HALIFAX WON EASY.

Defeated St. John Cricketers in Yesterday's Game.

The Wanderers of Halifax were victorious over the local cricket team by a total of 77 runs. In the first innings the Wanderers scored 125 runs to their opponents' 48, giving a lead of 77 runs, and, as the Wanderers were not so fruitful as they expected, the margin of their win, as time did not permit of another inning for both sides. The second innings of the Wanderers was not so fruitful as their first. They were retired with 77 runs. With an hour to play, St. John's were successful in batting out time, making 40 for seven wickets. Sturdee and Walker being not out at six o'clock, when stumps were put down.

The first innings commenced at 10:30 in the morning. Henry and Stewart opened for the Wanderers, six more runs were made in the next ten minutes, and was eventually caught out by Fawcett. The century was passed by Curry and the score raised to 113 before his partner, O'Brien, took his departure. Grant made six more runs before being caught out and the nine wickets were down for 125 runs.

Lunch was held at the Wanderers on the grounds, and at 2:15 in the afternoon play was resumed. Cooq and Marshall opened the bats for St. John's. John Stewart and Wood bowled. Cooq soon retired; likewise Holden, who succeeded him. Andrew Jones and Reynolds fell before Wood's bowling, and with four men out St. John's tally did not amount to much. However, Fairweather came in next time, he and Marshall raised the score to 22 before Fairweather was retired by the remarkable Wood.

Sturdee and Walker were run out without scoring and Marshall succumbed to a shot from Wood. Musenden, Howard and Walker were quickly dismissed, and John closed his innings with 49 runs. White being not out with three to his credit.

THE LIFE OF A CENT.

Something About the Cumbersome Copper.

Where Do They All Go?—Two Hundred Thousand Sent to This City Every Year.

The experiences which the ordinary copper cent of commerce goes through in its more or less lengthy life time would fill a volume if they could be told. One says a life time, advisedly, for the red coin passes through stages of existence analogous to the life period of more animate things. It has its slow and steady progression towards the bright shiny coin fresh from the mint. Then it is in its prime and goes out into the world to be passed around from hand to hand and pocket to pocket. The continual rubbing and friction begins to affect its gloss, it tarnishes and becomes smoother and smoother until its face can scarcely be seen and it has reached its time of death. It is a "bad" coin, it is no longer of use, and it is sent to the mint to be melted and re-cast.

The coin in this period of time passes through several different phases of existence. First it comes to light in the shape of the rough and dirty ore of the mine, the refining processes change its nature and it becomes pure and of uniform quality. Then it is rolled into disks and these disks are taken out of the fillets. These blanks are taken to a machine, which acts on them in much the same way as the raised rim noticeable particularly on new coins. Engraved steel dies are brought into use and the disk is stamped with its proper image. The coins then pass through a machine which weighs them and automatically rejects the light coins and passes those of correct weight and size. In some mints another operation takes place before the coin is considered ready for public use; exceedingly small particles are taken from the coins and again tested to see that no mistake has been made in its composition.

Then it goes into circulation and generally continues to be passed around until the inscription has been obliterated or the coin punched or otherwise mutilated. What becomes of these worn out coins perhaps not one in a hundred ever stops to consider, and it would surprise many people to know how large a number of coins pass out of circulation every year. For instance in this city alone the government savings bank receives from Ottawa an average of 200,000 cents each year. These are given for a pound of these bad coins. In the larger cities of the States there are people who buy these coins and organize a systematic raising of them on the public. As a pound of coin is really worth about a cent, the rate of profit is high when worked on a large scale pays extremely well. Here in St. John the coins are bought by different banks and factories for the sake of the bronze contained in them. For though they are "bad" money, this is a misnomer and copper really forms but a small part. The average citizen takes care never to burden himself with more than a few coppers at one time and he cannot properly appreciate the difficulty experienced in transporting and counting a few hundred of them. The task becomes extremely irksome. Some years ago one of the leading bankers in the city was so troubled with the number of coppers that he was to be handed to his drivers in the course of their daily rounds that he adopted the simple expedient of having each man carry in his wagon a pail and all the coppers he received would be thrown into this and weighed at the store. He calculated their value on the basis of nineteen ounces for 100 cents and he sold that loose at Kane's corner yesterday from his comrades and has not been seen since. "Coke" O'Brien attempted to follow his example but was caught.

RESULTED FATAALLY.

William M. Wheaton, Who Was Struck by a Stone on Elm Street, Is Dead.

William M. Wheaton, the teamster who was struck with a rock cast from a blast on Elm street yesterday afternoon, is dead as a result of the injuries he sustained. There is little to add to the particulars of the accident contained in the Star of yesterday. Wheaton was engaged in carting away the rock from the scene of the blasting operations to the crusher. The particular blast which was so fatal to him was set off about two o'clock. He ran to a distance which he doubtless thought meant safety for him, but in this case was mistaken, for the force of the blast hurled a rock to the very place he was standing, the rock striking him on the head and rendering him unconscious. The distance from where the explosion took place to where Wheaton was standing was measured afterwards and found to be 140 feet. Deceased was 46 years of age and leaves a widow and five children. They are Mrs. H. Morrell, Joseph Goodfield, Bertha, Mildred and Herbert. He had one brother, Charles, whose whereabouts the family do not know, but he is somewhere in Western Canada. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Grant, of Weymouth, N. S. His wife was a Miss Reids, of Weymouth.

Mrs. Herbert Morrell, his daughter, arrived in the city last night on a visit from her home at Fredericton. He was unaccompanied by the fact that her father had been killed. She was informed of the sad accident only to be stricken down with grief. Another sad circumstance in connection with the accident, is that Mrs. Wheaton had just been home a few hours after spending a holiday in the country, when word of her husband's death was brought to her. Another man named William Bunde was struck by a stone in the arm at the same time as the Wheaton accident. His arm was only slightly hurt and he went home and got it put right with little trouble.

Patrick Cunningham, a member of the jail gang, serving ten days, broke loose at Kane's corner yesterday from his comrades and has not been seen since. "Coke" O'Brien attempted to follow his example but was caught.
