Ghent is Occupied By the Germans

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—A small troop of German cavalry entered Ghent this morning. The commander onferred with the burgomaster and municipal councillors, and the German colors were hoisted over the town hall. The Germans gave instructions at the postoffice and telegraph offices, and then left town. Ghent is midway between Antwerp and Ostend, being about forty miles distant from each.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(7 p.m.)—Notwithstanding the reassuring statement issued by the home office last Thursday to the effect that the spy system established by Germany in this country has been completely broken up, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, retired, is convinced that it still exists and constitutes a grave menace to the safety of the country.

In a letter published today Lord Charles calls upon his countrymen "to take strong action with regard to the crowd of alien enemies in our midst." He urges that "meetings be held in every town and that resolutions be adopted protesting against the present state of affairs and sent to the prime minister."

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Both sides are bending every energy for the campaign that will decide the fate of Ostend. The possession of this port would be of immense advantage to Germany, of much greater aignificance than the capture of Antwerp. To drive the assault home the Germans are undoubtedly bringing up every available man, both from Antwerp and such points as their centre and left can spare. Opposing these will be an equally numerous allied army, made up largely, it is rumored, of fresh British, Indian and Canadian troops. The battle may open at any moment and will probably be long and bloody.

has become an established incident of the Sabbath in the French Capital, four persons were killed and twenty wounded. This is one more death and six more wounded than first announced.

Despite the organization of an "air blockade" by French craft, two German aeroplanes appeared this morning and penetrated the line of air defenders. In a few minutes they dropped six bombs in various sections of the city, none of which did any serious damage. Neither was there a loss of life from the exploding bombs. Two of the deadly missiles were directed at the Northern Railway Station, falling between trains filled with presenters which were instant on the point of Wireless Telegraph Company:
