In the most prosperous town of its size in Canada,

BERLIN, ONTARIO,

with a population of 8000, has fourteen churches, excellent schools—five public schools, a high school, and a college—and is one of the foremost manufacturing towns in Canada. It has direct railway connection in all directions, and all city conveniences, such as water works, a sewerage system, gas and electric light works, and a street railway, while the taxation rate is low. Berlin is the county seat of Waterloo County which is aptly called the garden county of Ontario. Its market is considered the best west of Toronto. No town in Canada affords more, or as many, desirable features as a place of residence, both for those engaged in active pursuits as well as for those who wish to retire from business. For residences or building lots or for any information concerning the town, address or call on
