How Canadians Faced German Gas.

Capt. Hutton Crowley Writes of Horrible Effect of Poison Vapors—Had a Narrow Escape — "Coal Box" Dropped Within Five Yards of Him — Montreal Men Badly Shelled During Ypres Battle.

German attacks by gas, with the effects of bombardments of Ypres and night sniping of British soldiers are described in an interesting letter sent to Mr. George J. Crowley, of 432 Roslyn avenue, from his son, Captain Hutton Crowley, who is now at the front with the 13th Highlanders. Capt. Crowley, after spending some time in England, was sent to the front with his regiment and has been appointed second in command of Captain Clark Kennedy's company, getting through a lot of severe fighting around Ypres without harm.

Writing from "France," Captain Crowley says:—At present we are in billets about six miles from the firing line. We expect to be here about a week and then go back into the trenches at Armentieres, which is about in front of here. Everyone of us is glad to get away from Ypres. We were at the latter place for about a week in the support trenches, and we lost about 18 men during that time.

"It is wonderful how used one gets to shelling. I prefer high explosives to shrapnel. I saw one shell hole at Ypres city big enough to hide our house in. It is hard to imagine a shell big enough to do that.

"Ives and I and six men had a narrow escape at St. Jean from a 'coal box' (6 inch shell). It landed about five yards from us when we were out on a tour collecting equipment for the men. It is all chance, and it is no good dodging.

"I have the luck to have the job of second in command to Clark-Kennedy (at one time erroneously reported killed). I hope I keep it, he is a fine man to work under. The four platoon commanders are Clarence Mc Cuaig, Allan Worthington, Dug Ives and McTier (son of Mr. A. D. McTier). We all kept on pretty well together, and are kept pretty busy.

"I have received several letters already, also cigarettes from the Newfoundland Society. We had an awful night march from Ypres to here; it is about 18 miles, nearly all over cobble stones. The men's feet were in very bad condition, but the rest is doing them good.

"At Ypres we were out on a very bad salient, and consequently we got shelled from two or three directions. The English have since dropped back about one and one-half miles in order to straighten the line out.

"Last Sunday the Germans made a very large attack about one-half mile on our right flank. They used that awful gas. The whole front attacked was a solid wall of green yellow vapor. The Essex Regiment were in the front trenches at the time. They had to evacuate at once. The firing lasted about two hours. In the end the English went back the two trenches they had to leave and in addition took one German trench.

"We thought that we would get into that fight, but we were not needed. All we got was shelled, which is not nice. The weather has been beautiful, and we are getting much sunburnt.

"The condition at Ypres is simply indescribable. You can get no idea of the chaos from pictures or descriptions. It is a needless waste. The Cathedral is utterly ruined, and they have also finished the celebrated Cloth Hall.

"There is an awful lot of shrapnel, even from behind our own lines, and one has to be careful at night."

[Capt. Hutton Crowley referred to above is a nephew of Mr. W. H. Crowley, Manager of the Royal Bank, this city and a son of Mr. Geo. J. Crowley, who was for many years in the Commercial Bank of this city.—Ed. E. T.]

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS.
It always does my heart good to talk to a certain little mother, who hovers over her brood of five boys as watchfully as a mother possibly can. She knows the likes and dislikes of each one, and appreciates the contrasting personalities, and tries to become more acquainted with her children's individual natures each day.

She knows that Horace dislikes apple sauce and that Alfred loves it. She knows that Arthur's favorite color is red and that Herman prefers green. She has watched her little family with the trained eye of a professional and has analyzed their natures thoroughly. She knows her children, and she alone, can account for their shortcomings, and their failures, better than anyone else. Remember that every child has a different nature and that you cannot treat them all alike.

At the House.

FRIDAY, June 4th.

The amendments of the Council to the Exportation of Timber Bill were concurred in.

The Speaker announced that the Council had appointed a select committee to confer with the Assembly out of session on the amendments made by the Council to the Sealing Bill.

Mr. Kent pointed out the committee would automatically go out of existence when the Legislature was prorogued and suggested that the committee named should be appointed as a Commission by the Governor in Council. Thereupon the Minister of Fisheries, Messrs. Coaker, Moulton, Young and Winsor were appointed to act on the committee.

On motion of Mr. Kent the report of the Select Committee on conditions at the Penitentiary was read by the Clerk. The report recommended that better methods of sanitation be provided; that greater care be taken in the cooking of food the supply of which was found to be good; that the Surgeon visit the Institution weekly and inspect it monthly, that no long service prisoner be clothed in rags, that better accommodation be provided for female prisoners, and that material for mending be supplied; that warmer bed clothing be provided for the winter season; that correspondence of prisoners on remand be private and not read by the Superintendent. It also dealt with the matter of separating the juvenile from the adult prisoners, and the remand prisoners from the convicted. It recommended more healthful quarters for the matron, and also suggested that she be given a holiday annually. The report was adopted.

