

Fun and Fancy.

"Why, Talpud, you never wear an overcoat!" "No," replied Talpud, "I never was."

"Conversation," says Uncle Mose, "don't show you a man knows any more than he can talk."

Colonel Mooney remarked to his wife that a "friend had plenty of grit."

"He may have been a little crooked," remarked the undertaker mournfully.

"Go in swimming!" exclaimed little Johnny Burlap. "Not much. The last time I went in father gave me a woodshed bath after I got home."

"America is called the land of the free" because it is the only country in the world where a divorce can be procured in two hours for a ten dollar bill.

Funny, isn't it, that you always see the night-fall before any stars begin to shoot.

So Tennyson is going to write a poem in honor of John Brown. A kind of sequel to "Idyls of the King," "Idol of the Queen."

An English magazine is speculating as to "the kind of clothes ghosts wear." We always supposed they wore spirit wrappers.

An Ohio dentist has devoted himself to active politics, probably on the ground that his calling has fitted him for "taking the stump."

Under certain circumstances it makes a man feel mean to have people give him a wide berth, but somehow it never does when he is travelling on a steamboat.

Women are more economical than men. You never catch a man saving the combings from his hair to make a switch with.

Old gent—"Ah, Mrs. B., did you keep a diary during your visit to the country?" Mrs. B., indignantly—"No, sir, I didn't. The family bought milk from the neighbors."

The difference between the business of a circus advance agent and a druggist seems to be this: the first spends much of his time in the posting of his bills; the latter in boasting of his pills.

A Pittsburg man who put in the summer on the fifth floor of a city boarding house, truthfully insisted that most of his vacation had been passed at "mountain resort."

A country editor, after writing a powerful and exhaustive article on the late earthquake in Java, from force of habit wound up with: "Let the strictest official inquiry be made into this terrible life, and let not the guilty heads escape that punishment a horror-stricken, outraged community demands." And glowing with the loftiest indignation, he strode over to the corner place and drank a whisky "straight" without winking—until he told the man to charge it.

Man is like a snowball. Leave him lying in idleness against the sunny face of prosperity and all that is in him melts like fresh butter in the dog days; but kick him round and he gathers strength at every evolution.

A jolly old doctor said that people who were prompt in their payments always recovered in their sickness, as they were good customers, and physicians could not afford to lose them. A good hint and a sensible doctor.

Mrs. C. "I have been married for several weeks, and my husband and I cannot decide whether we should retain our old love letters or burn them. What would you advise?" Put them in a pasteboard box in the servant girl's room. A supply of old letters has been known to keep a girl contented in one place for three months at a time.

Mr. Justice Burton, addressing the Hastings grand jury at Belleville, expressed the hope that the Dominion Government would put a law on the statute book at the next session of parliament, permitting other than orthodox "Christians"—that is to say, Free Thinkers—to testify in criminal cases.

Simply marvellous is all I can say of the effect of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure in my case. An elderly lady writes this from Antigonish, N. S., who had suffered from pains in the back for twenty years. Sold by J. Wilson Goderich.

Fashion's Fancies.

Handkerchiefs for evening toilets are now lace-trimmed. New fans from begonia leaves in dark or shaded velvet.

Black underclothing is the fancy of the moment at Trouville. A charming dress worn at a casino entertainment was of pink and white crab apples.

All drapery, both at the front and back of the coming costume, is exceedingly bouffant. Combination of two materials are largely employed in new fall and winter costumes.

The fashionable way of wearing a corage bouquet is to place it on the dress right over the heart. Double-breasted jackets are out of fashion.

Chevrons will be used for children's school dresses this winter. The Langtry method of wearing the hair is going out. By Christmas all the women and girls will be wearing their hair on the top of their heads.

Velvet ribbons will be much used for trimming dresses and wrappings. The Astrakhan trimmings are seen on costumes as well as on jackets.

Lilies-of-the-valley and white lilies will be more popular for brides than orange blossoms.

The mania for jerseys is at its height, and all sorts of woven materials are used to make them. The ribbed silk stockings in dark shades are the most fashionable for day wear, unless they are selected to match the dress.

The most fashionable collars for the street is an upright velvet band, over which lace is turned, and which is finished in front with plaited ends of lace, and la velvet rosette or bow.

Tricote and ladies' cloths are shown in all the new colours, but are lighter woven than the heavy fabrics of last year that made a cloth dress a burden; the tricote is woven in slight reps that are scarcely perceptible.

There is a popular tendency to tuck the front of bodices, particularly those of black or gray wool. Instead of tucking them to the waist they are best tucked as a deep—not wide—square, and outlined with black velvet.

One of the new trilled woollens is called velour serge, because its even twills are strewn about with velvet figures, leaves, blocks, and small checks. The dots of velvet, and indeed all dotted patterns, are disappearing, and blocks or smaller checks are used instead.

