Wexford.

On the Sth of June, a convention of the Branches of the National League from different parts of the counties of Wexford, Carlow and Kilkenny was held in the Tholeal, New Bres. The Very Rev. Canon Thomas Dayle, P. P., Ramagrange, occupied the chair. As the greater part of the business of the convention was in connection with the present state of the New Rees Union, the following elected quardians attended as at officio delegates—Meser. William Kelly, chairman of the elected guardians; Michael McGrath, vice-chairman; James Doyle, deputy vice-chairman; James Doyle, deputy vice-chairman; James O'Connor, James Bolger, L. A. Doyle, Mathew Hutchinson, James G. Dooley, and John Murphy. Rev. Father Harvey, C. C. Poulfar, was also present. ecompanied by Bailife Dwyer and Dunphy, of Enniscorthy, two emergencymen, and Myles Finn, made a descent upon Mr. Byrne, Bailyoral, and took possession of his place. It appears that this is a highly rack-rented farm. It contains about 300 acres; its valuation is £207, and rent £284. The ojectment was brought for one year's rent. A number of people casembled to witness the proceedings, and evinced unmistakable signs of indignation at seeing Mr. Byrne cast on the road. Mr. Byrne was willing to pay the valuation, and there is no doubt that the offer was the best which the landlord will ever probably again receive.

Coolgreany men; and we feel assured the the earnest appeal Mr. John Dillon made at Avondale, on behalf of this rack-rented farmers of Wexford and Wicklow. The "Plan of Campaign' had been scarcely adopted when the rents went down with a crash on the neighboring estates; and if the campaigners only get a tithe of the reduction in rents they obtained for their neighbors, they may bid defiance to Capt.

Hamilton and his emergency brigade.

On the morning of June 15th it was discovered that the windows of the Freebyterian Church, Parsonatown, had been broken during the previous night. The inside of the edifice was littered with atones and broken glass, and some of the furniture in the vestry was broken. There has been a split of late among the Frotestant party in the town, over the serection of a reredos in the Episcopal church; on which half the congregation went over to the Freebyterians. In a few days after it was discovered that the congregation went over to the Freebyterians church was an act of retailiation. The Catholics of the town who are held perfectly free from blame in the matter, held a meeting, the parlsh priest preciding, and passed resolutions denouncing the outrage.

The Kerry Sentinel reports at length the cruel evictions carried out lately by Lord Kenmare. Heartrending incidents marked every step of the exterminating war upon the poor people, who have been reduced to the utmost poverty by the rack-renting. Earl of Kenmare. The distress of the Widow Sullivan, evicted at Knockaderry, Firies, is thus described:—"The evicting force proceeded to the house, and the wailings of the distracted widow and her little ones, which were borne on the wings of the wind, left one under the impression that there was a member of the fomily dead. The poor woman was driven into the yard by the bailiffs, with eight or nine young children flocked around her. The unfortunate woman was in a state of frenzy, and her position excited the pity and compassion of the police, many of whom were seen to turn aside and shed tears."

Limerick.

The Castle has not given up the idea of cheating the Limerick Corporation out of its proper representation on the governing board of the local district asylum, towards the maintenance of which it contributes a good sum yearly. After long consideration, the Lord Lieutenant, in whom the power of appointing governors is vested, has written to say that he cannot comply with the wish of the Corporation for a larger representation, having discovered that they are too well off in that respect already; and he intimates that it is his intention to add a few more county J. P.'s to the board. The Limerick City Fathers have no notion of submitting to this treatment. Their motto is, no control, no contribution; and with a view of acting up to it steps are being taken for the rejection of the demand—amounting to something like £2,000—made on them in respect of the institution referred to. All the car-owners refused except one, who drove the police to the meeting, held in Tallow, and on the following Thursday to the eviction of one of the oldest families in the country, that of Mr. John Walsh, of Curradoon, near Touraneena. The affair has caused much surprise, as this individual has heretofore been a professed Nationalist and ex-suspect, but has lately entered into business relations with a gentleman of more approved politics and loyalist leanings, which may serve to explain the cause of such unpatriotic action.

Belfast.

Belfast. Mr. Sexton has also scored another Parliamentary triumph on a question which is of scarcely less interest to his constituents. He introduced, at the beginning of the session, a bill providing for the establishment of local Bankruptcy Courts in Belfast, Cork, and in such other places as the Lord Lieutenant might appoint. This bill was objected to by the Examiner of Standing Orders, on the ground that it was a private measure. The result of which decision was practically to strangle the measure at its birth, as well as to deal a serious blow at the agitation for the institution of local Bankruptcy Courts this has so long been carried on by Mr. Sexton has also scored another

The evictions on Lord Kenmare's estate, near Killsrney, were continued on Saturday, June 11, when Mr. O'Shea, P. L. G., an extensive farmer, was evicted. During the week, fourteen families on the estate were evicted, and in no instance have they been re-admitted. A number of evictions took place in the neighbourhood of Drimolesque on the 10th of Juna. On the 24th of June, the sheriff's deputy, Brennan, proceeded from Bantry to Dunmanua, accompanied by the District Inspector, R. I. C. Schull, in command of twenty men of that district, and evicted from his holding Denis Mahony, the landlords being Wm. Henry Fairtlough and George Fairtlough, both of Kingscourt, county Cavan. The tenant was re-admitted.

