All New York, so it seemed, went to Sheepshead Bay to-day, and when boots and saddles were sounded for the first race, the grandstands and lawns were packed with a typical suburban crowd—good-natured and enthusiastic. A June sun never smiled more sweetly on a racing assemblage. A smart shower in the morning served to jay the dust and left the track vary fast. A smart shower in the morning served to hay the dust and left the track very fast. A cooling breeze tempered the heat of a hot sun, and the scores of thousands were able to witness the races in comfort:

August Belmont's five-year-old Blandy was the only entry withdrawn from the seventeen horses that were carded to face the starter's flag. When the sixteen loped slowly past the grandstand, their riders' bright colors flashing in the sunshine, there was a wild cheer from the excited crowd. The dollars of the crowd had been poured into the betting ring on Electioneer and James R. Keene's entry. It is announced that in all probability Nell, the Halifax oarsman, will be competitor in the senior singles at the Canadian Henley regatta at St. Catharines in August. Selby Henderson, the old Victoria oarsman, will scull in the colors of the Winnipeg Rowing Club in this event, so that the race will be of nterest from coast to coast.

At Philadelphia, in a six-round fight before the National Athletic Club Wed delphia easily out-pointed Johnny Sum-mers of England. The latter was fought all over the ring, and at no time was Erne in danger. Erne knocked Sum-mers down in both the fourth and sixth rounds. If the fight had gone a little further, Summers would probably have taken the count. The Englishman showed his usual pluck.

T. C. Flanagan of the Irish-Canadian Athletic Club returned from New York vesterday after a jaunt to Gotham to arrange for a team of Irish-Americans or the Irish-Canadian C.A.A.U. games at the island oval on July 20. Jersy City Forfeits Game To Toronto in the Sixth

City, a more fitting and appropriat name might be the "Gay Cats."

Pfanmiller was not only caught but blocked off second, Umpire McCarthy gave the game to Toronto, with the locals ahead 2-0. It was a case of give Applegate and Pfanmiller were the opposing twirlers, the former being in rare form, and, judging from his pitching the six innings, the visitors were billed for a shut-out. Pfanmiller was not so fortunate, Kelley's Pets bunching hits in the third, that notched two counters.

Jack Flynn, who was in the game at the initial corner for the locals, was given a great reception when he came to bat the first time, and responded with a long fly to centre field. Kelley was at second and Thoney was again in his usual position.

a long fly to centre field. Kelley was at second and Thoney was again in his usual position.

Jersey City were retired in order in the first three innings, even if Vandergrift did make a single in the third. He was nailed off first on a good throw by Applegate and Flynn's quick work. In the fourth Clement drove a hard one down to Flynn, who fumbled. The runner was sacrificed along by Bean, going to the last quarter on Keister's out. He died on third, as Hanford struck out.

Only three men faced Applegate in the fifth, while in the sixth Vandergrift singled, but was forced at second by Pfanmiller, who made the middle cushion on Clement's safety to first. Pfanmiller was caught cold off second, and as it was Bean's turn to bat he raised a kick, being joined by his other corner lot hoodlums. During the wrangling Applegate welked over and handed the ball to Flynn. The next act. Clement walked off the bag and Flynn touched him, making the third out. This was another sore touch for the beefers, the final act being Umpire McCarthy proclaiming to the crowd that the game was forfeited to Toronto 9-6.

Toronto scored in the third on three successive singles by Frick, Carrigan and Applegate, the first-named tallying on Applegate's bingle over-short. Thoney fanned, while Kelley filed to Hanford. Phyle smashed a liner to right and Carrigan, by good base-running and a pretty slide at the plate, beat Hanford's perfect throw on a close decision. Weidy was hit on the finger by a ball, but
