Bangor, Me., Aug. 8.—Reports from up river indicate that the east branch driv will reach boom ahead of the west branch ome at this time, is expected in Penc boom about August 20. There wer about 42,000,000 feet in the east branch second drive, but of this quantity only about 30,000,000 feet will come to boom this summer, most of the logs above Second Lake having been left behind, including about 8,000,000 feet on Webster Brook, belonging to F. W. Ayer.

The second Mattawamkeag drive is still stranded and no logs are expected from that river this summer. The second Piscataquis drive is also having a hard time, everal million feet being hung up in Milo

The West Branch Driving & Reservoir Dam Company made rapid progress with the west branch drive until reaching Pemadumcook Lake, where, last week, strong winds scattered the logs over the strong winds scattered the logs over the lake and along the shores, so that a large crew will be kept busy for some time getting the sticks together again. A considerable part of the saw logs have been delivered to the Penobscot Log Driving Company at Shad Pond, and these are will reach boom about Sept. 1. The greater part of the drive on the west branch be-ongs to the Great Northern Paper Company, and these logs, about 40,000,000 feet, have arrived at the Great Northern's have arrived at the Great Northern's booms at Millinocket in good season.

At the Bangor boom, where all the logs for tidewater saw mills are rafted, about 20,500,000 feet have been rafted thus far this year, against 30,000,000 at the corresponding date in 1902. The logs thus far handled included what were carried over from 1902, a few from the forward earthranch, and Mattawamkeaz, the Passabranch and Mattawamkeag, the Passamkeag, main river and Piscataquis. The 9,000,000 feet of saw logs from the Piscataquis have all been received at the boom, and about 6,000,000 feet have been rafted

Most of the mills on the Penobscot are running at full capacity, and lumber ship-ments are now nearly up to the average for this time of year. A feature of the busines just now is the revival of the South American trade, for which four vessels have recently been chartered. These vessels will take out about 4,000,000 feet of spruce. The shook trade to the Mediterranean is quite active and a steamer sailed from Bangor on Thursday for Hull (Eng.) with spool bars and deals.

Sydney, Aug. 1-William Miles left Halifax three years ago. His exit from the city was sudden, and thereafter nothing was heard of him. His disappearance myswas heard of him. His disappearance mystified his friends because he had departed for no apparent reason. The press at the time referred to the case. Your staff correspondent was told that a hermit resided with his dog in a lonely spot near old Bridgeport (C. B.), far removed from the residences of the place. Thinking that a "write up" for The Mail of the old man and his surroundings would be of interest, remy correspondent visited the place. To your correspondent visited the place. A Checkered Life.

In answer to a question from The Mail, he gladly consented to tell something of his life. He emigrated from England to St. John (N. B.) and resided there until the fire of 1877 swept many homes to de struction, and his was one of the number. Shortly after his wife and children died from effects of injuries and exposure as a result of the conflagration. Mr. Miles then moved to Halifax, and resided for a long time in the house owned by Lawrence Gooley, at the corner of Duke and Albonius streets, and he was again burned out. Since that time he experienced many tips and downs, and decided to hid the birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to birst life of a city adien forever, and to be a city adien forever life of the consensual life of earn for the first time as to his present blace of abode. "I obtained permission from the manager of the Dominion Coal Company to erect a cabin in the woods, on part of the companys' property. While clearing the land, President Shields paid me a visit and said, 'Old man, you have a hard task ahead of you.' I replied, 'Wait until a few hungry."

Mr. Miles was certainly industrious. He had accomplished wonders since the time he had begun life anew in the forest alone. The potato tops blossoming among the strings, and the other vegetables springing about all round him, was evidence of his work. He accompanied the reporter outside of the enclosure, through the woods and over the barrens; then the pair parted. The old settler and his dog that when his meals ain't ready."