At an early hour on the morning of June 14th, two respectable tenants, named Dinsen and Donovan, on the property of Francis Bennett, in the parish of Kilmeen, were evicted. Preparations had been made to resist the eviction; but the

In fact the lamentations of the deprived parents seem to be an echo of the mosnings of the Egyptians, when all their first-born sons were slain. On the other hand, it would make one feel proud of their country to see those peasants manifest such warmth of heart and affection, thereby proving to the world at large that in Ireland at least the domestic circle is dear to the people, for it is no secret that all great legislators have avowed, time after time, that that nation only was safe and possessed vitality where the charms of the home life were preserved."

London, July 2 —Young Mr. Balfour, with his single eyegless and Orferd drawl, light heartedly steers the ship of state along. The sun is shining brightly, the water is calm and crystalline, and he is not impressed by the fact that he is in a hurricane latitude, or that a shark is following grimly in the vessel's wake. Very soon now his waking may come, and if it be not rude to the point of ruin those who know Ireland best are much mistaken. Next week the Queen will sign the jubiles coercion act, and for the first time in modern constitutional history a Parliamentary majority will have handed over to an Executive an indefinite and permanent martial dictatorship over a whole nation. When reading the session debate it eeems as if not even Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Morely fully comprehend the sweeping revolutionary vastness of the change thus flippantly and stolidly voted. one would have to go back to the days of Cromwell, and even this does not afford a satisfactory parallel, for, while it is possible to understand how Cromwell might overawe an elective body, it is a drelly difficult task to conceive of a parliament submitting in craven terror to the will of Mr. William Henry Smith. The very fact that there is no commanding personality in the government, and that all its visible agents are puny, paltry creatures, explains the painful and paradoxical situation. The ferocity of a coward's attack is proverbial, and in the same way this unnatural coalition of cheap and weak men nervous about their strength, ashamed of their false position, and mertified at the total lack of justification for their course, to strike at Ireland the most vicious blow dealt her in generations, and which deals also a dangerous and perhaps vital blow at Parliamentary institutions, the effects of which will be felt in England long after home rule has become a familiar fact in Ireland, has made a feebly forcible effort to seem strong.

Meanwhile the Irish have been lying very low. The word was passed round Dublin not to hiss or hoot the two some of the Prince of Wales during their recent visit, and the order was fairly well obeyed. FIVE-MINUTE SERMONS FOR EARLY MASSES By the Paulist Fathers.

ched in their Church of St. Paul the Apostle, Fifty-ninth street and Ninth Wenue, New York City.

FOURTH SUNDAY AFTER PENTECOST. "Depart from me. for I am a sinful man O Lord."—Gospel of the day.

So cried out St. Peter, when he saw the evidence of our Lord's divine power in the miraculous draught of fishes. The rins of his life rose up as witnesses against him before the tribunal of his conscience, and he felt himself unworthy to remain a cure Lord's presence, unworthy to recins of his life rose up as witnesses against him before the tribunal of his conscience, and he felt himself unworthy to remain in our Lord's presence, unworthy to receive His favors. Perhaps we have had a like experience. We have received some special mark of God's favor, and, filled with a sense of our own unworthiness, we have asked: "Who am I that God should thus honor me? Has not my whole life been a series of rebellions against His authority? Why should He then show himself so kind toward me?" Or, perhaps, reflecting upon our sins, and realizing how grievous they have been, we fear that God is now our enemy rather than our friend, and that we can have no part with Him, Yet to each of us our Lord replies, as He didto St. Peter, "Fear not." He has still a work for you to do, no matter what your life has thus far been. You may not be called to "catch men," as Peter was, but each in his own place in the world can begin now to serve God, and serve Him faithfully. There is never any reason why was should eall upon God to depart from us because of our unworthiness. You feel that you have been a great sinner. You look back upon an ill spent life. Neglect of the sacraments, promises broken slmost as soon as they were made, mortal sins without number—is this the record of your life? Should you then cry out: Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord? "Fear not," says our Lord, "begin even now to serve Me, and all shall be well." Have you been careless and lukewarm, not altogether fallen from grace, yet serving God in a half-hearted way, trying, perhaps, to serve both God and Mammon, to just keep out of mortal sin and no more, and not always succeeding in that? "Fear not," says our Lord, "begin at least now to serve Me with fervor, and I will help you to give Me your whole heart." Are you struggling with temptation, and after many falls ferror, and I will help you to give Me your whole heart." Are you struggling with temptation, and after many falls growing weary of the struggle, tempted to think there is no use in trying any longer? "Fear not," says our Lord, "My grace is sufficient for you; keep on trying, and you will conquer in the end." Are you trying to lead a devout life, yet discouraged at the little progress you are making, fearing lest your unfaithfulness to grace makes you unworthy of going so often to the sacraments? Call not upon our Lord to depart from you—"Fear not." He knows your good intentions, and makes every allowance for your weakness.

makes every allowance for your weakness.

The fact is that the best of us are unworthy of even the least of God's graces yet in spite of our unworthines, He gives us every grace we need, yes, and more than we need, "full measure, pressed down and running over." And the more unworthy we are, the greater claims we have upon His generosity. Should the thought of our sins and weaknesses temp us to despair, we have only to reflect upon His boundless mercy and goodness and, approaching Him in loving confide ence, we shall be sure of His help. If we fail in the end it will not be because Godhas not helped us, but because we have will fully and deliberately rejected His grace which is always ready for us, if we only choose to accept it.

which is always ready for us, if we only choose to accept it.

Be not, then, cast down at the though of your own unworthiness, for He bid you fear not. "The Lord is my light an my salvation," sings the Church to day "whom, then, shall I fear? The Lord the protector of my life, of whom shall be afraid? My enemies that trouble m have themselves been weakened and hav fallen. If armies in camp should stan together against me, my heart shall m fear." For "the Lord is my firmamen my refuge and my deliverer; my God my refuge and my deliverer; my God my helper."
