

CANADIAN AMATEUR UNION ANNUAL HERE ON DECEMBER 8, 9, 10

ORGANIZATION MEET TONIGHT OF N.S. CLUBS

Will Elect Temporary Officers—Changes Rumored

THE annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union will be held in Saint John on December 8, 9 and 10, according to word from headquarters received here recently. The annual meeting was to be held early in September but the coming of the Federal elections postponed the gathering until later in the year. This will be the first time that an annual meeting of the Dominion body has come to the Maritime Provinces and it was largely through the initiative of A. W. Covey, the vice president and representative of the Maritimes, that the meeting was brought to the eastern provinces.

MEETING IN HALIFAX

Many matters of major interest will be considered at this meeting but from the standpoint of the Maritimes, the one of paramount importance affects the Maritime branch and the possibility that it may be divided into three branches. It is proposed to have separate branches for each of the three provinces and already strong movements to accomplish this end have been formed. In New Brunswick, this movement, it is reported, commands a majority of the clubs in this district and already has elected provisional officers with Lieut. Col. Norman MacLeod at the head. In Nova Scotia, matters are expected to reach a definite conclusion tonight when provincial clubs meet in Halifax to elect provisional officers.

CHANGES RUMORED

The Times-Star learns on reliable authority that changes in the personnel of the governing body of the M. P. B. are imminent and an announcement of these changes is expected shortly. These changes have been the subject of many rumors before this but it is believed that this time they are definite. The gathering of the Canadian amateur here is a distinct feature in Saint John's cup and strong committees likely will be formed to entertain the outside delegates.

MALONEY FAVORED TO DEFEAT DE KUH

Monte Munn and Jack De Mave Are Others Expected to Win Tonight

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Several promising young heavyweights meet the acid tests of their careers tonight in the second of Tex Rickard's elimination tournaments to clear the cluttered heavyweight field and find a suitable challenger for Champion Gene Tunney. Jim Maloney, Boston battler, meets Arthur De Kuh, Italian heavyweight, in the main contest. Maloney is a slight favorite because of greater experience.

The gymnasium workouts of Monte Munn, the giant Nebraskan, have so impressed the critics that the westerner has been made a favorite for his scrap.

Bathurst Official Comes Out With Views On Proposed Change

Sports Editor, The Telegraph-Journal, Saint John, N. B.

Dear Sir—I have read with a great deal of interest your article regarding reinstatement of suspended athletes and in your issue of today I heartily agree with the system which is proposed, as a basis only, and think that some special consideration should be given to the misguided youth who participated in professional sports while under the age of 21 years, I consider that no matter how many years he played professional sport while under the age of 21 years that his sentence of suspension should not be more than one year.

Take for example if a boy plays professional sport for two seasons during the ages of 19 and 20 years, your schedule of suspension would not allow him to participate in amateur sport again until he is 26 years of age. What chance would he have of coming back and catching a place on any team at this age after being out of all sport for six years?

I believe that one year out of the game for an athlete, who has participated in pro sport while under the age of 21 years, is a heavy enough sentence.

I would be glad to have your views on this point.

Yours very truly,
H. V. SCHRYER,
Provincial Vice-President
N. B. Branch, A. A. U. of C.

Bathurst, N. B., Oct. 20, 1926.

It is doubtful if a year's sentence for a boy who completed two years in professional sport while under 21 would be salutary. Is this a question of age, or is it a question of a violation of the amateur code?

If we are to impress on the coming athlete the true ideal of amateur sport—sport for sport's sake—he should be made to realize that it is a serious offense to besmirch that ideal. One year's suspension, in my humble opinion, is not enough. And a boy's athletic experience at 26 is fairly ripe.

The Telegraph-Journal is glad to receive this letter and it invites comment from others. What have Montreal sport leaders to say on this point, as well as those in Fredericton, St. Francis, Woodstock and Saint John?

If the Maritimes have anything to offer for the benefit of Canadian amateurism, now is the time to settle definitely on some program.

