One Farmer Quick to Remedy

SPENDS MONEY AT HOME

Local Storekeepers Not Altogether Blameless For Growth of Mail Order Business - Petty Dickering Should Cease, and They Should Trade With One Another.

Seeing the errors of others, a wise man corrects his own. Men are apt to prefer a prosperous error to an afflicted truth. It is only an error of judgment to make a mistake, but it argues an infirmity of character to adhere to it when discovered. The Chinese say: "The glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time you fall."

Error's Influence Upon Man. In its influence upon man error has been compared to a magnet concealed near the ship's compass.

As in the latter case, the more favorable the winds and the greater the diligence and skill in working the ship the more rapidly will it be speeded on in a wrong course. And so in the former-the greater the struggle for safety the more speedy the progress of

This is the position in which a farmer with whom the writer recently talked found himself.

This farmer, who lives but a short distance from town, has prospered and accumulated a considerable quantity of worldly goods and has always scribbled many errors on the white pages of

Takes Pride In Town. When asked his opinion of his town as a market place he replied, "It's the best in this section of the country." "Do you seil all of your products here?" he was asked. "Oh, ves," he answered

"And buy all of your necessaries and supplies here, too, don't you?" "Oh, no; I'm too wise for that," re plied the farmer. "Those fellows here tails of their adventure. are too high. I can buy cheaper from the mail order houses."

There he stood, a big. awkward, intelligent countryman, who for years had been committing the unpardonable error of robbing the treasury of his face of some real danger. own town and aiding the upbuilding of the mightiest trust on earth-in some said, "because you do not dare to speak distant center of population.

How many farmers and consumers are doing the same identical thing as was this farmer-draining the town of its dollars, receiving, but not giving, aiding the large cities and crippling their own little town, which is striving and struggling to maintain a command. ing position on board the good shir

There was never a better illustration than the retail mail order bouse itself of what may be expected of consumers who fail to see the "signs" and neglect to fit themselves to the "times." The price of existence is measured both by demand and accom-

Tarzan of The Apes

HEN he felt quite strong again after his bloody battle with Terkoz, the mighty ape. Tarzan set off one mornng toward Mbonga's village. He was gle trail instead of making his progress through the trees when suddenly he came face to face with a black war-

The look of surprise on the savage face was almost comical, and before Tarzan could unsling his bow the fellow had turned and fled down the path rying out in alarm, as though to others before him.

Tarzan took to the trees in pursuit and in a few moments came in view of the fleeing quarry. There were three of them, and they were racing madly in single file through the dense undergrowth. Tarzan easily distanced them, nor did they see his silent passage above their heads nor note the crouching figure squatted upon a low branch ahead of them beneath which the trail led Tarzan let the first two pass beneath him, but as the third came swiftly on the quiet noose dropped about the black throat. A quick jerk drew it taut.

There was an agonized scream from the victim, and his fellows turned to see his struggling body rise as by magic slowly into the dense foliage of
