An extremely interesting article which I have just read describes the various processes of the women in charge of the hot rollers of washing and ironing, and incidentally the writer stops to admire the complexions of the women in charge of the hot rollers of the women in charge of the hot roll complexion should hasten to become a laundry maid in one of the big city laun-dries, where women have charge of the skin that a high-born lady might covet and not have. The reason is not far to seek. The moist heat induces perspiration and keeps the depuratory glands of the epidermis in full action—something that rarely happens with the rest of us, because we smother our skins with clothes, and we smother our skins with clothes, and throw all the work of cleansing the blood upon the lungs and the kidneys. It is not strange, either, that a cold is a rarity among the girls in a laundry, for all their

Upon this was placed a large cut glass bowl, filled with Roman hyacinths. English violets and maiden hair fern fronds, the fragrance of the flowers filling the whole room. Directly above the table, and suspended from the chandelier by green ribbons, was a huge ball of violets wreathed in smilax. These were the only decorations, but here and there over the snowy damask violets were strewn singly or in pairs, with an occasional delicate maiden hair fern frond trailing its shining black stem and tiny leaves against the white. The effect was altogether charming. At either end of the big circular table were Dresden candelabra, in which burned averted looks; yesterday all was as happy as a party given by a fond father over the return of his prodigal son. The Bishop, no matter what his enemies say, appears to exercise over the committee the enthraling powers which Almerio in Sardou's play, how at the Grand, has over Gismonda, for when seen by The World last night they declared one and all that the Bishop had imposed absolute silence on them.

Bishop Sweatman, however, was a little more communicative. He declared things had so advanced that he was now able to act, so the name of the winner is likely soon to be announced. Things look as if it will be Provost Welch's musical voice and honeyed words that will keep the audiences at St. James' awake, and that Rev. Arthur Baldwin will remain the hero of All Saints'.

Provost Welch said last night that the position had been offered him, but this was all he could say.

The Provost Gets It.

Unable to get any definite news of the as a party given by a fond father over the result of the conference at the Synod office yesterday, The World called up Rev. A. H. Baldwin, who supplied the missing link.

"Yes, I can tell you all about it," was the reply of the genial clergyman. "Both Bishop Sweatman and the committee have decided on Provost Welch, and the Bishop has so notified him."

"Do you think the Provost will accept?"

"He is cock-sure to do so."

"Did the committee or the Bishop write to tell you that you were after all not to be their man?"

"I got a letter from the Bishop saying how sorry he was. The reason given was Martial's epigram, 'I do not love thee, Dr. Fell, the reason why I cannot tell.'"

"Your own people will be glad at the news?"

"Yes; they wanted to sing the Te Deum

news?"
"Yes: they wanted to sing the Te Deum
this afternoon, but I wouldn't hear of it. I am quite satisfied," added the manly rector of All Saints'. "St. James' couldn't have gotten a better man than Provost Welch."

Affairs at the Synod office seem to change as swiftly as a biograph picture. A day or two ago the conference between Bishop and Pulpit Committee ended in high words and averted looks; vestorder in high words and averted looks; vestorder in high words and seem to change in high words and seem to change in high words and regard to Trinity."

Are Afraid of the Competition in Their Line From America. Paris, Nov. 29 .- A deputation of the Iron Founders' Association, headed by Senator Cordelet, waited to-day on the Minister of Commerce, M. Millerand, with reference to the new Franco-American treaty. Attention was drawn to the effect American competition would have on the 'ron industry of France, which, it was claimed, even under the general takin, was seriously handicapped. The Minister replied, promising to carefully investigate the claims of the iron founders.
