Varicose Veins and Itching Piles

Usually Arise From Same Cause—Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has been able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This letter tells of relief from the suffering of varicose veins by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Many suffer from this trouble not knowing the comfort to be obtained by the use of this great soothing ointment.

Mrs. R. J. Evans, 187 Munro street, Toronto, writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years. I have been troubled with varicose veins, and find it the only thing that gives relief. For every purpose when a soothing, healing ointment is needed there is nothing so good as Dr. Chase's Ointment." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

For The Unfulfilled.

For songs divine, half heard and half witholden,
That drop on silver pinions down the sky;
For visions fair, half hid and half beholden,
Compelling hopes that knew not how to die.

For all ungathered roses, red as fire,
That lit my way with lavish, fragrant flame;
For all the old sweet pain of great desire
That led me thither captive as I came.

For all, on bended knees, I make thanksgiving,
The unachieved that spurred my steps along;
The unattained that made life worth the living;
The unfulfilled that kept my spirit strong.

Righteousness Exalteth a Nation.

(Canadian Commonwealth.)

It should be a wholesome exercise for us in these days of dreadnoughts and aeroplanes, of wars and rumors of wars, to remind ourselves of the fact that righteousness exalteth a nation. It is true that in the present state of things preparedness for defence is wise and necessary. As Canadians, we are coming to realize that, as an important part of the British Empire, we must do our share in this respect. The day has come when we must take a greater interest in national and international affairs than we have done. We sometimes say that Canada is the coming nation, but it is in a very real sense true, that Canada has already arrived. And the people of the mother land, realizing this, greet the new arrival with a cheer. Others as well as ourselves, are becoming aware of our existence and beginning to realize the almost limitless resources of our country. The man who tells that it is only a matter of a few years when Canada will have a population of from fifty to a hundred millions, we regard as a true prophet.

But in giving to the vast number that come to our shores a land and liberty such as they never knew before we are placing upon ourselves responsibilities great and manifold. Being late in starting, however, we should be able to avoid the mistakes of other nations, and cultivate qualities that are worthy and enduring. With the experience of other nations to warn and guide us, there shall be little credit due us if we shall do better than they. If Canada, as one of the great dominions of the British Empire, is going to prove herself worthy of her privileges and responsibilities we must as individuals live the true life, bear nobly and bravely our burdens, regard righteousness and give place to the ideal. This will be not only for our individual good and for the good of the present nation of which we form a part, but for the good of the greater nation and the greater empire that are to be.

The possibilities of our country are too great for us to realize. Our lands east and west will be occupied, industries will spring up, our population will grow, and we are sure to become great in this respect. But we must not forget nor neglect the moral and religious side of our life. And we are glad that the Canadian Commonwealth has come into existence, to reinforce the agencies for social, moral and religious reform. There is a place for it to fill, and a work for it to do. We wish it God speed.

We are somewhat divided as Canadians, as to what our future relation to the Empire is going to be. But the conviction is growing upon us that we must continue to be a part of the Empire. And as we shall become year by year a more important part we must take a due share of the burdens and responsibilities of the Empire. The Maple Leaf must ever entwine with the Shamrock, the Thistle and the Rose. There is a safety, a dignity and a strength that come to us because of our connection with the Empire that we cannot afford to lose.

But let us not forget that as a unit of this great whole, and by the character we develop as we do our share to exalt or degrade. For no man liveth or dieth to himself. In these days, when so many are entrusted with the sacred use of the franchise, we can have a tremendous influence for good or for evil. Let us see to it that our duty in this respect be discharged with an eye single to the glory of God, the good of the nation and of the world. We are glad to feel that the sacredness of this trust is coming to be realized by an ever increasing number of citizens. But there are yet too many whose estimate of the use they should make of their votes is far from what it ought to be. There are some who look upon the right to vote as an opportunity to sell to the highest bidder, and a large number who will close their eyes to moral issues and vote for the party, right or wrong, pure or corrupt. This is sad and shameful. Let us realize that, if we are supporting a dishonest and selfish man in public office, we are doing an injury to our country and the cause of God.

