A "GET TOGETHER" MOVEMENT IN SUSSEX

Important Matters Discussed on Occasion of First of Series of Addresses Arranged by Mayor Wallace

Mayor Wallace of Sussex, with the idea of making things pleasanter for the citizens of the town, has been instrumental in getting their next little hall thoroughly renovated and painted, with pictures on the walls, and trophies won by the firemen in various competitions prominently displayed, with the result that they now have admirable quarters in which to spend the evening and to which to invite their friends. Mayor Wallace has also arranged for a series of fortnightly addresses to the firemen and their friends.

The first of these, which formally opened the newly furnished room, was given Monday evening. Chief Daley was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of firemen in their natty uniform, as well as of other citizens.

A. M. Belding of St. John delivered a short address on "The Community Spirit." After directing attention to the different elements making up a community, the speaker gave illustrations from his own experience in the city of St. John, showing how he became interested in the work of encouraging the growth of a community spirit, to promote such reforms as an industrial or prison farm, well equipped playgrounds and clubs for boys and girls, a Children's Aid Society, a movement for better housing, and others which could only be brought about by community effort. He urged the importance of the people forgetting their minor differences and organizing to promote the general welfare of the town.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mayor Wallace, Dr. George N. Pearson, S. H. White, Dr. McAllister, Rev. Mr. Parker, Gordon Mills, Garfield White and J. A. Freese took part in a very interesting discussion which is likely to lead to good results. Rev. Mr. Parker made a plea for more organizations in the town, and for more active participation in the work of the town, and Mr. Belding endorsed this view, adding that there was likely to be more harm than good in multiplying the number of organizations. It would be better to establish a working agreement between those in existence and coordinate their forces. He suggested that the room of the firemen might very well be made a people's forum for the discussion of town matters, and if it were desirable to have larger meetings of citizens the assembly room of their splendid school building, which was the property of all the people, would be very desirable place.

Dr. Pearson and Dr. McAllister protested vigorously against that spirit in the town which is always ready to criticize the town council without having a knowledge of town affairs, and all the speakers expressed the view that a get-together movement would be of much benefit. Rev. Mr. Parker and Dr. Pearson both referred to the necessity of town planning, and it was suggested that there would be a good thing for Sussex to have a visit from Thomas Adams, the town planning expert of the Conservation Commission.

The mayor and other speakers paid a splendid tribute to the Sussex firemen, and congratulated them on the cosy appearance of their home. The next address will be delivered by Dr. McAllister on the subject, How to Keep Well.

The Man In The Street

The grouch who has been kicking all winter because the mild weather was "unseasonable" is now beginning to predict a long cold spring.

About two days in the trenches would teach a man like that to recognize comfort when he has it.

The soldier who wrote to the papers complaining that a small deduction is made from the pay to cover the cost of milk, not included in service rations, should get his share in a nursing bottle.

As if Przemel was not bad enough, he has now written about the battle of Przemysl—Better, though, than seeing English names as the scenes of battle.

Near time for me to introduce the sulphur and molasses spring tonic.

Reading in the trenches is probably an exciting diversion, but trying to read a newspaper in some of our street cars is not a much smoother task.

News headline: "Police station a house of mystery." From yesterday's doings with the firing and firing done, misery might well be added to the heading.

New York despatch speaks of "the banking of a plot to kill Mr. Rockefeller, and Mr. Carnegie, and other wealthy men with bombs." Presumably those not carrying bombs would not be troubled.

"George Guy" was the English name chosen by a Chinese arrested in Ottawa this week, but "George Sad" under the circumstances would do just as well.

With flour nearly 810 a barrel, substitutes might be welcomed.

Even the announcement that a steamer pays for itself, under present ocean rates, in two or three trips, will probably not cause a rush to charter the Ouzigony.

Candy manufacturers say that the bombardment of the Dardanelles can hardly be causing "Turkish Delight."

A new motto for City Hall—Six transit gloria mundi.

Thought He Could Do As Well
 A prominent member of the home guard is afraid that his small boy does not realize the seriousness of the work they are saving him upon themselves. He was preparing to leave home for the weekly drill the other evening and his wife watched him with wistful eyes. "Is daddy going out to play soldiers again?" he asked. "Why can't I go too?"

After breaking into a liquor store just a few doors above it, thieves last night ran down Main street past the North End police station, and escaped with their booty. At latest reports the police station is still safe.

Who Counted the Score?
 The Halifax Recorder in a recent comment said: "A St. John paper speaking of the Halifax-Sydney hockey match says: 'A similar match between Halifax and St. John would make good sport. Who'll move first, Black's or Vic's? Get busy someone. It ought to be a cinch to win in Halifax to get a score of 1,234.' It rather looks as though the Recorder's sporting editor was 'howling' in the wrong box. Set 'em up in the other alley!"

The Age of Style
 Comment by a woman on a recent motion picture of ancient Rome shown in the city: "O, yes, I liked the picture very well, but I would have liked it ever so much better if the players had only worn newer styles." She was probably looking for tips as to how to save her Easter bonnet trimmings.

Smiles From Sussex
 Mayor Wallace of Sussex tells a good story about the best speech he ever made. He did not know about it himself until he heard of a conversation between two men concerning a meeting one of them had attended. The latter assured the other that it was a very good meeting, and that the speeches were exceedingly good. The other asked who were present, and was given a list of names, including that of Mr. Wallace.

"Was he there?" said the other. "How do you know?"

"Fine, splendid, beautiful."
 "Why, what did he say?"
 "I never opened his yap."
 "Not to be outdone, Dr. McAllister tells a story about himself. When a much younger man he was called upon to speak, and talked for about fifteen minutes with a fluency which surprised himself, and he rather flattered himself that he must have made a very good impression. Driving home with his mother after the meeting the subject was not broached by either until near the end of the journey. Then he asked his mother how she thought he had got along with his speech. She replied that he had done very well, but had lost several good opportunities. Besides, she was sure he had lost them self.

"You had several fine opportunities to sit down."

Total $17.50.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS

The evangelistic meetings in Douglas Avenue Christian church were opened with a large attendance last night and an interesting address was given upon "How Christ Would Win Men in St. John." The earnest appeal of Evangelist L. C. McPherson resulted in one making the decision for the Christian life. An efficient chorus led the singing which was enthusiastically taken up by the congregation.

FAIRVILLE NEWS

The Fairville Brotherhood met in regular session last evening. An instructive address on Constitutional Law was delivered by A. W. Worrell. He traced the laws in vogue in England years ago, and gave an interesting outline of the present constitution of England. The address was attentively followed and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered by David Linton, Jr., seconded by Charles Ellsworth.

It was announced that arrangements had been made with Rev. T. Albert Moore of Toronto to deliver a mass meeting for men this month and the programme committee was instructed to communicate with all lodges and men's organizations in Fairville, enclosing invitations.

Last evening the Triangle Club met at the home of Walter Ross, Prospect street, with a good attendance. President H. P. Allingham occupied the chair. An address was delivered by Rev. Gilbert Eagle on "English Social and Political Conditions" which included a resume of the history of the English land system. The speaker outlined the chief differences in the two great parties in England. Reference was also made to home rule, the insurance act, unemployment act and other measures of interest.

Vocal solos were contributed by Eddie Osborne and Mr. Fry. A new visiting committee for the month was appointed composed of Harvey Aris, William Ring and J. W. Stevens. Refreshments were served and all report the meeting most enjoyable from every standpoint.
