Neutrality Hard to Enforce Where the Belligerants Are So Close.

By Special Wire to the Courier] THE HAGUE, via London Nov 19.-Holland's difficult position as a result of the European war is shown by one week's reports from the coast and frontiers. Along the coast eighty mines of French, German and English make have come up on shore and exploding caused the death of nine persons and the wounding of five.

Over one hundred bodies, presumably of British sailors from sunken warships have been washed ashore and buried with military honors.

nearly 200 Belgians, who had been hiding from the Germans surren-dered to the Dutch army. They crossed the frontier in civilian clothes and then put on their uniforms, which they carried in bags and claimed protection in the Dutch international detention Dutch international detention camps saying that otherwise they would starve. Since the beginning of the cold weather a dozen Ger-mans have crossed into Holland, surrendered their arms and been sent to the detention camps,
On November 17 an apparently damaged war balloon floating at southern provinces and disappeared in an easterly direction. On November 18, a German patrol near Nieuweschans opened fire on Dutch frontier guards, mistaking them' for smugglers.

Through trains to Germany have been abolished while the trip across the North Sea to England, which formerly required seven hours, now takes 27 hours.

Lisbon Newspapers Say Further Re-inforcements will Sail Next Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 .- Portu guese newspapers arriving in New York again assert that a portion of he Portuguese army is at the front with the allies in Belgium and France It is now stated that additional reparations are being made and that the first army corps is to sail from Lisbon within a week. This is composed of 12 batteries of field artillery and the first, second, fifth and 16th regiments of infantry, besides several regiments from the 7th division. The organization of another army corps is under way to be made up of the second, fourth and fifth divisions.

Major-General, the Hon. San Hughes, in a characteristic speech, described Toronto's mobilization as "ridiculous nonsense."

"Give yourself time, good Master Wintersole, give yourself time!" said Chandos in a soothing voice.
"The papers!" gasped the little man. "Oh, my Lord Chandos, the pa-sir?"

"I swear by our good patron Saint Leonard, it is no fault of mine! I had locked them in my coffer. But the lock was forced and the coffer rifled."
A shadow of anger passed over the soldier's keen face.
"How now, Master Mayor? Pull your wits together and do not stand here babbling like a three-year shild. Do you say that some one hath taken the papers?"

'aken the papers?"
"It is sooth, fair sir! Thrice I have been Mayor of the town, and fifteen rears burgess and jurat, but never nee has any public matter gone awry through me. Only last month there hame an order from Windsor on a Tuesday for a Friday banquet, a thousand soles, four thousand plaice, two thousand mackerel, five hundred crabs, a thousand lobsters, five thousand and whiting—"
"I doubt not, Master Mayor, that you are an excellent fishmonger; but the matter concerns the papers I gave into your keeping. Where are they?" "Taken, fair sir—gone!" "And who hath dared to take it?"

Cock Badding shaded his keen eyes with his strong brown hand. "She has but just gone out," said he. "She is La Pucelle, a small wine-sloop from Gascony, home-bound and laden with barrel-staves."

"I pray you did any man join her at the very last?"

"Nay, I know not. I saw no one."

"But I know," cried a seaman in the crowd. "I was standing at the wharf-side and was nigh knocked into the water by a little red-headed fel-

"Alas! I know not. It was but for as long as you would say an angelus that I left the chamber, and when I came back there was the coffer, broken and empty, uson my table."
"Do you suspect no one?"
"There was a varlet who hath come with the last few days into my employ. He is not to be found, and I have sent horsemen along both the Udimore road and that of Rye, that they may seize him. By the help of Saint Leonard they can scarce miss him, for one can tell him a bow-shot off by his hair." off by his hair."
"Is it red?" asked Chandos eager ly. "Is it fox-red, and the man a small man pocked with sun-spots, and very quick in his movements?"

"It is the man himself."

Chandos shook his clenched hand.

swiftly down the street.
"It is Peter the Red Ferret once more!" said he. "I knew him of old in France, where he has done us more harm than a company of men-at-arms. He speaks English as he speaks French, and he is of such daring and cunning that nothing is secret from him. In all France there is no more dangerous man, for though he is a gentleman of blood and coat-armor he takes the part of a spy, because it hath the more danger and therefore the more honor."