Many on the other hand, feel that it is a question of man rather than of party, knowing that a good man will do good wherever he may be, and that a bad man entrusted with sacred duties is an insult to our intelligence and a hinderance to the cause of righteousness. A government cannot be higher nor lower than the character of the men who compose it. Let our influence, therefore, be felt on the side of all that makes for the social, political and religious uplift of our country, and in opposition to all that leads to national decay and death.

It is righteousness that exalteth a nation, righteousness in the hearts of our people, in our homes, in our civic, provincial and national affairs. Without righteousness we cannot stand. Carlyle speaking of the nations that went to ruin said, 'down they come one by one for want of righteousness.' Let principle and not expediency be our pole star, let the Lord be our God and not mammon, and we shall be exalted, we shall be blessed. 'Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord.'

The needs of the present are great but the needs of the future are greater, and we must not by consulting our comfort and convenience, leave it with future generations to look after their own affairs. In all our work we must have our eyes on the future and do what we feel will be of permanent value. Nothing short of the spirit of the cross will impel us to go forward to this larger duty, but as Christians this is the spirit we are of, and this is the example set before us. No sacrifice will be too great for us if we have the spirit of Him who laid down His life for us and for the world. Our highest aim must be to have him enthroned in every heart and worshipped in every home.

The call comes to us as sons and daughters of the British Empire to beware of the pitfalls that have been discovered in the past, to discard all that is unhallowed and ignoble to foster those lofty conceptions of life, of home and of duty that are sure to exalt a nation. The call comes to us as Christians to guard against formalism to put conviction before confession, and faith before form and to recognize the truth of God as alone worth living and dying for. The call comes to us all to cling to the soul as the abiding element in man, to cling to principle and character as the things worth striving for.

Our rich soil can give us splendid wheat and other grains. From the bowels of the earth our sturdy sons of toil can bring to light the coal, the copper, the silver and the gold. Our mighty lakes and rivers and seas will yield abundance of fish and facilitate trade and commerce. Our stalwart men can defend us against the insults and attacks of foes. But now is the time for us to learn that not in fortification of steel, not in dreadnoughts and other engines of destruction does our safety consist. Now is the time for us to learn that materialism means the dwarfing of the highest and noblest aspects of our life, and that worldliness makes the truest manhood impossible. Now is the time for us to learn that the fear of God makes for the happiness of our homes, that the love of truth makes for the permanency of our institutions. Now is the time for us to learn that it is not boast or bigness that makes a people honored, that it is not capacity but righteousness that exalteth a nation.

Costly Treatment.

'I was troubled with constipation and indigestion and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment,' writes C. H. Hines, of Whitlow, Ark. 'I went to a St. Louis hospital, also to a hospital in New Orleans, but no cure was effected. On returning home I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets, and worked right along. I used them for some time and am now all right.' Sold by all dealers.

'That's a nice looking fellow who's just come in,' said the young man who was dining with his best girl.

'Is he a friend of yours?'

'Yes, indeed, I know him well,' laughed the maiden.

'Shall I ask him to join us?'

'Oh, George,' said the girl, blushing, 'this is so sudden.'

'Sudden! What do you mean?' he asked in surprise.

'Why—why, that's our young minister.'

Hubby—It's funny our minister never gets married. I think he'd make a good husband.

Remarkable Cure of Dysentry.

'I was attacked with dysentery about July 15th, and used the doctor's medicine and other remedies with no relief, only getting worse all the time. I was unable to do anything and my weight dropped from 145 to 125 pounds. I suffered for about two months when I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I used two bottles of it and it gave me permanent relief,' writes B. W. Hill of Snow Hill, N. C. For sale by all dealers.

A Lover's Note.

