Trepoff was the detested enemy of the nihilists, and he was very anxious to obtain inside information as to their doings and plans. Suddenly one day in 1878 he was fired at while driving through the streets of St. Petersburg by no other than Vera Sassulitch. She was at once seized by the soldiery and was charged with the attempted murder of Trepoff, being tried in the ordinary manner; but, to the amazement of the public, she was acquitted!

On her release the nihilists gathered about her, desiring to admit such a friend of the people to their closest acquaintance. In this way she was admitted to all their private circles and was made acquainted with their secrets. These she at once communicated to the Russian government. The truth was that the whole business, including the attempt on his life was faked by Trepost himself. and it was simply a clever ruse to get from the nihilists what could not be got in any other way. Thereafter Vera Sassulitch played the part of government spy on innumerable occasions.

ANSWERED BACK.

Ready Reply of a Ragged Turk to a Scot In Kilts.

During the troubles at Crete in 1897 the Seaforth highlanders were landed to help to restore order. Their advent, dressed in the familiar kilts, created a great sensation, as the natives, who themselves wear a kind of kilt, had never seen British soldiers in such a costume.

An amusing incident occurred one day when a party of Seaforths were marching through a small, wretched looking village. As usual, the inhabitants turned out to stare at the soldiers, and one of the highlanders with a view to raising a laugh among his comrades shouted out to a group of Turks, "Gae hame, ye dirty blackguards, an' scrub yersels.

Imagine his astonishment as well as that of the remainder of the highlanders when a ragged and evil looking Turk shouted back in reply, "Go home yourself, Scottish dog, and cover yourself up!" It was afterward discovered that this Mohammedan had spent several years in London and so learned the language. - From "Anecdotes of Soldiers In Peace and War," by J. H.

Damp Salt Before Rain.

Very few persons know that when the salt gets damp it is either because it is too near the rea or because it is going to rain. It is very hard to keep the salt cellar dry at the seashore, as there is so much moisture in the air all the time, but in other places it is usually a sign of rain in the air all the time, but in other places it is usually a sign of rain when the salt gets damp. Things that help themselves to the water in the air are called "deliquescent," and salt is one of them. When water is in the air in the form of gas it sometimes become too plentiful for the air to hold, and then we get what is called "precipitation," or rain. But long before the water vapor in the air is heavy enough to fall in rain there is enough of it to sware to make salt is enough of it to spare to make salt

The supposed youth, who in reality was a girl in man's clothes, resented an order for the release of her lover from prison, and Robestierre signed it. No Fear of Thieve:

No Fear of Thieve:

Some years ago a London merchant sent a cargo of goods to Constantinople. After the supercargo saw the theles and both safely landed he inquired where they could be stored.

"Leave them here—it won't rain somicit," was the reply.

But I dare not leave them thus exposed. Some of the roods might be stolen." said the supercargo.

The Mohammedan merchant burst into a loud laugh as he replied:

"Don't be alarmed. There isn't a Christian within fifty miles of here."
