This shows the confidence felt in the Doctor. Mr. Tilkey is complimented by the remark that "at any matter of illegal buying or selling, public or private, such as bribery, corruption, and common swindling, not, even lic or private; such as bribery, corruption, and common swindling, not even Mr. Tilley is more an fait than the hero of Spring Hill and the notorious Machabas scandal." This shows how completely Mr. Tilley is confided in by the Citizen. It cannot believe, for the reason assigned, that Mr. Tilley travelled in company with the Doctor for the single purpose of assisting in the bribery of members elect, as is shown by the following:

Probably, however the Dr. took Mr. Tilley with him for another and an additional reason. Persons who feel that their own character does not stand very well in general estimation like to be seen in the company of those they think are considered respectable. Perhaps Dr. Tupper thought the company of Mr. Tilley would recommend him to the parties he wished to influence in Nova Scotia on this ground if on no other.

New York's Decline

The World is seriously alarmed on account of New York losing the monopoly of the grain trade of the West, and with it the control of the import and expert trade of the country. It adds its voice to the others that have sounded the alarm and lots. Ground has been marked off for a country. others that have sounded the alarm and wisely says that the Western and Southern trade will be controlled by the port which the produce can reach the cheapest. The rivals it fears most are Montreal and Philadelphia, and is alarmed at the direct importations Chicago is making by the St. Lawrence route. The World says :-

Lawrence route. The World says:—

The transportation of a bushel of corn from Chicago to New York costs about 28 cents; add the price of transportation to Liverpool, about 22 cents, and the transportation from Chicago to that city amounts to more than double the price first paid for the corn. The Erie Canal is immensely out stripped by railroad transportation, and, since the completion of the various Canadian canals, this avenue and the railway avenues through New York have not been able to prevent a serious diversion of freights into Pennsylvania and through the Dominion as well. From Lake Michigan ports 12,060,000 to 15,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels of grain are annually shipped eastward and to Europe via the Saint Lawrence River. From 1866 to 1871 three was an average increase of Western receipts at Montreal of more than 120 per cent. For the same period there was an average increase of Western receipts at Philadelphia of 84 per cent., while the increase at New York was only 33 per cent. The trade of New York with the interior of the country is also hampered by excessive freight charges on the three railroad.

will be closed, and the railroads will have a complete monopoly.
Clearly all this must be changed if New York is to preserve the very foremost position as a port of exports or imports either, for Chicago has begun to import directly from Europe through the St. Lawrence. We need more railroads, more ocean steamers, more competition for carrying freights cheaply instead of combinations to carrying them dearly, and largely increased ing them dearly, and largely increased facilities for safe storage and transship

We observe that the organs of special business interests are encouraged by the propects of trade. They note that the goods taken out of bond did not sell at a reduction commensurate with the relief from the lowering of the duties. The advance in gold checked this tendency, while at the same time there were enhanced prices of products in Europe. So August found bare warerooms in the country and disappointment among buyers. But the country stocks must be kept up, and the traffic commences with a more decided harmony of views between the various parties to the trade. A wheat "corner in Chicago has been broken, to the great loss of sundry operators, who tried to "bull" wheat just has the harvest is coming in, and the farmers are unloading their crops, the "corner" was local in its influence, but its collapse will relieve a wide region, and give a stimulus to general trade. The trade of New York with the interior of the country is also hampered by excessive freight charges on the three railroad lines leading hence to the West. The New York Commercial Advertiser speaks very encouragingly of the prospects of an active healthy trade throughout the Union this Fall, and gives the following reasons for the faith that is within it:—

"There has been a marked lethargy in many branches of business this Sammer. This was caused mainly by the disposition to wait for the new tariff act to go into operation. The tea and coffee repeal was made effective on the first of July, and never before had there been seen such a stir in the market as was then exhibited. The dealers in these products en gros were overrun with orders. The first of August brought relief to hundreds of other interests, and goods were taken from bond at a Botton, Philadelphia and Chicago swalpathy is wasted when shown toward these reckless Western operators, who, to make or break, paralyze the business of whole States and keep the market in a panic. On the whole, then, the outlook is most favorable both to manufacturers and laborers. A lively trade, a rich harvest, and low prices are the promises of the Fall."

Look which way you will in the town of Winnipeg, the march of improvement still goes on: houses, steres, work-shops, and goes on: houses, stores, work-shops, and out-buildings. Convict labor has been largely used in the construction of this great work, the result of which is an artificial harbor of refuge, fifteen hundred acres in extent, facing. or which is an artificial harpor of rotuge, fifteen hundred acres in extent, lacing Cherbourg across the channel. There is yet to be completed a great fort at the sea end of the breekwater to serve as a protection to the harbor.

—Among the painful incidents connected with the loss of the ill-fated "Metis" is the triple bereavement of a Mrs. Martin. With her husband and two little children she was on her way Manchester, New Hampshire. Both father and mother were provided with life preservers when the steamer sank, and each took a child and plunged into the sea. When Mrs. Martin, in an insensible condition, was rescued from the water by the "Moccasin," the infant of eight weeks which she had in her arms before leaving the sinking vessel was gone. Her first inquiry on recovering her senses was for husband and children, and almost the first dead face she saw on the deck was that of her husband. No words can describe the agonizing grief which overwhelmed her on learning that she was a childless widow. Mrs. Martin is a Scotchwoman by birth, though she has a Scotchwoman by birth, though she has spent most of her life in this country, and she is only twenty-four years old.

PORTLAND, Sept. 20th, 1872. SIR,—I should like to ask the question, through your valuable paper, whether the road running to the right of Zion's Church, ast the residences of Messrs. Burpee, nider and Robinson, in the Town of Port-Snider and Robinson, in the Town of Port-land, is a public or a private one? If a public one, why is it that every Sunday two of the Portland police force are detail-ed from their ordinary duty to watch it and keep off persons, who are, and have been for some years past, without any in-terference, in the habit of walking there; also why should Major Robinson be per-mitted to horsewhip persons found there; as he not only has threatened to do but has already done. If the road is a private one then the public should know it without further delay, so as to prevent them from

[We should suppose that it could be any other man. - Ep.1
