A PROTEST.

Editor World: Just a few words in protest to the proposed salary increases in the city hall. While it cannot be denied that some of the officials are entitled to the increase recommended, it is equally true that some who Introduction of Graded Fare Syshave been slated for advancement are, in the opinion of many, not entitled to an increase this year. This is especially true in the case of the young man whose salary it is proposed to increase from $950 to $1300, an increase out of all proportion to the services rendered, and when it is borne in mind Manager Fleming believes that the that he has only been in his present sectional tariff for street car fares, as position a few months, the injustice of the case will appear all the more This is one case of which the writer is aware. Doubtless there are others, and in view of the many heavy demands upon the taxpayers in this city, occasioned by the increase of assessment and the absence of a reduction in the rate of taxation, it tation given, would, he considers, be well for the council to go thoroly into the most equitable for the people and the matter of salary increases with a view to ascertaining the reason why such advances have been recommended, and in granting same should be governed by the merit and ability of property a just and proper value, according to location, and not unduly inflate values at the outside limits of those recommended. In my opinion the increases are in many instances entirely too high, and in others they are not justified at all.

He stated that one time it was thought Ontario would not join other provinces in the demand for increased subsidies, as that province really did not need more aid. Most of the other provinces would not have required assistance now if they had administered the timber and other natural resources with roper economy. GRAND OPERA AT ITS BEST

ENJOYED'AT MASSEY HALL

Henry Russell should go down in history as the man who, with comparatively small capital, has gotten together an aggregation of artists who rival the most ambitious and expensive organizations of Conried and Hammerstein, for certainly nothing could have been more beautiful and artistic than last night's rendition in Massey Hall of "La Boheme"

To be sure the difficulties in the mechanical part of the opera, owing, to the late arrival of the scenery and the poor facilities of the Massey Hall stage, somewhat marred the perfection of the performance, but the magnificent acoustic properties of the hall more than counterbalanced this draw-

As to the opera itself, it is one of the best examples of what the French would call "Opera Comique." Sweet would call "Opera Comique." Sweet and sensuous and beautiful, full of color and light, as is its music, it yet falls short of the tragic intensity of the Wagnerian or even the older schools of French and Italian grand opera. It lacks meat and substance.
To compare it to "Tannhauser" or
"Lohengrin" would be to compare Gounod's "March of the Marionettes" with the funeral march of Chopin.

Alice Nielsen, who was, naturally, most interesting to Toronto audiences, has gone far since the days of "The Singing Girl" and the "Fortune Teller." Dainty, gay and coquettish in the first act, she rose to an intensity in the last act, which surprised even her most enthusiastic almirers, while her exquisite voice rang true, high and clear at every note.

Signor Constantino, as Rodolfo, won his audience with his first note. His voice is golden, his head notes perfect, being absolutely free from the slightest suggestion of the falsetto, which so often mars the work of the Italian tenor. In his love duets with
