Since the increase in the speed of bigliners, however, this method has been found to be quite inadequate, being neither safe, quick, nor necurate. One of the most reliable inventions for detecting isobergs at sea seems to be that of Dr. Coplans, of the University of Leeds, who has invented as apparatus which detects the presence of icebergs by giving readings of the saline contents of the water. The nearer an iceberg is to the ship the less is the amount of sait held in solution in the water. In conjunction with the United States and Canadian Governments, Dr. Coplans has been carrying out a series of experiments on these lines which are expected to have most important results, and

Seal was offered successively to Nottingham and Halifax, but both refused it, and it was put into the hands of three eminent lawyers, with Maynard at their head.

For many years after this the Seal was generally either in commission or in care of a Lord Keeper. In the reign of George I, the same rule applied, and from Lord Cowper's retirement till the appointment of Lord King, in 1725, it was in commission. After this there followed a succession of Chancellors, including the greatest of all, Lord Hardwicke; but there were commissioners in 1750, and again after Yorke's tragic death in 1770. In 1783 Alexander Wedderburn furnished one of the few examples of a man being Chief Commissioner who was fated eventually to be Chancellor. From 1793 Yill 1835 the Seal was always held by a Chancellor, but in the latter year is was committed to the Master of tone Bolls, the Vice Chancellor, and a puisne judge.—Westminister Gezette.

Some curious and rather unexpected results have followed experiments in Europe for the purpose of determining what color in a soldier suniform is the least conspicuous to an enemy.

Of ten men, two were dressed in light grey uniforms, two in dark grey, two in green, two in dark bue, and two in scarlet. All were then ordered to bouseboat on the Thames. It is the outside the content off, while a group of officers remained watching them. The first to disappear in the landscape was the light grey, and next, surprising as it may seem, the scarlet. Then followed the dark grey, while the dark blue and the green remained visible long after all the others had disappeared.

Experiments in firing at blue and red targets, according to same experiments, proved that blue could be more easily seen at a distance than red.

It may be that khaki, which is the fashionable color now for army uniforms, will have to give way to grey, for in these days of long range weapons inconspieuous clothing is vitally necessary for soldiers.

that at least 3,000 people are living in them this summer.

At Laleham and Penton Hook (near Staines) there are bungalow towns. The local tradesmen make special provision, for supplying their needs, and the post-office employ postmen to scull the length of the camp, collecting and delivering letters twice daily.

Many of the bungalow towns are conducted on communal lines, with a recognized leader or "mayor," and amusements are never lacking. Concerts, river fetes, and sports are frequently taking place, and only inclement weather can may the enjoyment of camp life."—Glasgow News. Lauder's Bores. Mr. Harry Lauder, who recently received a great ovation on his first appearance at the Palace Theatre, says his greatest bores are strangers who claim old friendship with him. One day he was pressed to have a cigar by one of those professing friendship, and, while smoking, he tore the thin red band off and threw it away. "Those eigar bands are very valuable," protested the giver, trying to enhance his gift as much as possible; "for 200 of them you can get a gramophone free." "My dear sir," answered the comedian, "if ah used 200 of these smokes ah wudna want a gramophone, but," he added, looking towards the skies, "ah wud want a harp."

Hermits, of whom, according to re-cently published statistics, there are 990 in modern Italy, were a century or more ago regarded as a picturesque feature of English country homes. Sem-uel Engers records that "Archibald Hamilton, afterward Duke of Hamilton, advertised for a hermit as an ornament to his pleasure grounds; and it was advertised for a hermit as an ornament to his pleasure grounds; and it was stipulated that the said hermit should have his beard shaved but once a year, and that only partially." Mark Powyss, an English squire, offered $250 a year for life to any man willing to live as a hermit on his estate for seven years. He was to be well supplied with provisions, books and other comforts, and in return had to abstain from straying around his heritage and from cutting his halr, beard or nails. The offer was accepted by a man who shode by the conditions for four years and then threw up the job. Color photography will never appear to the man with a red nose. Town a Thousand Years Old
The little Essex town of Witham, England, is a thousand years old. It was in 913 that Edward the Elder, son of Alfred the Great, eame to Witham from Haldon and built a fort, the remains of which can still be seen round Witham church in the Temple meadows. According to the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, Edward was engaged about he directed the operations from his quarters in the Witham fort.—London

Oraft for Despening Fort Melson Harhor a Wonderful Boat.

An important step towards the fulfilment of the Dominion Government's great plans for the erestion of a deep water harbor at Port Nelson, on big Hudson Bay, was the departure from Toronto resentity of the biggest and strongest steel hydraulis dredge of its kind ever built in Canada, the Port Nelson.

The new vessel, the contract price of which was $270,000, was built at the yards of the Polson Iron Works here, and the whole undertaking from start to finish was accomplished in exactly a hundred days. This probably establishes a Canadian record for the building of a vessel of such

for the building of a vessel of such size.

While the finishing touches were being made to the boat a party of about fifty shiping men and marine engineers inspected the vessel at the invitation of the Polson Company. These men afterwards stated that the new steel dredge more than came up to expecta-tions.

dredge more than came up to expectations.

"We have had night and day gangs or workers engaged on the construction of the dredge twenty-four hours a day and without a let up in order to bring it to completion within the one hundred days," said Manager A. J. Jeffertes.

The impection was made with Wm. Newman, works manager of the Polson Iron Works, who furnished the designs from, which the vessel was built, acting as the guide.

Completely equipped, the dredge will weigh 1,800 tons, and is a double-decked structure. It is 180 by 43 feet, with a moulded depth of 11 feet, and a draught of 6½ feet, is steel throughout and fitted with five builtheads, dividing it into six watertight compartments.

Would Have a Shent London.

The plea for a sflent London is growing. Berlin is understood to be the most silent of the great cities of the world, just as Chicago is seriously considering its reputation as the noisiest, in view of the increase of lunacy and nervous disorders among its inhabitants. But Mr. McKenns, the Home Secretary, has refused to accede to the petition of the city of Westminster for further powers to deal with the noise nuisance. At present the noises principally complained of are automobile buses, traction engines, barrel organs, shouting news vendors, shouting coal hawkers, shouting milk vendors, motor hooting, as whisting, street singing and prayer meetings and preachings in the squares and at the street corners.

With extended powers the police could do a very great deal to remedy the nuisance, but they have not the powers. Until such powers are granted London will remain a din ridden capital.

London will remain a din ridden capital.

"In Berlin," said a member of the Westminster Council, "the police can stop any unnecessary noise. There they go too far. They can stop a boy whistling. In London if you touch a man you can be arrested for assault, but your ears may be assaulted every hour of the day and you have no remedy. In London residents may complain of birds singing, cocks crowing and sounds of that sort, but very little can be done.
