Fire was discovered on Monda night in John J. Noonan's store, in time to prevent the blaze from spread ing. The building was saved, but th goods were much damaged. To the heroic efforts of the large crowd present is due the credit of keeping the fire under control, more than to the town officials, who were exactly an hour in getting the engine and its appliances to the building on fire. BABY'S OWN TABLETS

In the home nest every little one requires an ever watchful eye and when a trace of illness is noticeable the remedy should be promptly applied.

The little ones are frail. Their hold upon life is slight. The slightest symptom of trouble should be met by the proper corrective medicine.

Baby's Own Tablets are a scientific preparation, prepared from Dr. Williams' own prescription and have proved by their record and their success to be the ideal medicine for infants.

For Sour Stomachs,

colic, fever, constipation, all bowel troubles, irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth, sleeplessness and similar symptoms these wonderful tablets are without an equal.

Every mother should use them for the very good reason that they do not contain opiates or stupefying drugs.

They act directly upon the organs which cause the troubles and gently but effectively remove that cause and bring back the condition of perfect and hearty health.

Baby's Own Tablets have a record surpassing that of any other medicine making similar claims.

Ask the druggist for them. If you do not find them, send 25 cents direct to us and we will forward a box prepaid.

GALES AND WRECKS.

Vessels from New Brunswick Ports More or Less Damaged.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Nov. 12.—The schooner Douglass Haynes, of Bath, Me., Capt. Blaisdell, from Port Johnson for Hallowell, Me., with a cargo of 258 tons of coal, is sunk between Shovelful and Pollock Rip Shoals with her three masts projecting out of water. Capt. Blaisdell and his crew of four men were rescued by schr. Luther T. Garretson and landed here this afternoon, after haying suffered terribly from exposure. The disaster. was seen yesterday morning from the shore at Chatham, but owing to the thick weather and heavy seas, no help could be given. Capt. Blaisdell of the Douglass Haynes atates that when on Nantucket shoals on the morning of the loth instant, he enceuntered a violent gale from the northwest and anchored between Sovelful and Pollock Rip shoals about 8 a. m. The vessel rode out the gale all right until late in the afternoon, when the heavy sea caused her to leak badly. All hands were kept constantly at the pumps in an effort to keep the vessel free, but the water gradually gained and at 3 o'clock yesterday morning it became evident that the vessel must sink, as the decks were then nearly awash. Capt. Blaisdell and the crew climbed into the rigging, this being the only chance of saving themselves, as the sea was running too high to allow them to use their yawl boats. Thirty minutes after all hands had secured themselves in the rigging the vessel went to the bottom. As she struck she careened over on her side, dipping her masts in the water and the five men were obliged to hang on for their lives to keep from being washed from the rigging by the force of the waves. VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Nov. 12.-The waves.

Fortunately the vessel soon righted herself and lay on the bottom with her masts out of water and the men were able to stay in the rigging until 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when they were sighted by Capt. Saunders and crew of the schr. Luther T. Garretson, from Boston for Brunswick. Ga.

The gale had at this time moderated somewhat and the Garretson's yawl boats were launched and rescued the half frozen seamen. They were landed here at four o'clock this afternoon and are being cared for at the Seamen's Bethel. They saved nothing from the vessel.

was owned J. Manchester Haynes of Augusta.

The two-masted schooner reported from Chatham as having been seen to go to the bottom this afternoon, was the schr. Mark Pendleton. The vessel did not go to the bottom, as first believed, but careened and filled and has since been drifting about off Pollock Rip. Her crew were landed at the lightship, and later taken to Boston by the U. S. revenue cutter Seminole. The Pendleton, which was bound from Providence for Bangor, light, was in collision last night about 6.30 o'clock five miles southwest of Highland light with schr. Ligzie D. Small, St. John for Bridgeport, Conn. Both vessels, which were considerably damaged, were taken in tow by the steamer Herman Winter, Boston for New York, but early this morning when off Pollock Rip, the Pendleton's hawser parted and she went adrift. The Herman Winter proceeded to this port with the Lizzie D. Small, arriving here about noon.

The Episcopal convention has sat an has risen again, and the privileges of the innocent party in divorce remain unabrided. Marriage, as heretofore, may be committed by the innocent party with the description of the innocent party with the church's blessing. Innocent parties with the church's blessing. Innocent parties with the church's blessing. Innocent parties with the church carry, who seem papistical tendencies in the movement to make the Episcopal marriage rules mornearly like those of the Church of Rome. The High Church party seem not to have shown much accession of strength this year Besides the failure to restrict the innocen party, they failed to bring about a change of church name. They would like to be "Catholics:" but their brethren, though respecting their sentiment, are satisfied as yet to be "Protestant Episcopalians," and are like so to continue to the end.

Divorce was also considered by the Congregationalists at their National Triennial Conference, which closed at Portland, Mecon October 17. Their conclusion was practically the same that was reached by the Episcopalians. They viewed with misgiving the increase in divorces, and wished that folks would behave better, but resolved not to question the propriety of solemnizing the marriage of an innocent party.

The innocent party seems to stand well in the community. In these two large bodies of Protestant Christians it seems to be felt that she has trouble access.

P. E. ISLAND NEWS.

A telegram received by Mrs. D. M. McIntyre of Charlottetown informs her of the sad news of the death of her sister, Mrs. A. G. Forland, which took place at Cliftondale. Mass. on the 7th inst. Deceased was the third daughter of the late Senator Montgomery of Park Corner.

