WALL STREET AND BANKERS OF STATES SAY HELP ENTENTE

Proposal To Lend Allies Billion Dollars Meets With Enthusiastic Welcome

Prominent Men Behind the Idea—Semi-Official Endorsement of Golden Bells Plan is Made Public

New York, March 24.—Wall Street's prominent bankers give their unqualified endorsement to a suggestion of W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, that the United States government lend its credit to England and France to the extent of a billion dollars in case of war. It was the consensus of opinion among them that by giving financial assistance to this country would render the greatest service in its power to the Allies.

It is understood that the suggestion should be offered to the Allies by the United States on a very large scale in the event of the United States becoming involved in the war with Germany. President Wilson concurred with the board.

New York bankers, although they strongly favored the suggestion, were not taken into the administration's confidence. James A. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, said:

"Recent developments have put us squarely into the situation. It is now our duty to do everything within our means to assist England and her Allies, both financially and otherwise. Harding's suggestion that the credit of this country be made available is a good one. Any plans for lending financial aid that are proposed by our government will undoubtedly be fully supported by banking interests."

Another banker said: "We are a nation of military infants. But we are giants in finance. Financing the war should therefore be our task. Lending to the Allies would make us most immediately and fearfully effective."

The belief was expressed in investment circles that the remarks of Mr. Harding would help the public sale of the $100,000,000 French loan just announced and such other Allied financing as may come along within the next few weeks.

Mrs. Jane Trenholm, widow of Thomas Trenholm, of Belfast, is dead at her home in Cape Spear. Mrs. Trenholm was the last survivor of the family of one Archibald McKay, who with his wife and family migrated from the north of Scotland early in the nineteenth century and settled at Cape Tormentine on the farm now occupied by James Seaman, at which place the deceased was born ninety-six years ago. Her husband died about eleven years ago after having enjoyed considerable over sixty years of married life. Mrs. Trenholm is survived by children, grandchildren and great grandchildren—study men and women; also by great great grandchildren almost grown up. Her sons are Robert C. Isaac and Millidge, of Cape Spear; Wm. C. of Port Elgin, and Stephen in the west.

Tenders will be received until 31st instant, addressed Tucker Park, P. O. Box 11, City, for the purpose of furnishing the Tucker Farm on the Sandy Point road for the present year. Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. J. R. ARMSTRONG, Treasurer. 57086-3-32
