

work done totalling in that particular field of research. This has had the result of pooling the present knowledge of coal

- ii) The conference has been a large and striking gesture, ~~appealing~~ ^{appealing} to the public, regarding the profound importance of coal to national life. This will have ultimately a quickening effect on public opinion relative to industrial investment, expansion, research, and education.

I have sent programmes with brief comments to Dean H. M. Mackay, D. Lutton, Prof. W. C. Clegg, and D. Lower.

On my return I shall present a brief report to the Principal and you. Kindest regards,

Sincerely,
Lorrie R. Thurston
