

PREFACE.

and has added so much out of his exceptionally large experience that he must be understood to be the predominant partner beneath our present "we"; but wherever possible he is made to speak in his own name, inasmuch as a good deal of his own special work in various parts of the diseases of children is embodied in the book.

JAMES F. GOODHART.

June 1910.