A young gentleman whose gallantry and pecuniary means were by no means commensurate, arranged with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast off clothes. One day he received a bunch of beautiful roses which he at once sent off to his fiance. In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome, he called at the house of the lady the same evening, and was not a little surprised at the frosty reception with which he met. 'You sent me a note to-day?' the young lady remarked after a pause, in the most frigid tones. 'I—a note?' he inquired in blank astonishment. 'Certainly—along with a nosegay.' 'To be sure, I sent you a nosegay.' 'And there was this note inside—do you still mean to deny it?' With these words she handed the dumb founded swain a scrap of paper on which the following words were written:—'Don't forget the old trousers you promised me the other day!'

Good Reason for His Enthusiasm.

When a man has suffered for several days with colic, diarrhoea or other form of bowel complaint and is then cured sound and well by one or two doses of Dr. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as is often the case, it is but natural that he should be enthusiastic in his praise of the remedy, and especially is this the case of a severe attack where life is threatened. Try it when in need of such a remedy. It never fails. Sold by all dealers.

A woman of philanthropic tendencies was paying a visit to a lower Eastside school. She was particularly interested in a group of poor pupils and asked permission to question them.

'Children, which is the greatest of all virtues?'

No one answered.

'Now think a little. What is it I am doing when I give up time and pleasure to come and talk with you for your own good?'

A grimy hand went up in the rear of the room.

'Please, ma'am, youse are buttin' in.'

'Our Far Flung Battle Line.'

During the last week or two an exceedingly interesting event has been taking place on our western coast. The magnificent battle ship New Zealand, the contribution of the Dominion of New Zealand to the Imperial defence, has paid a visit to Victoria, B. C., and has been tendered a most enthusiastic reception. This incident has touched a sympathetic cord of patriotism among the British Dominions beyond the seas and marks a new era in British Imperial relations.

Canada's premier, the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, took advantage of the occasion to officially extend the felicitations of the Canadian people to the Commander of New Zealand's minion of Imperial defence in the following telegram:

'My colleagues and I have learned with warmest approval of the magnificent reception which has been accorded to H. M. S. New Zealand by the government and people of British Columbia. The splendid patriotic action of the Dominion of New Zealand in providing this battleship for the great and necessary purpose of strengthening the naval forces of the Empire, afford not only an example but an inspiration to the Canadian people. Will you kindly convey to Captain Halsey and the officers and crew of the New Zealand our best wishes and our most confident hope that the career and record of that splendid ship may accord with the highest and noblest traditions of the British navy.

(Signed) R. L. Borden.'

To this telegram the following reply was sent to the premier:

'Before leaving British Columbia on behalf of my officers and men I thank you for your kind message transmitted to-day through Sir Richard McBride. We all look forward to our further visit in November to eastern Canada.

(Signed) Lionel H. Halsey, Capt.'

It is gratifying to learn that Halifax will be honored with a visit from this magnificent battleship of our kinsman on the other side of the globe in November, and no doubt advantage will be taken of the occasion to extend a royal welcome.

It is interesting in this connection to note that this battleship which has been promptly secured and placed in commission by the government of New Zealand was built and equipped in England and that all the war ships ordered from the English ship yards have been completed while those, whose construction was undertaken by the Australian government are still far from completion and serious deficiencies exist in their dockyards which will lead to serious delay and very largely increased cost. The construction of modern ships of war is too serious and technical a matter to begin at the experimental stage. It is only 'the best that money can buy and skill produce' that will meet the exacting requirement of the Imperial Naval Service and give confidence to the sons of the Empire in time of war.

Dreadnoughts can only be efficiently constructed in well established and well organized shipyards and by skilled and long experienced builders. This efficiency has been obtained by years of experience, and it is apparent to all business people that Canada must commence its navy building in the construction of small crafts, and until such time as naval yards have been well established and organized in Canada by some years of experience dreadnoughts should be built in England where the greatest naval yards in the world exist.

