GO TO OSTEND Zeebrugge Base Was Badly Damaged in British

John Mann Coal Company property on Colborne street, commencing at two dredges. Now there is a gap in No reserve; all must be sold to at any rate is sunk, and the hulks of the sunken cruisers are forming admirable obstacles against the sand can drift up. If only the wind will drive the tide in force through the gap in the Mole, Admiralty officials are confident that the harbor will quickly silt up, and it will be very difficult for the Ger-Leaving the City.

Man dredges—if there are any left—to make much headway against the sand, especially as British Seaplanes are not forgetting them.

Longer Inland Trip. As for the Bruges Canal, it may perhaps be cleared in three or four weeks, but, as its banks are so weak, the Germans can use light charges in blowing up the two concrete cruisers. This means the submarines will have, for a time, to use Ostend as a base for operations against the Channel and consequently they will have to take a longer inland trip to reach blue water and will then have to come out of a port much more casily looked after by the Dover patrols. Independently of that, Admiralty officials say, the campaign against the submarines proceeds satisfactorily. They believe that the Anglo-American forces are believe that American forces are holding them down, and they doubt if the rate of construction is quite as fast as it was. The demand for steel for tanks may have hindered the U-boat
