ST. DAVID'S, LAST NIGHT.

The Young People's Association of St. David's church opened their season last evening with a congregational social. It was a large gathering. Harrison's orchestra provided music and refreshments were served during the evening. The officers of the association are: Rev. Dr. Morrison, hon. president; Robt. Reid, president; Mrs. A. R. Melrose, 1st vice-president; Miss Milligan, 2nd vice-president; G. Bruce Burpee, secretary-treasurer; L. Chalmers Jack, assistant secretary; Mrs. J. M. Barnes, pianist. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion, in that style for which the young people of the church have made a record.

PORTLAND METHODISTS ENTERTAIN.

The annual entertainment given by the ladies of the Home Department of the Portland Methodist church, under the superintendence of Miss Craig, was held in the school room of the church last evening. A good audience, largely of young people, attended and listened with pleasure to an interesting programme of songs, choruses, readings and brief addresses. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Howard, presided.

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOVEMBER 14, 1902.

MR. HAZEN'S SPEECH.

The St. Andrew's Beacon is apparently laboring under the delusion that the provincial government are under no obligation to grant any money for public services, and that when they do so it is an evidence of gracious benevolence on their part. Referring to a statement that Mr. Hazen and Mr. McInerney could not get a suitable hall for an address in St. Stephen on the evening they desired to be there, the Beacon, after sneering at those gentlemen and suggesting that a dry goods box or two would hold the people who would care to listen to Mr. Hazen's "boiled sawdust" speeches, says:—

Or, better still, he might address a meeting on the public wharf, which was constructed out of provincial moneys; or on the steel bridge, which was built in part by the local government; or from the steps of the memorial hospital, which is being generously aided by the local government, or on board of the island steamers receiving government subsidies.

While Mr. Hazen could deliver an address from either of the places named, and give very good reasons why the government should be defeated, it would probably be much easier to find places in Charlotte county that had been neglected or had been the scene of contract jobbing. But a public hall is more comfortable for the people, and the paper that affects to believe that nobody cares to listen to Mr. Hazen and Mr. McInerney is simply undermining its own credit as a reliable journal.

DEATH AT SACKVILLE.

SACKVILLE, N. B., Nov. 13.—The death of Mrs. Cynthia Ayer occurred at Beech Hill this morning. Deceased, who was about seventy years old, leaves a family of six sons and a daughter.

The following assurance from the Fredericton Herald is given for what it is worth:— "The attempt to rank the Herald as an opportunist newspaper made by an obscure St. John print is a piece of impertinence worthy of the source from which it comes. Those who have followed the Herald's career are fully aware that it has above all things followed a consistent political course both in local and federal politics."

Both the C. P. R. and Mr. W. W. Hubbard are to be congratulated on his appointment to a responsible position in connection with the development of business for that line. Mr. Hubbard's knowledge and experience make him in a sense a specialist in the lines of agriculture, dairying and stock raising, and he is an industrious as well as a clever man.

The Montreal Herald says:—"But, however, we may look at the matter, it is clear that the Conservatives are for the moment in much better fighting fettle than they have been for quite a long time. It is just as well for liberals to bear the fact in mind, and to govern themselves accordingly."

The appointment of Mr. Thomas Dunning to the position of cashier of the I. C. R. will be generally commended. Mr. Dunning is a capable man, young and a good citizen, who has made many warm friends in St. John during the years of his residence here.

The Telegraph says Mr. Hazen's reception at St. George was frosty. The same old falsehood was told by the same paper about the meetings at Chatham and elsewhere. What's the good in that sort of journalism?

The race for the appraisership is over and the friends of Mr. James Daly have shown that they have the strongest "pull." This, said a citizen, this morning, has been a week of appointments—and disappointments.

The Chatham Advance declares that the Telegraph's Ottawa interview with Hon. Dr. Pugsley about running the provincial elections on federal lines was a fake. The Telegraph has yet to be heard from—also Dr. Pugsley.

Says the Moncton Transcript:—"The St. John Gazette doesn't discuss either local or federal politics these days. Perhaps it is gathering strength for another flop."

CURRENT SAYINGS.

A London cable of last Sunday quotes the following more or less interesting remarks made during the preceding week by well known men:—"The greatness of a nation is made by its greatest men."—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain. "Unless a nation is morally healthy as well as physically, there is but little hope for its future."—Sir William Blake Richmond, the painter. "Uneducated nations, like uneducated individuals, must be content to do the rougher work and take the lower places in the world."—Lord Avebury, president Central Association of Bankers. "Education has been from the beginning to the people of the United States their greatest interest and most productive and happy investment."—Joseph Choate, American ambassador to England. "Drunkenness should be treated primarily and throughout as a sin."—Sir Thomas Barlow, King Edward's physician. "I think precedent has been the curse of this country."—Lord Rosebery.

