

other people. Press forward to the higher things in store for you. Let Christ have His own way in your soul, and a silent force will go out from you upon others which will be a benediction and inspiration to them. As the fragrance of the sandal-wood assures the sailors on the Indian Seas that they are approaching some islands long before they see them, so when Christ abides in your heart and has full control the world will feel the influence of His presence in you by the beauty and strength of your life without any words of your own. Let Christ have full sway in your soul, and you will find peace and continual delight.