsees? The visitor is not long in Bombay before he becomes familiar with the sight of the Parsees walking on the beach and saying their prayers to the sun. They walk about, each by himself, with book in hand, muttering in slightly audible words, the ritual of their language, which has come down to them much as the Latin has in the Catholic Church, and is more or less a deed language. kindly received by the Hindoos, and were allowed to settle in the country, where they have since remained. They made an agreement at the time with the Hindoos, one article of which was that they would not kill a cow. This was out of deference to Brahminical ideas, and that is the reason they do not cat beef, but not from any prohibition in their own religion. The absence of restrictive rules as to caste and prohibitions as to food gives them greater liberty of action, and enables them to travel. This is why so many of them now come to this country, and it may exp in the great success they have achieved in business, which is one of the causes of Bombay success in trade, as the Parsees form a most important portion of the native community there.

Turkish Tobacco.

More smoking is carried on in Turkey, More smoking is carried on in Turkey, relatively to the population, than in any other country. Your Turk has the pipe always in his mouth. It may be estimated that among 30,000,000 inhabitants of the Ottoman Empire, 75,000,000 pounds are smoked per annum, nearly all being consumed in the pipe. The annual expertation is of the value of £1,700,000. The revenue of the tobacco crop is farmed, the assessment and collection of the tax being left to the municipal bodies. The tax, which is called marourye, is levied at the place of preparation, and amounts to about place of preparation, and amounts to about 1s. 2d. per pound.

Turkey

The British Government has resolved to give a general support to the Austrian Note from Count Andrassy, which had already obtained the approval of Russia and Prussia. In this the Government undertakes only the moral obligation to aid the other powers in giving effect to the principle of the Note, which is, to restore tranquillity to the disturbed districts, and to obtain and perpetuate the proposed reforms. But with regard to the measures which it may be deemed advisable to adopt, England reserves to herself complete liberty of judgment. The integrity of the Ottoman empire appears to be as much a point of fundamental importance as ever. It is evident that Engl nd could not possibly stand aloof in any attempt made for the regeneration of Turkey, even though her right of way through Egypt appears to be secured. A decided position ought however to be assumed, and that speedily. Some of the fairest lands beneath the sun have long been given up to Moslem rapacity and oppression, and the time has surely come when the Christian inhabitants should be able to claim some security for life and liberty. To be satisfied with merely giving a moral sanction to a harmless note will leave the matter just where it has been for many years past. We are therefore unable to acquiesce entirely in the remarks of the London Times when it says:--"We may be content for the present to know that our Government has neither declined its responsibilities nor committed itself to any objectionable principle or enterprise. We may hope that its influence, opportunely exerted, may remove the difficulties which beset the task of pacification." Two provinces, Herzegovina and Bosnia, are already in open revolt, and the others are ready to break out as soon as the opportune moment shall arrive; and it is said, probably with as much truth as any thing that has been said on the subject, that we may at once lay down the principle that, should experiment prove the necessity of constructing an independent administration, the precedent of Servia should be borne in mind, and the new Province should be assimilated to that principality in its political relations. It is supposed that in this case, entering upon its course under the protection of Europe, it would have at least as good a chance of improvement, social and political, as if it had been brought within the pale of any military monarchy, or placed under a special protectorate. It appears that the de-cision of the English Government was

A NEW RECIPROCITY TREATY, we regret to find, is one of the subjects now agitated by the Dominion Board of Trade. We believe that our relations with the Ohurch, and is more or less a dead language. The expounders of the Parsee faith say that they only pay homage to the sun as the visible sign of the Supreme Deity, and that their worship of fire is dictated by the same rule; and that in truth it is to God through these symbols their devotion is given. They have temples where the sacred fire is kept, and on which account they are called "fire-worshippers," but no stranger is ever admitted to them. The fire is brought from the city of Yezd, in Persia which is the sacred capital of religion, and from which they emigrated to escape the fury of Mohammedan zeal. They came to Bembay and Surat, where they were United States are quite close enough.

trade, and since that time we have obtained information upon the subject from residents of those islands which shows that we did not speak strongly enough about it, that it is almost impossible to overrate its importance to the whole of Canada, and that to cultivate that trade will be infinitely more serviceable to us than the best reciprocity treaty we can ever expect from the United States. There is not an article raised, or that can be produced in Canada, that would not find a ready market in the West Indies at highly remunerative prices, The West India Trade, we are informed, is a source of enormous profit to the United States; and we are sure that the merchants of Montreal and the shipping interest of the Maritime Provinces cannot do better than turn their attention to the subject at once .- Pominion Churchman.

The huge, drastic, griping, sickening The hugo, drastic, griping, sickening pills, constructed of crude, coarse and bulky ingredients, are fast being superseded by Dr. Pierce's pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Heibal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—the "Little Giant" Cathartic or Multum in Parvo Physic. Modern Chemical Science enables Dr. Pierce to extract from the juices of the most valuable roots and herbs their active medicinal principles, which, when worked into little pellets or granules, when worked into little pellets or grapules, each little Pellet as active and powerfulas a large pill, while they are much more palatable and pleasant in effect.

DR. IRA A. THAYER, of Baconsburg, Ohio, writes: "I rogard your Pellets as the best remedy for the conditions for which you prescribe them of anything I have ever used, so mild and certain in effect, and leaving the howels in an excellent condition. It seems to me they must take the place of all other cathartic pills and medicines.

Lyon & Macomber, druggists, Vermillion, D.T., says: "We think they are going to sell like hct cakes as soon as people get acquainted with them, and will speil the pill trade, as those that have used them like them much better than large pills.'

Hepatitis or Liver Complaint, DISPLISIA AND SICK HEADACHE

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

DAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left ide; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, avy nerally a considerable loss of me ry, accompanied with a painful sensation having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely immon up fortitude enough to try it. 'n fact, he distrusts every remedy. veral of the above symptoms attend the isease, but cases have occurred where tew of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.
