

putrid, offensive, unsound or unwholsome matter or substance found in any street or other place, be immediately removed and disposed of, so as most effectually to secure the public health.

(The best and safest place for their deposit where practicable is in the field, where by the plough they are at once removed as a dangerous nuisance, and converted into manure.)

3d. That all Cellars, Sinks, Cess-pools, Privies and places containing unwholsome matter or substance which require cleansing, emptying, altering or repairing in order to preserve the Public Health, be forthwith so cleansed, emptied, altered or repaired and abundantly sprinkled with lime, before the appearance of any contagious disease or epidemic.

4th. That all Stagnant Water about dwellings, yards, streets and in cellars, pits and vacant lots and other places be at once drained off, if practicable; and all hollow and wet places be filled up with fresh earth or sand; and all drains, sewers and water courses obstructed or stopped up be at once opened, so that the waters may flow freely and unrestricted; and where the Public Health is endangered from the want of Main Drains or Sewers in any street or place, that the proper authorities do forthwith cause the same to be made so as that all cellars, pits and vacant lots, in which water remains, may be immediately drained off.

5th. That where Swine are kept, if they occasion any bad or offensive odour, and especially if fed from the offal of Butchers' Sheds or Slaughter Houses, they be immediately removed to such a distance from any dwelling, so that the inhabitants may not be annoyed by such offensive odours.

6th. That Butchers keep their premises particularly clean, and dispose without delay of all the offal, excrements and remains of the animals slaughtered, in such wise as not to offend their neighbours or the public with the bad odours resulting from the putrid effluvia, so abundantly given off from such substances.
