

Questions Relating to Security in Europe - The Declaration of Principles.

Under this heading the Belgrade meeting reviewed implementation of the ten principles guiding relations between participating states, and subsequently examined new proposals designed to improve this implementation. Canada was a co-sponsor of three of these new proposals: one dealing with the role of the individual in promoting détente, including the right of the individual to maintain a dialogue with his government; one reaffirming the Seventh Principle, dealing with human rights and fundamental freedoms; and one dealing with the struggle against terrorism.