CANADA IN LONDON.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—The Star's London cable says: In view of the Montreal congress of chambers of commerce of the empire next August, the London chamber of commerce is inviting many eminent Englishmen to become honorary vice-presidents. An unusually representative and important gathering is assured. The postmaster general, Austin Chamberlain, announces he is now considering the effects upon British interests of exceptionally low postage rates between Canada and the United States. Birmingham and other chambers of commerce are urging upon the minister of the Post Office to maintain prohibitive rates on the postage of British periodicals to Canada. In view of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's retirement, and Premier Balfour's seeming support of Chamberlain's ideas as to imperial fiscal policy, the Cobden Club is renewing its activity. A special meeting has been organized for November 23rd, when the parliamentary leaders of the liberal party, Lord Spencer and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, will head a large and representative gathering of free-traders to protest against recent endeavors to subvert the free trade policy of Great Britain.

DEATH AT SACKVILLE. SACKVILLE, N. B., Nov. 13.—The death of Mrs. Cynthia Ayer occurred at Beech Hill this morning. Deceased, who was about seventy years old, leaves a family of six sons and a daughter. Fred C. Rattary died in Portland, Me., on Monday night as the result of an operation in the Maine General Hospital. The deceased was in charge of the Portland Packing Company's lobster factory at North Rustico, P. E. I., until August, when he went to Portland. He married a daughter of Wm. P. Dobson of Cape Tormentine, who with a thirteen year old son survives. He was 41 years old. He held the skating championship for P. E. I. for some years. His remains passed through Sackville today en route to Cape Tormentine, where interment will take place.

HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

VICTORIA B. C., Nov. 12.—Mail advices from South China report a recurrence of the rebellion in Kwangsi, said some time ago. The rebellion resulted in the deaths of the Kotshui, a new secret society, which is both anti-foreign and anti-dynastic, and in one place massacred 1,700 Chinese. In See-Chan the Boxer movement still progresses. The Boxers have plundered all the villages between See-Chan and Chien Tu. The Boxers have captured and killed 1,000 converts. On Oct. 1st two parties of Boxers entered Cheng Tu but the prompt arrival of Chinese troops resulted in the being driven from the city with heavy loss and eleven, including a woman looked upon as a prophetess, were captured and beheaded in front of one of the Yamen's.

VICTORIA B. C., Nov. 12.—Mail advices from the United States report a fire which originated in a fire cracker show where the men were testing the powder. An explosion followed and a fire which spread and burned several hundred houses. Many Chinese were burned to death. The fire burned houses all around the Chinatown Alliance Mission, which was unscathed. The result of this freak of the fire is that many Chinese have fled to the missionary to be baptized.

ABOUT THE SCAB.

President Eliot of Harvard Calls Him a Hero.

The Hazelton Trades Unionist Says He Is an Ingrate and Outcast.

(Boston Letter, Nov. 12.)

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—It was to the great surprise of the members of the Economic club of Boston, and the guests who had been speakers before him at the club's banquet, to hear Pres. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, denounce the labor unions of the country as opposed to education of the young men and what he termed, "Their fight against the development of the manly instincts." In closing he characterized the strike breaker or "scab" as he called him, "a good type of the American hero."

The Economic club, which is made up of representative business men of Boston and vicinity, was formed for the purpose of holding meetings for the discussion of current topics. The subject for the evening was "Industrial Battle and the Public."

About 20 club members and guests gathered at the Bellevue. Among the speakers were John A. Hobson, the noted English political economist; Frank K. Foster, chairman of the state board of the American Federation of Labor; George E. McNeill, Charles Francis Adams and Prof. Frank Parsons, president of the National Public Ownership league; Samuel Cabot and E. K. Clement of the Boston Transcript, Osborne Howes and Conrad Reno.

Pres. Eliot had not promised to speak but had consented to say something if the spirit moved. Mr. Hobson presented the Case of the Public, saying that compulsory arbitration eventually would settle labor difficulties. Mr. McNeill for the Trade Union, said that the present attitude of the unions is due to the limitations placed upon the laboring men. The unionists consider themselves partners, he said, in the business of their employers, and when they go out on strike to enforce a proper distribution of the profits they believe that their position is not vacated, and that their employers have no right to use strike breakers to fill their places. He said that if the use of physical force ever was justified it was when the laboring man uses it to protect his position, which is his capital.