Yale Okun, of New York, former demon amateur, swaps heavy swings with "Fighting Holy" Lawson, Alabama negro, in the preliminary. As an added feature, the scribes of Greater New York will present Gene Tunney, the champion, and Jack Dempsey, whom he dethroned at Philadelphia, with belts emblematic of the fight. Dempsey's token has lain in the Madison Square strong box for a year or more awaiting a fitting time for the presentation.

The league has been left open for further entries and any one wishing to enter a team may do so by giving notice at the alleys. The next game will be rolled this evening on the Imperial alleys between the Thistles and Shamrocks.

COLLEGE TEAMS PREPARING FOR RUGBY CLASH

Mount Allison's Stock Rises as Result of Trojan Defeat

The clash next week between University of New Brunswick and Mount Allison in the first game of the western section of the inter-collegiate rugby league is arousing considerable interest among rugby fans, particularly in view of the impressive score made by Mount A. against Trojans yesterday. Last Saturday, U. N. B. handed Trojans a 40 to 0 defeat here and Mount A. made it one point better yesterday at Sackville. Which would indicate to the average fan that the teams appear rather evenly matched.

U. N. B. has been turning out such fine teams in recent years that the Fredericton outfit likely will go into next Thursday's game favored to win out. The MacTier Cup holders have another great aggregation this year, but yesterday's impressive defeat of the Trojans has sent Mount A. stock soaring a bit. The annual gridiron clashes of these teams is the football feature of the year and a big crowd is expected. Several Saint John fans likely will take in the game.

Left Wing of Cardinals Infield Responsible For Victory of Western Team

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(United Press)—Smart baseball men, in reviewing the technical features of the record making 1926 world's series, agree that the left side of the defense meant the difference in the contesting clubs and gave the world's championship and an extra $50,000 to the St. Louis Cardinals players.

Casual fans usually discuss the reasons why a team wins and in the case of the Cardinals the credit for a courageous victory goes to the pitching of the great Grove Cleveland Alexander, and Jess Haines and the stupendous fielding and timely hitting of young Tommy Thoenes.

Players and managers of the present and of the past, discuss world's series from a more technical angle and they are more interested in offering theories as to why one team loses in such an important series.

The Cardinals won the deciding game by a score of three to two but they didn't score an earned run and therein lies the difference in the two clubs.

The St. Louis club had the sounder, the stronger and the steadier defense around the back of third base and in the critical test the St. Louis defense held and the Yankee defense collapsed to the point of demoralization. Bob Meusel's $50,000 mull will go down in history with that of the old Giant star, Snodgrass. John McGraw has always insisted that, although Snodgrass did mull the ball, his guilt was vastly exaggerated and the same will hold good in Meusel's case.

It was just one of those chances that baseball frequently offers to a game ball player. Because he had a very weak arm and could not hope to make an out on a throw to the plate, Meusel muffed the ball in his haste and became the book of the series. If he had made the play he would have been the big hero.

The Cardinals were none too strong in left field, but many baseball men severely upbraid Rogers Hornsby for the harsh way in which he criticized young Hafey, who was doing the best in a tough spot.

Hafey is not a great outfielder. He is not even a good outfielder but he had to go in a work after Ray Blades had crashed against a wall in one of the late games of the season and could not be repaired in time to take part in the series.

leading of Bigbee, Adams and Carey was in itself unimportant. Bigbee and Adams were through. Walters had been asked on them. Carey was no help to the team. But handled the way it was, their release let them out under a bad light. It hurt the morale of the club.

The way McKeevie was let out was quite curious. The whole business was done clumsily and with no tact whatever. And by whom? This may be wrong, but it looks as if Clarke caused the release of Bigbee, Adams and Carey, and had something to do with the dismissal of McKeevie.

Assuming that this line of reasoning is correct, what would be more plausible than that Clarke should have himself appointed manager of the team. He knows baseball. He would probably do well. Anybody could manage the Pirates. All one has to do is bring them to the ball park and tell them to play ball. And leave them alone.
