WORD FROM A WANDERER.

Kirkwood, B.A., Writes Fro Smyrna, Asia Minor.

W. A. Kirkwood, B.A., '95, 1s now nected with the International Colge, Smyrna, Asia Minor. He leaves nortly to go to Rome and Athens to tudy. In a letter to a friend he thus lescribes what he saw in a ramble ruins recently: e ruins of Pergamus are said to amid ruins recently:

"The ruins of Pergamus/are said to be the most extensive in Asia Minor, and tho the excavators have carried much to Berlin, there is still a great deal to see. The present Turkish city lies in the valley of the Selinus, and within it, and on a round hill to the north, are remains of the Roman city—theatre, basilica, amphitheatre and other monuments. To the northeast beyond the river rises a wedge-shaped hill to the height of 1000 feet, separating the valleys of the Selinus and the Cetius, and here stood the earliest citadel. The position is a commanding one, and the view from it is grand. From its summit one looks north and east up the river valleys, which lie immediately, below; southward the slope is more gentle, and leads to the plain where the streams join the Caicus, whose course can be traced westward to the sea-line, beyond which Mitylene (Lesbos) is in full view. All along the terraces on the western side of thesummit, are the ruins, more extensive than those of Ephesus, but perhaps hardly so beautiful. There most of the remains are of the finest white marble, here much is of coarser native stone. Still, the ruins of the Ionic temple built by Caracalla. of the great library of Eumenes, with its columned porticoes, and of other buildings, are extremely fine, and the lofty position of the city must have displayed it to great advantage."

Billy Kirkwood was a favorite while at Varsity, and at one time taught at Bishop Ridley College, St. Kitts. CANADA AND IMPERIAL DEFENCE.

Hicks-Beach, in introducing a deputation to Mr. Balfour the other day, took ccasion to hint to the colonies that s they ought to be contributors to the lefence of the empire. With ten milions of colonists in widely scattered taxpayers in the United Kingdom should show a tendency to restlessness under the burden of empire and that they chould suggest to the colonies that the latter ought no longer to expect to be treated as children, but to come forward and share the burdens of imperial factories. This, in fact, was the hint given courteously, but none the less plainly, by Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and coby the premier in their remarks to the deputation.

Still, the problem is by no means an say one of solution. While the colories, particularly Canada, have recentnles, particularly Canada, have recently given plain indications that they are not to be treated as children, but, like Kipling's "Lady of the Snows," view themselves as daughters in their mother's home but mistresses in their mother's home but mistresses in their mother's home but mistresses in their own, it is evident that the line of duty and privilege has not yet been clearly drawn, and also that there may be great difficulty in drawing it. If Mr. Chamberlain's dreams of empire can be realized, well and good; but there are some very troublesome questions to be met and solved before its realization. The United Kingdom may justity complain that the burden of imperial armaners of the west content of the west content of the west corner of the old school board for some years, and also a member of the new board of education during its first term, seeks re-The United Kingdom may justly complain that the burden of imperial armament falls upon it alone, but it is not yet ready, apparently, to welcome relief on the only terms which Canada, for instance, will be willing to offer it. As The Pall Mall Gazette asks, Whyshould South Africa and Australia be expected to give voluntary contributions if Canada goes free? And why should Canada contribute to a defence fund in the expenditure of which she has no voice? The Westminster Gazette figures it out that the contribution Canada ought to make in proportion to population would be $12,750,000, while, on the same basis, Australia and New Zesland should furnish $15,750,000.

Evidently the time is coming, even in not already at hand, when there must be an understanding upon this subject between the mother and her daughters as to the common expense for common purposes, chief of which is the naval defence of the empire. Yet so far, with the exception of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, Englishmen do not seem to have considered that it will be useless to ask for the financial co-operation of their colonies unless they are prepared to grant them representation either at Westminster or in some other equally direct way. As the great Earl of Chatham insisted with stirring eloquence at the time the thirteen colonies and the mother country came to the parting of the ways, taxation and representation are inseparable. Has the lesson of more than a hundred years ago been learned thoroly, or will a similar mistake be made in reference to the daughters now nearly full grown? Mr. Chamberlain, and probably Mr. Balfour, realize that this is a question of the immediate future, but the leisure with which it is approached as yet gives small promise of its speedy settlement.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—J. A. Benbow, a street railway conductor, is dead as a result of carbolic poisoning. He was ill, and going to bed he forgot to take his medicine. Reaching out in the dark, he took a bottle from a table, supposing it to be the medicine. It was a carbolic lotion for bathing a sore. He died this morning after suffering great agony.

HANGING IN A SWAMP.

Omemee, Dec. 20.—W. H. Mitchell, a retired farmer of middle age, of this place, did not return home as usual last night from Burton McQuade's swamp, where he had been cutting wood. His family sent out a searching party, who found him hanging to a tree. It is supposed that his mind was unhinged, as he has been very despondent of late, tho he was in fairly good circumstances.
