

THE MAROONS OF OLD.

Hamilton's Paper Before the Canadian Institute on Their Residence in Jamaica and Nova Scotia. On Saturday evening at the meeting of the Canadian Institute the vice-president occupied the chair. Mr. C. Hamilton, LL.B., was the orator of the evening and read a paper on "The Maroons of Jamaica and Nova Scotia." He began by general reference to negro slavery in the provinces during the latter half of last century, which disappeared without legislative enactment, by which Judge Halliburton in his history of Nova Scotia, calls abandonment beneficial to the country. There remained a number of freed men or emancipated negroes, and more Africans who had escaped to Nova Scotia from the United States. These people were called "loyal negroes." In 1811 a party of nearly 100 of them emigrated to Trinidad. But before this, on the founding of Sierra Leone on the west coast of Africa, about 1800 went there, arriving in 1820. Four years after this three ships entered the harbor of Halifax laden with the most extraordinary cargoes that ever entered there. The Duke of Kent, then in command at Halifax, boarded the Dover, a vessel of 1000 tons, and a detachment of the 90th Regiment drawn up on board to receive the cargo.
