PETER BRASS, ARCHITECT and VALUATOR,

Furnishes Plans and Specifications for any description of buildings at reasonable rates. Having been a Contractor for a number of years, he can give a correct price, in detail, for any building as soon as a pencil sketch is made, thereby saving the expense of making plans and specifications and asking tenders for ascertaining the price, and being a practical mechanic, all work will be specified in a definite manner. If construction is superintended it will be carried out to the satisfaction of the owners and contractors, thereby saving the expense very often in trying to find out what was agreed on.