Saturday morning while the unveiling of the old French cannon was in progress at Charlottetown, James Murley, the young son of Isaac Mur ley, received painful injuries to his face and eyes by the explosion of a cannon cracker. He had picked it up, and while blowing on it, it exploded in his face. There is a prevalent, impression that the steady increase in drunkenness in Charlottetown of late is in some election in West Queens. A statement to that effect has been wired abroad nd is obtaining circulation in the mainland newspapers. Surely nembers of the government of the day are not willing to remain under such an imputation. The remedy is to enforce the law. It is a painful fact that illegal sale of liquors is increasing. It would be more painful still to believe that this arises from the consent or connivance of those in author-

RICHARD CROKER'S COLLECTION OF CARTOONS.

Richard Croker has published for his own private distribution a volume of perhaps three hundred cartoons, which he is the subject. They represent the best work of the kind. Twenty-five copies of the collection have been thoughtfully presented by Mr. Croker to leading newspapers. Harper's Weekly is well represented in the volume by the ingenious cartoons of W. A. Rogers, whose work has been a powerful influence in the anti-Croker campaign in New York city.

Baron Von Edelsheim Talks of Conflict With England. (New York Sun Correspondent.) BERLIN, Nov. 9 .- Considerable attention

ttention is attracted here by a pamphlet ust published by Baron von Edelsheim, an officer in the chief general staff of the German army, in which he declares that Gerpany could throw 100,000 men on the English many could throw 100,000 men on the English coast within a very short time. The Baron put forward his statement as a matter of absolute certainty, and it is considered somewhat curious that he is permitted by his government to publish it. He also discusses the possibility of landing troops in Russia and France and proceeds to contemplate the hypothesis of a war between Germany and the United States.

He starts from the assumption that Germany must one day be involved in a conflict because the growth of her traffic and commerce is a source of danger to Engflict because the growth of her traffic and commerce is a source of danger to England. He holds the opinion that Germany might hope to secure some success at sea shortly after hostilities began as the German navy would start mobilization first, but before long Englard would be able to set such powerful naval forces in action that Germany would be reduced to defensive tactics in which success could not be reckoned upon. His paper proceeds:

"England's weakness is our strength. The land forces of the English army correspond neither in strength nor in quality with her position as a great power. England is convinced that every hostile invasion can be prevented by her fleet, but this conviction is not by any means well founded.

prevented by her fleet, but this conviction is not by any means well founded. Even if England after a time could set in motion great naval forces, those which would be ready at the beginning are not so overwhelming that an opponent essentially weaker at sea, who has everything ready, may not have a chance of scoring a temporary success. Germany must throw part of her land forces on the English coast and thus bring the conflict to an issue on land, where German troops are much superior to English."

where German troops are much superior to English."

After summing up the shortcomings of England's land forces the Baron declares that only her present standing army and regular reserve can be counted on in case of sudden invasion, as the others would take a considerable time to mobilize. He observes:

"We must also take account of their slight fighting value compared with well trained German troops. The only troops ready in England for action are three divisions of the First Army Corps, about two divisions of the First Army Corps, about two divisions of the First Army Corps, about already in England for action are three division of the Third, together with three cavalry brigades. The strength of an English division on a war footing is only 10,000 men, while a similar German division numbers about 16,000 men. Germany can transport six infantry divisions to England in a very short time. How the operation could be carried out must not, of course, be explained here. But this can be said that it can be done within little more than thirty hours in favorable weather from German harbors in the North Sea. Large tracts of the English coast furnish good landing places for troops, and the country itself has so many resources that an invading army could live on them for a long time. On the other hand the island is not large enough to allow English troops to destroy a once victorious hostile army. It is unlikely that such a war would last very long and considerable renorcements would, therefore, not be needed."

FRENCH CANADIAN COWS. "The French settlers who first came to Canada were natives of Brittany and Normandy, France. The first cattle in Quebec, in 1620 or thereabouts, were brought, no doubt, from these two districts. No importations of other breeds worth mentioning are reported in the history of the province until about 1800. Between 1776 and 1850 a few herds of English cattle, mostly Ayrshires and Shorthorn, were brought into the province, but they were brought by wealthy Englishmen living near. Montreal and Quebec, where they are still to be found found but little favor with the French inhabitants in the poorer region and in the remote parts along the Laurentian and the lower parts of the St. Lawrence, both north and south, as they were loth to cross their hardy little cows with the larger breeds, fearing, with good reason, that they could sufficient feed to keep the larger animals alive, to say nothing of profit, during the seven months of the winter. Thus they have been kept distinct for over 25 years, and in-anin breeding has been resorted to to fix in a sure manner the characteristics of the breed. Thus they have much the appearance of the Brittany cattle of today. It may be noted that the French Canadian, ,t,he Jersey, Gurnsey, Kerry and Brittany cattle are all upposed to come from the same orgin, and the Brittany is usually alowed to be the older stock, the different breeds being modified by climate, care and perhaps individual characteristics of animals bred from, until they vary from the 500 pound Kerry to the Guernsey almost as large as the Shorthorn. The three qualities claim-ed for the French Canadians are hardiness, easy keeping qualities and richness of milk. As they are small, he cows averaging about 700 pounds each, they do not require large amounts of food. In form they are something like the Jersey, the color principally dark brown or black, with brown stripes on the back and around or brown with black points, brindle, or even yellow."
