WOMAN IS ADOPTED BY THE SIX NATIONS

Daughter of Former Superintendent Made Member of the Cayuga Tribe. IS INDIAN HISTORIAN

BRANTFORD, Aug. 6.—(Special).—Interesting indeed, was the ceremony which took place yesterday by which Miss Augusta Gilkinson was adopted by the chiefs of the Six Nations Indians and was given an Indian name, after presenting to the Six Nations Council an enlarged photograph of her father, who was for many years the superintendent of the Six Nations. Miss Gilkinson's Indian name is Goh-wih-sas, meaning "one who makes a research." The appropriateness of this name is known to the author of "The Lady of the Snows," an engaged in compiling a history of the Cayuga Indians. After the presentation of the portrait the chief made Miss Gilkinson a member of the Cayuga tribe of the Bear Clan. In a few remarks Miss Gilkinson thanked the chiefs for the honor which had been conferred upon her, saying that she felt proud that she was one of the celebrated Six Nations Indians, who helped the British to win Canada from the French in the wars of 1760, 1812 and 1813, and 1817. Her forefathers had fought with Chief Red Jacket and those great chiefs. Miss Gilkinson is of the fourth generation of a family which has been interested in the welfare of the Six Nations. It was a coincidence that she should present a portrait of her father to the Indians during the 50th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the National Museum in Ottawa. The presentation of his portrait was much appreciated by the chiefs, and it will occupy a place of honor on the walls of the council house at Oswego.

ST. MART'S, Aug. 6.—Spontaneous combustion in a quantity of hay in the barn of Mr. Peter Heinbuch of South Easthope, two miles east of Flamborough, was the cause of a fire which completely consumed the building, together with a large quantity of hay, other grains and implements, on Thursday. Mr. Heinbuch himself was severely burned about the arms in an effort to extinguish the flames. A quantity of roof, growing in the rear of the barn, were also destroyed by the heat. Twelve horses in the barn were safely got out. The barn and contents were partly insured.

New Radial Line. As a result of a tour of inspection made by Mr. McAllister, representing the New York capitalists, a radial line via Wellesley to Linwood, will probably be included in the area to be covered by the proposed line. Mr. McAllister expressed himself as being very much impressed with the situation. The line from Stratford to Grand Bend via St. Mary's, it is stated, is practically assured. Defective insulators on the steel tower, running thru Henderson and Billings farm, almost resulted in a big conflagration on Friday last. The fire spread over three acres in the course of an hour, and was finally extinguished by neighbors with water pails and grain bags soaked in water.

STEEL DREDGE NOW READY

(Continued From Page 1.) stern pivot type. Two steam captains will be located at the stern, and one at the bow, and by means of anchors located some distance each side of the vessel, at both front and stern, the dredge will be moved from side to side bodily. The dredge end of the discharge pipe moving with it. The cutter and suction arm at the front will be raised and lowered by a winch engine in the centre of the vessel. All the control of the suction, cutters and dredging machinery will be from a central point at the rear in an operating room, on the upper deck.

An important feature of the dredge is a complete machine shop, equipped with lathes, planer, drills, etc., in a room in the hold of the stern. In addition, there is a compressed air unit, with a supply of air tools, and a brass furnace for the production of small brass castings. This will make the dredge self-contained in the event of breakdown far away from supplies.

Both sides of the main deck at the front of the engine room are divided off into cabins for the officers and crew, and the central part of the main deck at the front forms a saloon. A crew of 35 men will be carried.

The dredge, while operating for the most part in fresh water, has been given salt water equipment throughout. This includes copper piping and a fresh water tank of 80 tons capacity. The coal capacity is 250 tons.

The dredge is to make the trip from Toronto to Hudson Bay by way of the St. Lawrence River, being of a suitable size to pass thru the locks, and around the Labrador coast. It will be towed all the way. Temporary tudders on each side of the stern will be added to the rig. The dredge is provided with 600 feet of 1 1/2 inch stud link chain, with a three ton anchor. There is also a sea anchor in case it is necessary for the tug to cast the dredge adrift at sea.

Special to The Toronto World. NEW HAVEN, Aug. 2.—When Charles Sanger Mellen, president of the New Haven road, said on retiring: "I intend to sleep soundly, at my home a day and attend strictly to my own business," a few of the traveling public knew where he would go to achieve these modest ambitions.

Stockbridge, Mass., in the Berkshire is the place he picked out. Squire Grove is the name of his estate of many acres. It is a typical forest retreat, far from the traveled road, huge pines and hemlocks screen it from the passerby, but massive posts, festoons and floral plots lead to the entrance. Caretakers have orders to keep uninvited visitors away, and a photographer was chased several times before he secured some pictures. There are pigeon coops, chicken yards, netting-covered runs, ponds for web-footed fowl, a neat cow barn, a corgolis surrounded by gardens and a hothouse. The residence is a large white building, fenced in by a high hedge of evergreens, about which white oaks stand as sentinels. Mr. Mellen, if it be a hot day, is like to be found lounging in a huge wicker armchair in the shade of a heavy vine which screens his spacious porch.

Sometimes he dons jumpers and "hat" and looks over and personally cares for his feathered pets, ducks, swan and pheasants. At one time he had many rare specimens of such his pheasants attracting wide attention among breeders, but the stress of railroad management gave him so little time that he disposed of many of them, turning most of them over to New Haven for its park. He is also a fancier of bovine stock and he has several fine specimens at Stockbridge.

When Mr. Mellen first came to the New Haven road he purchased a fine residence in Whitney avenue and made his home there. Soon afterwards he acquired his Stockbridge place, and there he spent his summers. Many big deals and railroad projects have been "framed" there. Whenever a project requiring much thinking was in hand, he would take a day-off "on the farm" to figure it out.

Wife is Pleased. None will be more pleased to see him a stockholder farmer permanently than his wife, a woman of attractive personality, who has long felt that he needed relief from strenuous work. Those who know him best say his relief from the presidency will take from him much of the austere reserve which has made him unpopular with the newspapers, and that they were sent from his office in private and in reply to direct questions. It was only during the past year, since the increasing agitation against his road began, did he realize the importance of publicity.

Two years ago, on a rumor of his retirement a question was sent to him regarding it. "Mr. Mellen expects to retire, but the time has not yet been set," was his impatient and sarcastic reply.

PETOSKEY, Mich., Aug. 7.—When Col. G. O. Shields, editor of recreation, president of the League of American Sportsmen, and writer of stories of adventure, came to the northern Michigan resort region, he was not in search of another adventure story, but he obtained it nevertheless. The Colonel, who has been spending some time among the resorts of the region, had heard of the famed "Inland Route of Michigan," and he started out to inspect a part of it—Crooked River, a winding, narrow stream that connects Crooked Lake with Lake Lake. The stream flows thru a dense growth of cedar. In the most impressive part of the river, the Colonel and a bunch of Indians who were netting and spearing fish.

They were visiting one of the most famous spots of all the Michigan fish and game laws, and the Colonel knew it so he ordered the redskins to move on back to Waziyagan, where they have parts in the Hiawatha play.