Pres. Eliot said present conditions indicated that many years must pass before the labor question is satisfactorily solved. Both sides must make concessions and adopt some plans, as for instance, that an vogue in the great educational institutions of the country, where the professors are engaged to trial, then on probation, and finally, when they have proved themselves competent and trustworthy, retained for life, or as long as they are able to perform their duties. In case of disability they are pensioned. This plan, however, he said, is not feasible at the present time, because both the employers and the labor unions were, in a way, inhuman.

The principal objection to the labor unions, from the educated point of view, he said, was their objection to young men becoming competent mechanics. That they do prevent this is evidenced from the fact that all unions attempt to limit the number of apprentices employed in any industry. The right of labor is considered the most sacred right of the American citizen. Pres. Eliot's objection to the labor unions was, he said, that the prime object of the union seemed to be to work as few hours as possible, produce as little as possible during that time and to receive as much money as possible for the service given. This attitude was in effect nothing more than a constant fight against the development of manly instinct. He said he had profound contempt for a man who did not choose to labor every day just as long as his strength would permit.

He protested against violent measures by strikers to prevent non-union men filling the vacant places. For the skilled mechanics banded together, the very fact that they possessed the skill was a sufficient weapon. With unskilled workers, while the conditions are different, there is nothing to justify the use of violence by different bodies. Un- Pres. Eliot said in closing that his opinion now is the same as given years ago in a contribution to a journal, and it is that the modern "scab" is a "good type of the American hero."

(Hazelton Trades Unionist.)

"The suffering scab, that element of the human family despised and shunned as the germ of cholera, disgusting as the shoat of the swill pen and corruptive of moral virtue as the degenerates of prostituted society, has rendered his services to the coal barons and miners during the recent strike, dreamed that ostracism from all decent company be so marked as it is, their

CHARLOTTETOWN FIRE.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 13.—The Guardian of today says:

Shortly after one o'clock this morning the firemen were called out for the biggest fire that has occurred in the city for a long time. The conflagration was in the Welsh and Owen building, the largest brick building in the city, at the corner of Queen and King streets, and before the flames were under control the entire building was destroyed and nothing stood but the brick walls. The alarm was given by A. S. Hewett, and in a short time six streams were playing on the building. It is divided into three sections, separated by brick walls. The fire started in the end occupied by Riley's tobacco factory, and notwithstanding the desperate efforts of the firemen spread to J. T. Peardon's section, and then to Dillon & Spillet's. Mr. Riley's loss is very heavy, with small insurance and a heavy rail stock of which nothing was saved. J. T. Peardon's books and some stock were saved, and also the safe and some stock of Dillon & Spillet, the latter fairly well covered with insurance. The fire was a very difficult one to contend with, the building saturated with oil burning with great fierceness and making the surrounding streets as bright as day. Snow was falling at the time and the adjacent buildings were covered. But for that the entire lower section of the town might have been destroyed.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it probably started in the lower flat, at the southwest end near the boiler of the factory. CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 13.—The loss by fire here this morning is estimated at $50,000. The plant of the factory is insured in the Phoenix of Brooklyn for $37,500, the stock in the Sun, England, for $15,000. Dillon & Spillet's stock is insured in the Royal for $2,500 and $1,000 in the Sun.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR BOYS.

Glad Tidings Mission, which under the management of Exmouth street Methodist church, has for years done a grand work among the young people of that part of the city, is making another effort to grapple with the pressing boy problem. Rev. Mr. Deinstadt has issued a call for the boys not connected with any Sunday school to meet in Glad Tidings hall next Tuesday evening and confer with some of the older members of the society regarding the formation of a club, or something of the sort, for their entertainment during the winter months. An entertainment and abundant refreshments will be provided for the boys attending. The members of Glad Tidings Temperance Society will hold a meeting on Wednesday evening to talk over the re-organization of their branch of the mission on somewhat different lines.

MAIN STREET LADIES AT HOME.

The Women's Missionary Aid Society of Main street Baptist church were at Home yesterday afternoon to a large number of their friends, to whom they dispensed afternoon refreshments. In the evening they gave an entertainment and social which was even more largely attended. Rev. A. White presided and an admirable programme was rendered, consisting of addresses by Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Manning and E. M. Sippell, a reading by Miss Helen Roberts, a duet by Mrs. W. H. White and Mrs. Sippell, and solos by Mrs. T. F. Granville and Mrs. N. C. Scott.