Tailor made cloth dresses are handsome, but they ought to go out of fashion because of their weight. Woolen dresses are in the majority of cases too heavy because of the trimmings added to their natural weight. Silk is the lightest material worn, and even velvet is not so heavy as the stylish cloth costumes.

Waistcoats are revived with cloth dresses, many of them being made in chamois leather, which looks particularly well with fawn, brown and mouse gray, all of which are fashionable shades. Dull-gold coloured waistcoats look well with black, dark red with dark green, and old blue with bronze; the bottoms are wrought metal or plaques, very small and often filigree.

A new Autumn wrap is called the doll-man jacket. It somewhat resembles a cape, having but one seam in the back. It falls straight, and has three openings about six inches long in the middle and one on each side of the back. Designs formed of galleon, which may be simple or elaborate as one pleases, make a very pretty effect. The full sleeve is closed at the wrist.

Pretty Marguerite corsages for young girls are made of royal blue, laurel-green or ruby plush, pink, mauve or pale blue velvet, to be worn over airy skirts of tulle veiling or embroidery muslin. In front they open broadly over a dainty lace chemise or blouse. The very short sleeves are edged with frills of lace, and frequently the edges are cut in blocks, with lace shell plaiting let underneath.

Dress skirts are growing decidedly fuller and wider, and this decided tendency to bouffant styles has, as history plainly reveals, been almost invariably the forerunner of crinoline, and crinoline we are to have, unless scores of manufacturers, who have summoned their hitherto idle forces and began the work anew of making hoop-skirts, have listened to a delusive rumour of their coming popularity.

The coming season will be a velvet one so far as fashion is concerned. Dresses for drawing room entertainments and for the street will be worn in all colours, and cloaks will be made of the material. For frequently the edges are cut in blocks, with lace shell plaiting let underneath.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

Paste This Up for Reference in Case of an Emergency.

Nearly every person knows what to do in case of injury or sudden sickness, but it often happens that under the excitement attending such circumstances they become confused, and forget all they know about it. The following suggestions might be posted up on the inside of the closet or bookcase door where they could be referred to promptly.

For stomach cramps, ginger ale, or a half teaspoonful of the tincture of ginger in a half-glass of water, in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Swallowing saliva often relieves sour stomach.

Hot, dry fannel, applied as hot as possible for neuralgia.

Whooping cough paroxysms are relieved by breathing the fumes of turpentine or carboic acid.

For cold in the head nothing is better than powdered borax snuffed up the nostrils.

A strong solution of bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) taken frequently, is reliable remedy for diarrhoeal troubles, particularly those arising from acidity of the stomach.

A standing antidote for poison by poison-oak, ivy, etc., is to take a handful of quicklime, dissolve in water, let it stand half an hour, then paint the poisoned parts with it. Three or four applications will never fail to cure the most aggravated cases.

If children do not thrive on fresh milk it should be boiled.

Powdered resin is the best thing to stop profuse bleeding from cuts. After the powder is sprinkled on, wrap the wound with a soft cotton cloth. As soon as the wound begins to feel feverish, keep the cloth constantly wet with cold water.

For burns, sweet oil and cotton are the standard remedies. If they are not at hand, sprinkle the burned part with flour and wrap loosely with a cotton cloth. Don't remove the dressing until the inflammation subsides, as it will break the new skin that is just forming.

For nose bleeding, bathe the neck and face with cold water.

If an artery is severed, tie a small cord or a handkerchief tightly above it.

For bilious cholic, soda and ginger in hot water. It may be taken freely.

Broken limbs should be placed in natural positions and the patient kept quiet till the surgeon arrives.

Nervous spasms are usually relieved by a little salt taken into the mouth and allowed to dissolve.

Hemorrhages of the lungs or stomach are promptly checked by small doses of salt. The patient should be kept quiet as possible.

Sleeplessness caused by too much blood in the head may be overcome by applying a cloth wet with cold water to the back of the neck.

For pains in the chest or stomach, as much Dover's powder as will lie on a 5 cent piece is promptly relieved by peppermint essence taken in a little warm water. For small children it may be sweetened. Paregoric is also good.

Chlorate of potash dissolved in water in a standard remedy for sore throat, particularly if the throat is inflamed.

Ticking in the throat is best relieved by a gargle of salt and water.

Indigestion is the prolific cause of colics, diarrhoea, headaches, constipation and many diseases of the bladder. Food that is not digested ferments and becomes positively harmful. Pills may relieve for the time, but they seldom cure. The pill-taker's latter end is always worse than his first condition. Stomach bitters are a snare, and only create a desire for stimulants.

