A little discussion followed the reading at the control of the city of the legal members of the council, the Mayor and Ald. Fell to interpret the effects of the changes.

Ald. Fell thought the tramway con pany were seeking a right to double track the causeway. This right did not elong to the company, as the street did not exist previous to the filling in, and therefore was not covered by the tramway's charter.

It was finally decided to pass over the citation for a time and proceed with the operative sections of the agreement. The first section of it, according to Ald. Fell, had the same objection. He said it was quite evident the company was seeking to get a right which did not belong to it. He was not in favor or further considering the draft agreement at that time.
