ELUSIVE MR. PRESTON. The City of Brantford must be heginning to see the part T. H. Preston, M.L.A., is playing in the solution of its telephone problem. Mr. Preston is a great advocate of municipal rights on on the side of the corporations.

Mr. Preston did not protest when the Conmee law was placed on Ontario's statute books. When the operation of cipalities desiring to own and operate their own public utilities, he discouraged the demand for its repeal. When the City of Kingston was contesting a defined municipal issue before clearly defined municipal issue before the Ontario legislature, Mr. Preston again declined to champion the cause oi the municipality.

For a man who makes virtuous pretensions, T. H. Preston is about as courtesy and charity. good a sample of corporation friend as is to be found in the Ontario legislature. The house of lords, as now appears, dealt with the question as involving simply the legal construction of the Physicians documents constituting the trust and embodying the standards of the Free Church. The judges, whose opinions ruled, did not consider it any part of their duty to introduce as an element To Use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the case the possible consequences of their judgment. In this they only discharged what have always been considered the proper functions of a court of law. Their point of view could not be better summarized than it was in the dictum of Lord Eldon, quoted by the lord chancellor, "that he knew of no case where a minority by adhering to case where a minority and the case where the case a London crowd knows how to behave itself and try to help the policy to case a London crowd knows how to behave itself and try to help the policy to case a London crowd knows how to behave itself and try to help the policy to case a London crowd knows how to behave itself and try to help the policy to case a London crowd knows how to behave itself and try to he discharged what have always been conno case where a minority by adhering to the original opinions of the sect to which it belonged forfeited their right." On the face of it this seems sound, both in law and equity, and of itself would have sufficed to vindicate the claim of the Free Church minority to fair and reasonable consideration. But the lords went a step further and held that by departing from the original constitution and standards of the Free Church the majority had excluded themselves from and standards of the trust created to hold and administer its property. Here, of course, there is room for difference of opinion. But it should be remembered to the section of the liver of the content of the whole affair by their conduct.