Eat only such things as agree with you and not too much at a time. By heeding the warning of your stomach many doctor's bills and undertaker's, too, may be avoided. Shut feasts and feed. Give children plenty of milk and plenty of good ripe fruit. They will not only thrive on this diet, but keep healthy.

In every house there should be a little nook in which a few simple remedies are kept. Among them should be extract of ginger, Dover's powder, peppermint, chlorate of potash, bicarbonate of soda, sweet oil, paregoric, camphor, arnica, a bottle of pure whiskey, cotton, old muslin for bandages, some sticking plaster, a box of ground mustard, and some ready-made mustard plasters. Always strike a light when you go to get any of these at night, and be sure you have the right one.

Seeing is believing. Read the testimonials in the pamphlet on Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure, then buy a bottle and relieve yourself of all those distressing pains. Your Druggist can tell you all about it. Sold by J. Wilson Goderich.

No household should be considered complete without a bottle of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure in the closet. It is the only remedy that will positively, permanently and promptly cure all forms of kidney diseases. Sold by J. Wilson Goderich.

An Oasis in the desert is no brighter light to the wandering Arab than a bottle of Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure is to the unfortunate sufferer from Kidney Disease. It is a perfect, positive and permanent cure. Sold by J. Wilson Goderich.

POPE LEO AT HOME.

Everyday Life of the Holy Father—A Reception to Irish Pilgrims.

The Capitan Fracassa, of Rome, publishes a conversation which one of its correspondents had with the Rev. Philip Barry, canon of Castel Cathedral. The canon is said to have spoken as follows:—"Leo XIII is now 74 years of age. He is tall, thin and bony. His face is of an ivory tint, and his eyes and lips are very expressive and smiling. He looks very firm. Simeoni says he resembles Voltaire but Leo XIII's smile is totally different to Voltaire's smile. The Pope wears his age well and walks remarkably straight. He has snow white hair and very finely marked eyebrows. His eyes are wonderfully intelligent looking and his voice is extremely harmonious. He speaks several languages as well as any professor of languages. He never says a foolish thing nor does a foolish thing, like poor Pius IX., whose policy was fatal to the Pope's temporal power. He rises very early and spends the first hours of the day in prayer, and generally in his bedroom. At 6 o'clock he breaks his fast with a cup of chocolate, reading his correspondents all the time. At 9 o'clock he receives Jacobini and those chiefs of religious societies who may demand audience. At noon he receives those Roman patriarchs who have remained true to him and the Ambassadors. At 1 o'clock he dines, his dinner rarely costing more than two francs, half a dollar."

"And he keeps so many cooks?" said the correspondent. "He is obliged to keep up appearances," answered the canon. "Once upon a time Popes were great eaters and drinkers and given to every kind of extravagance, but Leo XIII. is nothing of all this."

IN THE GARDEN. "After dinner he takes a little walk in the Vatican grounds, or he visits the museums and galleries. Sometimes he is carried in a chair quilted with white satin. He is very fond of the garden. He frequently receives visitors in the garden and talks of flowers to them to avoid other subjects. The first and second time I saw him in the garden. When I went with the pilgrims he was preceded by three noble guards, and at his side was Mgr. Macchi, his secret chamberlain. He wore a wide brimmed hat and a large red cloak. We were presented to him one by one. He looked at us and scrutinized us well. I saw he recognized me, and he treated me like the ordinary as if he saw me also for the first time. 'Are you all Irish?' he said: 'I am happy to receive the faithful of that nation!' He then looked again at us as if he would have read into our souls. 'Your bishop' he continued, 'brought me offerings from a people pressed with poverty. Then seeing me all on my knees, he offered me his hand to raise me. 'I had thought,' he continued, 'that the offerings would have decreased, but it was not so. We live on charity' (and here he smiled sadly), 'Oh, these persecutions!' he cried with a loud voice. 'They purify us, even when the heaven is pure and immaculate.'"

AT AN AUDIENCE. "I seem to see him now," said the canon. "His head looked like a relief on the blue sky. The sun was setting and he looked up to the sky, as if seeking an inspiration there. I have heard the canon say that, notwithstanding the general state of anguish in Ireland the churches are full of people. May the Lord be praised and blessed, and may my prayers bring peace on the people! Lord, hear our prayers and judge us! He then blessed us, and the audience was finished. I have never seen so much sympathy. At four o'clock the Pope resumes his official audience in the Vatican. At 7 o'clock only he takes a little rest, but at 8 o'clock he returns to work in his private room, where he remains until 10 o'clock, when he retires for the night."

Sprains and bruises call for an application of the tincture of arnica. Avoid purgatives and strong physics, as they not only do no good, but are positively harmful. Pills may relieve for the time, but they seldom cure. The pill-taker's latter end is always worse than his first condition. Stomach bitters are a snare, and only create a desire for stimulants.
