The Magazine of American History

Begins the Nineteenth Volume with the January Number, 1888.

This is the only magazine in the country devoted exclusively to history and the literature, antiquities and curiosities of history. It is conducted in a spirited and popular manner, and it is printed with such care and taste that it is a pleasure to turn its beautiful pages. There are two handsome volumes in each year, beginning with January and July. With each successive volume an elaborate Index is carefully prepared and added, enhancing the value of the work, particularly for reference, in a measure that cannot be over-estimated. It forms also an unique gallery of historical portraits. There is no work in existence more absolutely indispensable to the well-chosen library, whether public or private, or more desirable and appropriate for the cultivated home and the study-table. Schools, colleges and libraries have found it a necessity. Subscriptions may begin at any time, and all booksellers and newsdealers receive them, or remittance may be made direct to the publishers. Price $5 a year. The price of the bound volume is $3.50 for each half year, in dark green levant cloth, and $4.50 if bound in half morocco.

STEWART'S SOLOILOQUIES.

The relinquishment of our fisheries! How unlike the British of two centuries ago are those of to-day that would, without a blow, give up a national inheritance, worth in revenue more than that of the whole Empire then. Our Canadian war-hips have simply maintained the construction put upon the treaty of 1818 by the Americans themselves the 60 years. And now, forsooth, because our fisheries have developed unlooked-for stores of wealth, are we to be asked to stand aside until the Empire's imperial friends have helped themselves of our abundance? The French and American Governments will know the false ground they assume in our waters. Nothing fishy at the corner Yonge and Gould Streets. STEWART.

The commerce of the world is based on the exchange of commodities peculiar to each country. The States grow luscious peaches, and Canadians buy them when in demand. Canada owns the finest cold-water rivers in the world. America as becomes a high-spirited nation, when in demand of their water privileges, should likewise buy, not steal them. The standard stamp of goods reliable found when you buy at the corner of Yonge and Gould Streets. STEWART.

Erastus Wiman, the crafty sphynx, while plotting to get hold of the franchises and valuable privileges of the Montreal Telegraph Company, threw dust in the eyes of Canadian simpletons by donating swimming baths and soft soap. Whose hands is he playing into now with his Commercial Union fact or bawmerang? Like the shareholders of the af-reasid company, how the farmers will whine when they find they have sold themselves and our country for less than a mess of pottage, or even thirty pieces of silver. 'Rastus why can't you be a Briton, since it's not all gold that glitters, all life to live, or death to die? Truth, principle and patriotism are surely more desirable than a traitor's grave. Come with us, 'Rastus, that with your and other help we may consolidate this northern hardy, self-continent into a repository of the universal respectabilities of the British Isles when the shall have decreed her departure. You are solicited earnestly solicited at the corner of Yonge and Gould Streets. STEWART.
