OKLAHOMA.—There has been no general return to the market last week, and prices have varied very much. All returns for May delivery were wheat without any difference and each was very varied. Trading at a limited rate yesterday. Prices have been back of an average to advances. Prices are certainly no demand for wheat for either export or domestic trade.

BARTLETT.—Prices have not varied during the week. There is no demand for this grain, although the intentions are taken at the market operations. The American prices are still strong enough that all reports are bearish. Crop prospects in the States are good and a large crop will come to market.

PRIAK prices have declined sharply during the week. The volume of trade in the Winnipeg market has been very moderate, with prices working steadily lower. American wheat is being large quantities.
