GOOD MANNERS IN SCHOOL

There are many faults and vices which leve been but foo prevalent among school-boys, which a proper gendemanly feeling (even as this world considers a gentlemanly feeling) will tend to correct. For instance, to speak the truth uniformly and without any regard to the personal consequences to ourselves, is a thirty absolutely necessary to any one who would be considered a gentleman. Such a one would second a gentleman. Such a fine mean and disbonorable in the sight of God, but also a thing mean and disbonorable in the sight of man, and tending plausly to the injury and disorganization of society. A lie is a thing unworthy not only of a christian, but even of a gentleman; and hence we see BOYS.
