THE KANGAROO TEAM WON THE SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE

New York, Nov. 21.—Alfred Goulet, of Australia and Alfred Grenda of Tasmania, the "Kangaroo team," won the six-day bike race which ended at Madison Square Garden tonight. Tied with five other teams for the lead an hour before the finish, they scored sixty-seven points, the highest number in the final sprint of an hour.

Ever Lawson of Sweden and Peter Drobach of Poland, the Swedish-Polish team, was second, with sixty-one points; Reggie McNamara of Australia and Jimmy Moran of Chelsea, (Mass.), the International team, were third, with fifty-three points; Francesco Verrit of Italy and Oscar Egg of Switzerland, known as the Italian team, and Fred Hill of Boston and Joe Fogler of Brooklyn, whose title was the American team, tied for fourth place, with fifty points each, while New York, the Bronx team, finished last among the leading six, with thirty-four points.

Edward F. Root of New York and Jackie Clark of Australia, the Australian-American team, and Percy Lawrence of San Francisco and Jake McGinn of Newark, N. J., the Inter-State team, were tied for seventh place, and

NEW HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION ARCHER'S HAS WING BEEN BADLY DAMAGED

AL PALZER, THE NEW CHAMPION IN ACTION

Jimmy Archer, the Cub catcher, is probably the most bungled up ball player in the big league. Even before the accident when he broke his arm, by running into a concrete wall in Brooklyn, he had the record. James Archer, humble employee of a cooperage shop in Toronto, fell into a vat of boiling tar and seared his good right arm nearly to the bone. By that freak of fate came the uncanny art, the all but impossible skill, which have made the great backstop unrivaled in class. Archer is the fastest, the most deadly of throwers to the bases. He is the nonpareil of all catching wizards. His weight is medium, his weight the same.

First of all, his throwing arm is permanently bent and stiffened at the elbow. It is impossible for the great catcher to straighten it. It is fully an inch shorter than the rest. The forearm is deeply ridged and scarred from the effects of the burns sustained in the accident at the cooperage works. The hand itself has been fearfully battered by foul slips, wild shoots and the various fatalities that lurk for the unwary catcher. The thumb has been dislocated and the joint is swelled to double its natural size. The index finger has been broken no less than four times and every joint is gnarled and bent.

The bones of the second finger have been shattered on three occasions, the third once. The little finger has been dislocated several times and its joints creak like a rusty hinge. Last night, the catcher suffered a compound fracture. It would be hard to picture an arm apparently so little adapted to throwing a ball so swiftly or accurately. And yet this misshapen, battered arm is the most deadly, the most dreaded whip on the circuits.

WANTED TO FIGHT WITH JIM CORBETT DEFEAT COSTS HIM AN AUTO

About a quarter of a century ago old Broadway, New York, was in danger of having its fair walk splattered with crimson and strays bits of epidermis.

This was all due to the fact that the broad shoulders of two young men, collided as they were passing. One was a real fighter, flush with the greatest achievement that falls to the glove-man; the other a young athlete, educated in rugby and boxing, who possessed a tingling temperament.

The fighter was none other than Jim Corbett, the temperamental athlete, a well known local newspaperman.

These two "almost" adversaries met again Monday afternoon in Jim Corbett's dressing room at the Pantheatre, but under different circumstances. The balance of the Broadway meeting is told by the newspaperman.

"The first time I saw Jim Corbett was in New York about twenty-two years ago, shortly after he won the championship from John L. Sullivan.

"I was walking down Broadway when a big, husky chap bumped his shoulder against mine. There are times when an unexpected jab makes the blood mount to the fighting pitch and, being in that condition, I told this fellow just how clumsy he was.

"He apologized in a kind of a way, but just as I started to walk away that portion of Broadway was pierced by a loud guffaw. That laugh got me good and hard and I was getting ready to tell the fellow what I really thought of him and preparing to offer battle when a friend of mine came along and murmured: 'Come away you big underhand bench-warmer. You're using in the early nineties—the man you're trying to pick a scrap with is Jim Corbett.'

"It is almost needless to add that hostilities ended very abruptly.

It is a big, white mark to the credit of our dollar-and-a-half sporting men that they unify in resenting the aspersions cast upon American women by Johnson.

So, with Johnson out, there are plenty of decent heavyweights in the world. Bombardier Wells, champion of England, is one. Al Palzer, conqueror of Wells, is another. Little Sam Langford, the giant killer, is another.

If Wells weighed twenty pounds more he would be the peer of any boxer. He has everything a champion needs save weight properly distributed.

Palzer was the logical champion. He is a younger, game and willing. He will never be a Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons or Kid McCoy, but there is no reason why he should not be the reincarnation of Terry McGovern and Battling Nelson.

He is a giant in the bright flush of youth. A clean-living, virile, man-mountain, weighing 220 pounds, with six feet three inches of dynamic activity and force.

He possesses the undaunted courage of Nelson with the irresistible, awe-inspiring rushing of Terrible Terry. He loves to get close to an opponent and exchange pie-driving blows until one drops for the fatal 10.

Palzer had everything to make a champion. He has the size. He has led a clean country-boy life. He has marvelous physical powers. He recuperates in the way that made Fitzsimmons a terror. He assimilates punishment like a sponge soaking up water and is most dangerous when severely punished. He has proved that he is entitled to the red badge of courage, by winning one fight despite a broken arm, and by knocking out Wells when almost out himself. He has never faltered before the fiercest

HOW GOOD TENNER WAS SPOILED

Walter Maranville, the greatest shortstop in the game, broke into baseball against his father's wishes. Maranville thought that "Rabbit" would make a mighty good tinner, but as a ball player—bah!

Several years ago the "Rabbit" played amateur baseball in odd moments and his work attracted the attention of the New Bedford, Mass., team. "Rabbit" got an offer from the New Bedford team and went to his dad about it.

"Turn it down," said Papa Maranville to "Rabbit," who just then was learning the tinner's trade. "In a few years you'll develop into a good tinner and you'll make good wages—at least $25 a week. As a ball player you'll never make good. You're too small."

"Rabbit" however had ambitions to become a ball player. He thought he could make good even if his father didn't. He disregarded the advice of his dad and signed up with New Bedford.

"You'll be sorry—and so will I," said his father when he heard what "Rabbit" had done. "You'll never make good. They'll fire you in mighty short order. And you'll get so used to loading that you won't want to work at your tinning job again. Instead of having a son that I can be proud of, I'll have a son who won't be working at anything."

Was Papa right—or, was Papa wrong?

Incidentally, it might be stated that Maranville, in his two years with New Bedford, has earned about 50 times as much money as he would have earned at the tinning trade, and that during the next five years, unless an accident wrecks his future, he will earn more money than he would have earned for 40 years as a tinner.
