Dancer in the library

By ALANA PERKINS
Times staff writer
What is a ballerina doing in a library? Cheryl Brant, the newest staff member at Burnhamthorpe Public Library, says both jobs require discipline.

"Both ballet and library have a definite vocabulary and a lot of detail work," says the 31-year-old former dancer. "Library work is just as exciting as dance in many ways."

The first six years of Brant's 10-year dance career were spent in modern dance companies until she started to teach at the Ballet Academy of Illinois. During her ballet training at university Brant spent 2½ years helping to compile a 24 volume indexing all the novels written in English literature. Brant was employed in the U.S. 'Headstart' program which helped children with reading problems.

She was hired by the Mississauga Library system for the children's reading program after retiring from dancing to raise a family.

MORRIS LAMONT/THE TIMES

Meadowvale zoning change

A proposal to change the zoning of a 3.24-acre parcel of land at the corner of Gananoque Drive and Glen Erin Drive in Meadowvale from commercial to residential was approved by the city's planning committee last week.

Markborough Properties, owners of the property, plan to develop the land with a mix of on-street townhouses, reduced lot singles and semi-detached dwellings, totalling 33 units.

Before the city issues the necessary building permits, it must approve the developer's plans of subdivision, site development, elevation and landscaping.

Clarkson parking nixed

Motorists in the habit of illegally parking their cars on the grass boulevard areas of Bromsgrove Road will have to change their parking habits.

Mississauga's general committee has recommended that "no parking on boulevard" signs be posted on both sides of Bromsgrove Road between Southdown Road and Seagull Drive and that "no parking anytime" signs be erected on the south side of the entire length of Bromsgrove Road.

Roads closed

Drivers who use Mississauga Road will have to make other arrangements during August.

Mississauga Road will be reduced to one lane at the CNR tracks for the next three weeks.

Mississauga Road will be closed between Burnhamthorpe Road and Eglinton Avenue from Aug. 11 to Aug. 24.
