One Sculptor Delivers 12-Hour Hyde Park Talk Against Other

LONDON, June 16—A curious scene was enacted in Hyde Park yesterday. It had to do with the agitation against the memorial executed by Jacob Epstein, sculptor, to W. H. Hudson, famous naturalist and writer, who died in London in August 1922. Premier Baldwin unveiled this memorial on May 10 last, and it has been the subject of bitter criticism on the ground that it was lacking in artistic merit. With the object of concentrating the attention of the public and parliament on the demand for the removal of the memorial, a sculptor named Hague undertook to deliver a twelve hours' continuous oration denouncing the panel. Hague appeared before the memorial at 8 o'clock in the morning with a supply of sandwiches and began his oration to an audience of stragglers, which only grew to any extent towards evening. The speech was continuous except for interruptions for the consumption of sandwiches and altercations with bystanders who asserted that the orator was a nuisance. The police treated the affair as a joke and declined to interfere with Hague, who attempted no oratorical flights, was allowed to complete his self-imposed task despite the almost overpowering heat of the sun.

MASKED MEN WORK AS HOME BURNS DOWN

Powder Magazine Fired—Other Blazes Are Put Out

TROOPS ARRIVE

Barbed Wire Defences Placed Around Dominion Coal Company's Offices

GLACE BAY, N. S., June 16—Incendiaries were virtually in possession of the mining town of Reserve last evening and as a result of premeditated depredations, several buildings are in ashes.

The home of Don McNeil, a coal company stampan, who is employed at Sydney, was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. His barn nearby also went up in flames. The powder magazine at Reserve was burned shortly before the McNeil residence was set on fire, and later the old property and carpenter shop was destroyed.

FIXTURES SAVED.

Don McNeil's house is corporation-owned property, and were it not for the good work of Chief of Police Dannie Martin of Reserve all the personal fixtures in the place would have been destroyed. Relatives of Mrs. McNeil, who first attempted to save the furniture, were seized by masked men in the crowd. Chief of Police Martin, however, took a hand in matters and, with others among the strikers, took the furniture from the burning building.

Patrols from the United Mine Workers saved the warehouse, the bank head and the corporation's store. Fires were set at all these places, but were extinguished before much damage had been done.

TRESTLE FIRED.

At 2 o'clock this morning the Hub trestle was set on fire, and partially destroyed. This property is situated some distance from the No. 2 colliery, and during the coal shipping season cool towers from the banking station are rescreened there.

The lamp cabin at Reserve Mines was set on fire, but the blaze was extinguished before it could make any headway.

TALK WITH MURDOCK.

John W. McLeod, president of the United Mine Workers of Nova Scotia, and District Secretary Alexander McKay, conferred with Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, at Sydney, who will try to bring the British Empire Steel Corporation officials and officers of the Union together, to negotiate a settlement.

GET STEAM UP

For the first time in several weeks, smoke is pouring from the stacks at No. 2 colliery today. This morning the boilers were fired and by this afternoon steam will be up.

No. 2 colliery plant will generate enough power to operate the mines in the Glace Bay area, and vicinity. The plant is being put into operation for the purpose of running the pumps at the different collieries.

MORE TROOPS

Today two hundred troops and numerous officers are encamped about the general warehouses and the Dominion Coal Company general office, Glace Bay.
