WALES

Dick Wheeler, trainer of Freddie Welsh, the boxer, was ordered to pay the costs at Llandaff for driving a motorcycle with only one light, and for not having a license. He did not attend court, but wrote pleading ignorance of the law.

Burglars broke into the jewelry shop of Caple Brothers, Cardiff, and a large number of articles were stolen. The robbery was of a daring nature, for the intruders smashed one of the side windows of the shop and extracting the jewelry, which is estimated to be valued at over $1000.

At the Pwllheli county court, Judge Evans ordered a sum of $1,500 compensation, paid into court to be handed over to the widow and daughter of the late Captain David Evans, Pwllheli, master of the Portmadoc schooner Blanche Currie, which was lost in the Atlantic with her crew of seven hands.

Charged on suspicion of stealing a mailbag containing about $400 in gold and notes, Albert Sidney Harris, a motor mail van driver, was remanded at Cardiff. The bag was one of several being conveyed by defendant's van from sub-postoffices to the head office, and Harris was said to have taken it during the postman's absence.

In a report submitted to the Trade-gar council by the medical officer of health (Dr. E. T. H. Davies), it was stated that eleven persons were found sleeping in a lean-to bedroom, the average height of the room being only 3 feet. Thomas Jones, the chairman of the Council, described the report as being the blackest he had ever heard in their district.

A touring party from Duvant, returning from Cardigan, had a narrow escape near Gorseinon. When passing another vehicle the char-a-banc containing the party sank into a newly-filled-in sewer trench, with the result that one side of the vehicle was completely embedded. The party, numbering about thirty, were forced to wait in the pouring rain until another char-a-banc was secured some three hours later.

When a funeral party arrived at St. Tudno's cemetery on Great Orme's Head, Llandudno, it was discovered that there was no clergyman in attendance to bury the dead. A visiting clergyman, who ascertained this, volunteered to officiate, and the interment was proceeded with. Ten minutes afterwards a parish clergyman arrived by taxicab. A grave in the St. Tudno's churchyard which had not been opened for 102 years was opened for the burial of the late William Owen, of Llandudno, aged seventy-seven. The previous burial was that of Hugh Evans, aged eighty-two, on Jan. 21, 1812.

A remarkable record in the ministry will be brought to a close by the retirement of the Rev. W. E. Winks, pastor of Bethany Baptist chapel, Cardiff. The resignation will take effect on the first Sunday in October, and as Mr. Winks commenced his pastorate on a similar date in 1876, he has thus served the church for thirty-eight years. The Rev. W. E. Winks, who is the son of a Baptist minister, the Rev. J. F. Winks, of Leicester, was born in January, 1842. Bethany is the oldest Non-conformist church in Cardiff, having been founded in the year 1833, and during the last century there have been only three ministers.