"But, my fair lord," cried the Mayor, as he hurried along, keeping pace with the long strides of the soldier, "I knew that you warned me to take all care of the papers; but suraby there was no matter of great import in it? It was but to say what stores were to be sent after you to

"Is that not everything?" cried Chandos impatiently. "Can you not see, oh foolish Master Wintersole, that the French suspect we are about to make some attempt and that they have sent Peter the Red Ferret, as they have sent Peter the Red Ferres, as they have sent him many times be-fore, to get tidings of whither we are bound? Now that he knows that the stores are for Calais, then the French near Calais will take his warning, and so the King's whole plan come

"Then he will fly by water. We can stop him yet. He has not an hour's

"It may be that a boat awaits him at Rye or Hythe; but it is more like that he has all ready to depart from here. Ah, see yonder! I'll warrant that the Red Ferret is on board!"

Chandos had halted in front of his inn, and now he pointed down to the outer harbor, which lay two miles off across the green plain. It was connected by a long winding canal with the inner dock at the base of the hill, upon which the town was built. Between the two horns formed by the short curving piers a small schooner tween the two horns formed by the short curving piers a small schooner was running out to sea, dipping and rising before a sharp southerly breeze.

"It is no Winchelsea boat," said the Mayor. "She is longer and broader in the beam than ours."

"Horses! bring horses!" cried Chandos. "Come, Nigel, let us go further into the matter."

into the matter."

A busy crowd of varlets, archers, and men-at-arms swarmed round the gateway of the "Sign of the Broom Pod," singing, shouting, and jostling in rough good-fellowship. The sight of the tall thin figure of Chandos brought order amongst them, and a few minutes later the horses were ready and saddled. A breakneck ride down a steep declivity, and then a gallop of two miles over the sedgy plain carried them to the outer harbor. A dozen vessels were lying there, ready to start for Bordeaux or Rochelle, and the quay was thick with ready to start for Bordeaux or no-chelle, and the quay was thick with sailors, laborers and townsmen and heaped with wine-barrels and wool-

"Who is warden here?" asked Chan-dos, springing from his horse. "Badding! Where is Cock Badding? Badding is warden!" shouted the crowd.

A moment later a short swarthy man, bull-necked and deep-chested, pushed through the people. He was clad in rough russet wool with a scarlet cloth tied round his black curly head. His sleeves were rolled up to his shoulders, and his brown arms, all stained with grease and tar, were like two thick gnarled branches from an oaken stump. His savage brown face was fierce and frowning, and was split from chin to temple with the long white wale of an ill-healed wound.

"How now, gentles, will you never wait your turn?" he rumbled in a

Suffered Terribly Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been cured by "Fruita-tives". I suffered so much that I would not dare eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruita-tives". I did not wish to try them for I had little confidence in them but, seeing my husband's anxiety, I decided to do so and at once I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was cured. While sick, I lost several pounds, but after taking "Fruita-tives", I quickly regained what I had lost. Now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am completely cured, thanks to "Fruita-tives".

"It is the gentle Chandos!" cried some one in the crowd. "It is the good Sir John."

The rough harbor-master changed his gruffness to smiles in an instant.

"Nay, Sir John, what would you? I pray you to hold me excused if I was short of speech, but we port-wardens at the end of it?"

There was a rush for the boat; but the stout little seaman picked his men. "Go back, Jerry! Your heart is good, but you are overfat for the work. You, Luke, and you, Thomas, and the two Deedes, and William of Sandgate. You will work the boat. And now we need a few men of their hands. Do you come, little sir?"

"I pray you, my dear lord, to let me go!" cried Nigel.

"I will join you there, fair sir, and with the help of Saint Paul I will bring this Red Ferret with me."

"Aboard, aboard! Time passes!"

cried Badding impatiently, while already his seamen were hauling on the line and raising the mainsail.

"Now then, sirrah! who are you?"

It was Aylward, who had followed

It was Aylward, who had followed Nigel and was pushing his way aboard. "Where my master goes I go also," cried Aylward, "so stand clear, master-shipman, or you may come by a hurt."

"By Saint Leonard! archer," said Cock Badding, "had I more time I would give you a lesson ere I leave land. Stand back and give place to others!"

"Nay, stand back and give place to me!" cried Aylward, and seizing Badding round the waist he slung him into the dock.

There was a cry of anger from the crowd, for Badding was the hero of all the Cinque Ports and had never yet met his match in manhood. The epitaph still lingers in which it was said that he "could never rest until he had foughten his fill." When, therefore, swimming like a duck, he reached a rope and pulled himself hand over hand up to the quay, all stood aghast to see what fell fate would befall this bold stranger. But Badding laughed loudly, dashing the salt water from his eyes and hair.

"You have fairly won your place, archer," said he. "You are the very man for our work. Where is Black Simon of Norwich?" A tail dark young man with a long, stern, lean face came forward. "I am with you, Cock," said he, "and I thank you for my place."
