Perhaps if he had paused for reflection on the brink of the abyes he might have desisted from taking the fatal leap; but Curtius like he rushed head-long into the breach, fully equipped, though without the beneficent result siderably spared. Since we have commenced work, the general has ordered that we shall receive oue and a half pounds of meat a day instead of one pound, which is the soldier's ration, and which was allowed to us while to his fellow men which accrued from the action of the noble Romar youth. Now, it cannot be denied that law students have their grievances, and heavy ones at that; out who has not? If the principals would meet their students anywhere near half juce is served out every day, and a "for of rum when specially sanctioned by the general. This has happened but once so fat. A False Witness

During these few weeks back it has seemed as if our anticipations of a great future for Canada were about to be rudely interrupted. That is to say-if we could have believed certain false witnesses, with whom the wish is probably father to the thought. Sir John Macdonald was in the ill-mannered youngstors of the public England, he had been honored with the title of G. C. B., and the inference was obvious. In consideration thereof, he had, of course, bartered away our rights Meredith's remarks he must be an old and liberties. More particularly he had given away the Canadian national policy, and our manufactures were to be sumschool trustee marily wiped out.

We pointed out at the time that it was very unlikely that Sir John, who had given us the N.P., would be the man to destroy his own work. And we recalled what he had the courage to say five years ago to a very influential deputation of English manufacturers-that Canada's commercial policy would be framed to suit her own interests, is, sight seeing and prospecting-becomes tedious. Always take a good night's rest, and not those of any other country whattedious. Always take a good night's rest, which cannot be procured in a sitting posture. Be sure and have the porter so make your bed that your head will be in an opposite direction to the one in which the train is going, or to speak more explicitly—sleep with your feet foremost. Then you are less liable to suffer from the the train is going in the point of the speak more the point of the point o ever-not even of the mother country her self. Later on we were able to quote a few words of his sent by cable, to the effect that direct representation of the colonies in the British house of commons was entirely impracticable. As only by such means could our commercial policy, be voted away, it appeared pretty evident that no such surrender as that spoken of had ever been contemplated by Sir John at all.

It now turns out that nothing of the kind has been contemplated by English advocates of imperial federation, any more than by Sir. John. Mr. Forster, who has taken a leading part in the recent discussions on the subject, is thus reported:

Mr. Freeman, the historian, published sev-eral years ago an interesting first volume of a work which I trust he will complete—a work upon federation—and in his introduction he defines what he considers federation to mean thus." A federal commonwealth in its perfect deral commonwealth in the s which forms a single stat other nations, but which thus: A federal commonwealth in its perfect form is one which forms a single state in its relations to other nations, but which consists of many states in relation to its internal gov-ermment. Hear, hear.] Now that admits of a very which margin, but I would reply to Mr. Merriman's suggestion by saying that we are bound by this absolute condition-that the should be this alliance for mutual defence, and that there should be this common citizenship People may say that after all that means but very little. To my mind it means agreat deal [Hear, hear.] If means peace among-all the members of the empire in the drist piace. It means, I believe, greater strength for each member of the cm-pire-[hear] hear]-the power of alding and use me,' and down he went, to appear no nore.

Catarrh-A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success as been achieved in modern science has h attained by the Dixon treatment for cata Out of 2000 patients treated during the six months, fully nitety per cent, have h cured of this stubborn malady. This is n the low curling when it is monthered six months, fully ninety per cent, nave been cured of this study when it is remembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patient medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living para-sites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accom-plished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure ca-tarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the presents eason of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treat-ment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs.
