A peculiar case came before the Su-preme Court in New York a few days ago, when a Miss Trankla sued C. C. Burger, a mining engineer, for $12,500 for services rendered by her. Mr. and Mrs. Borger and Miss Trankla are all said to be devout Christian Scientister, and Miss Trankla declares that in April bet abs and a surfal cacher that in April ast she made a verbal contract with Mr. Burger by which he engaged her ser-vices as an instructor in Christian cience, and because she was, as she herself admits, "a proficient student and devout follower of Christian Science," he agreed to pay $150 a month, and an additional $2,000 on Oct. 1st, if she would devote all her time to instrucing him in the deep mysteries of that un-fathemable cult. Moreover, Mr. Burger said that he had an important mining deal on, and he promised that if she would "exert her Christian Science power" to bring this about an extra $10,-000 would be her reward. Accordingly Miss Trankla laid aside all her mere personal interests and "prayed earnestly day by day," both in her room and elsewhere, and the mining deal was put where, and the mining deal was put through successfully. But apparently Mr. Burger forgot, or else, like the peo-ple of Hamlin, having utilized the ser-vices of this modern "Pied Piper," he objects to paying the bill. The incident is a queries one and raises at once the is a curious one, and raises at once the question of the monetary value of a Christian Science prayer. We cannot remember that this issue was ever be fore raised in any court. Miss Trankla values her six months' p avers at $12, 500, or $25,000 a year, which is surely "going some;" and yet, if she can put through a good mining deal every six months, her services are cheap enough. One wonders a little, however, why, if she could put the mining deal through by Christian Science, she didn't use her "Christian Science power" to compel the money out of Mr. Burger's pockets without having recourse to ordinary law courts. The decision of the court will be awaited with some interest.

Don't Stop Writing.

A Hanover soldier boy on leave in England has sent us the following article clipped from the Daily Mail which explains itself:-

"No letter for me again! All right, wo can play at that game." That is the kind of thing one hears nowadays when the mail is distributed. The disappointed Tommy turns away grousing to wait another twenty-four hours in the hope of receiving a precious envelope bearing the stamp of "Blighty." Girls, don't let this sort of thing hap pen! Do not let the boys out there ge it into their heads that because the way goes on and on you are forgetting them. There is enough to grouse about, Heaver knows. And the longer the war con

Every person hangs more or less of a bluff. The young chap gets the jeweller to pull out a tray of diamond rings. He paws them over, looks wise, seems in pressed with one at $150, and ends up by investing 75c. in a beauty pin. The head of the house says a 12-pound turkey is too small and the 14 pound ones are too thick in the neck. In fact, he gives the dealer to understand that he'll gladly pay the shot if a real Adonis of a turkey could be specially captured and be to him. He apologizes to the dealer and buys a couple of rings of bologna and half a dozen pigs' feet. There is enough spare bluff in the world to make a whole chain of real mountains.