Every day that passes is bringing new proofs of the wisdom of Mr. Borden's naval policy. First to show Canada's good faith to the Mother Country and the world by a prompt contribution of thoroughly efficient modern vessels of war which can be done only through the medium of existing yards such as are now in operation in England. Then gradually develop a permanent Naval Policy in keeping with the dignity of Canada and the requirements of the great Empire of which we form so important a part.

The violent criticism of the Borden proposal eminate from a rabid grit press for practical purposes only. Political clap trap is not the material of which nations are built. What is required is far sighted statesmanship and cool headed business methods. The Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden has amply proved his great executive ability and easily takes his place among the greatest administrators Canadian life has ever had.

There are plenty of fellows who could teach a better school than those who teach, preach a better sermon than those who preach, who could run a better business and publish a better paper. Yes, the woods are full of them, but they neither teach, preach, run a better business or publish a better paper. They are like the lilies of the field, they toil not neither do they spin.

More Novelties for the Provincial Exhibition.

Manager Hall has secured several of these for the fair.

The amusement features of the Provincial Exhibition will be as striking and interesting as experience, careful selection and judicous expenditure of money can provide. This phase of the big fair which opens at Halifax on the 3rd of September and continues for a week will make the show interesting for young and old, and will well repay a visit to Halifax, whose attractions, apart even from the Exhibition, are great at this season as well as other seasons of the year.

In the regular departments the Exhibition will be no less complete than on its amusement side, and there will be novelties to be seen which will amply repay the visitor who wishes to keep abreast of the times. One of these interesting to dairymen, which Manager Hall has secured for demonstration is the milking apparatus. With the aid of this machine milking cows by hand is done away with altogether the apparatus filling the cans from the cow. An electric motor is used and with the individual machine for each cow a whole herd can be milked at once.

The exhibition dates are earlier this year so that visitors will have the advantage of warm weather adding to their other pleasures of their visit to the capital.

Low rates as usual will prevail on all railways. Arrangements have been made for a Lodging Bureau in the case of large crowds seeking for accommodation.

Baby's Great Danger During Hot Weather.

More little ones die during hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach disorders come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the home where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

He Knew by Experience.

It was their honeymoon trip, and they were journewing to Windermere, where the holiday was to be spent.

'Oh, George,' she murmured, as, on the evening of their arrival, they gazed over the beautiful lake, 'isn't everything simply lovely!'

'What do you say to a row on the water before breakfast in the morning?' he fondly asked.

'Delightful!' she replied. 'And we'll send a telegram to ma, saying what a glorious time we're having.'

Next morning the bride's parents were slightly startled at their breakfast table to see a telegraph boy at the gate.

'I do hope there's nothing wrong, dear,' remarked the lady.

The bride's father went to the door, and came back shaking his head a little sadly.

'Ah,' he exclaimed, 'they've begun already, my dear!'

'Why, whatever is it?' inquired the fond mother.

'Listen to this Maria? 'Grand row before breakfast.' Well, well, I suppose it had to come some time!'

Father ruefully gazing at his last shilling. 'Money has wings, and house rents make it fly,' he said.

'Yes,' said his fifteen-year-old Boy Scout son, 'and some houses have wings, for I have seen many a house fly.'

'You're smarter than your old dad maybe, my son, but I always thought that no part of a house except the chimney flue.'

Brown—'So you spent Sunday with the Sububs, eh? How far is their house from the station?'

Towne—'About two miles as the dust flies.'

What This Sectional Firepot Means to You

The "Sunshine" has a straight-sided semi-steel firepot, extra heavily ribbed and made in two sections. The two sections allow for contraction and expansion—which prevents cracking. The heavy ribs and semi-steel give extra strength and added radiating surface. Ashes cannot adhere to the straight sides which assures an all-over clear fire. This means the greatest heat from the fuel consumed.

These are some of the advantages of the Sunshine Furnace. Our agent will be pleased to show you others, or write for booklet.