Mr. Morine called the attention of the House to the custom in vogue with regard to prisoners who come out from the Institution to work. He thought that prisoners ought not to be paraded through the streets in prison garb as is customary. The prisoners who are allowed out at this work are "trusties" and he contended should not be so degraded.

Mr. Hayward presented a petition from the F. P. U. Council of his district asking for an amendment of the law for the protection of rabbits.

Mr. Clapp called the attention of the House to the fact that several of his constituents from Bonne Bay and adjacent settlements who were brought here as witnesses in the recent Snowden trial had lost half their lobster voyage. He held that the case should have been settled earlier so that the fishermen who were witnesses in the case might not have lost so much time at the principal part of the season. He felt sure that the House would realize his grievance and would readily understand why he had brought the matter to their notice.

The House then went into Committee on the Council's amendments to the Logging Bill. Several amendments clauses were rejected and others were amended.

The Committee arose at 6 p.m. and the House adjourned till 2 p.m. to-day.

Wounded Soldier Improving.

Private Harry Grant, son of Mr. John Grant, this city, who was wounded while fighting in France with the first Canadian Contingent, is now rapidly improving, according to a letter recently received from him by his father. Harry writes from the hospital at Southampton and speaks in glowing terms of the kind treatment received. He says that he lay wounded for several hours on the field, but does not mention at which battle he was wounded. The injuries were confined to the right arm and side and are not considered of a serious nature. It is hoped that news of his complete recovery will be received at an early date.

The schr. Strindland arrived from St. John's on Sunday with supplies to Mr. E. Simmons. She will now go to Labrador with freighters. Mr. James takes charge this season.

A baby boy was born on Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. William Batt.

Constable Gronchy took the German war prisoner for a walk through the town to-day. They were very much interested in all they saw.

There is now on exhibition in Mr. M. P. Stapleton's window a well executed model of the naval battle in which the British "Lion" shattered the "Blucher" of the German fleet. The work is the handwork of Mr. Richard Hayden. The "Blucher" is shown to be sinking, while the sailors are in the water many of them clinging to pieces of wreckage. The British are endeavoring to do their customary work of rescue, while the German ships are hovering over and sending death even to their own men. Mr. Hayden is to be congratulated on the excellence of his work. The German war prisoners looked at this work with much interest to-day.

A small quantity of fresh codfish of a small quality, were in the market this morning, and sold readily. Herring were plentiful, but were compelled to stand aside while the stock of codfish lasted.

Mrs. Henry Garland was hastily summoned to St. John's on Monday by the death of her father, Mr. Murphy. Mr. Murphy was well known here and his many friends heard with regret of his death. Mrs. Garland and the rest of the family has the sympathy of all their friends.

Mrs. James Kent, of Placentia, is in town on a visit to her sisters, Mrs. Scanlan and Mrs. Griffin. Mrs. Kent's friends are many and are all pleased to see her. She leaves for home to-morrow.

Graphic Story
In Which Jack Hollands Jensen

2nd Southern General Hospital, New Southmead Infirmary, Bristol, May 1st, 1915.

Dear Frank and Arthur,—I have heard of the awful losses of the Canadians, but I doubt whether the facts will be given out to the public for months. Last time I wrote, I was with the transport, on ammunition wagon, but my officer got me into a Company, and dear old Jack Hollands and I marched side by side and nearly died together.

I will tell you, I have been through a battle that Neve Chapelle was up to, one of the greatest of modern wars. Dear old Jack Hollands was killed like a hero, on the morning of the 23rd. Strange, a few nights before we went into the last battle, we were sleeping side by side; he said "Phil, here is my uncle's London address, take it for I have a feeling, I am not coming out of the trenches this time." I told him not to say such nonsense, but he told me to tell his uncle so as he could write him if he, the Rev. C. W. Hollands, of the honor. I have done this. Now you know you are just waiting to be about myself. Well, I had a narrow shave, struck by a "Johnston;" I have six shrapnel wounds in my back, but I am fine, not in any vital spot.

We went into the trenches on the 21st, just above Ypres in Belgium, and on our left were the French and Zouaves. The first day it was great, but although we did not know it, a great attack was being prepared by the Germans, and on the 22nd, they started shelling us, hundreds of shells pitching around in the trenches, with poisonous fumes. Well, I French on the evening of the 23rd, I fell from their trenches, leaving my company, the 5th Highlanders, 200 men, in almost a death trap. To illustrate this I will draw you the shape of the attack, and the position of the trenches.

Now when the French ran the Hun came on in thousands, and took their trenches, but they were two ours. Now we were between two fires, in this way: Our front trenches were low, so they began shooting us in the back. Now we could have retired by our own trenches, but, no, Sir. Two hundred men of us held the line. Oh, boy, it was grand. Our reserves came up for some time, owing to such an awful fire. Our officers had put forty of us, and we held them where I mark in the drawing. Our losses began. It was awful, boys our fellows died game, and I was grand to see them. Dear old Jack and I stood together doing our share. I can tell you; then my officer came for me and put me further up the trench, and after a while, some of us were ordered out on sentry duty.
